Exemplifying the traditions and anticipating the future, she is a dreamer whose dreams are implemented in action. Her enthusiasm is conveyed through a variety of interests which range from birdwatching and "catalogy" to administrative committees and class sponsor and Slipper. Her quiet strength is apparent in her concern for students, relating to each as a whole person. Always willing to share her time, she encourages and inspires those around her.

As a small token of our appreciation for what she means to this campus, we dedicate the 1969 Spectrum to . . .

Acceptance

My honor is my own. It cannot be taken away, nor can it be destroyed by anyone other than myself; but it can be strengthened.

It is my sincere belief that the Honor System can serve as a guide to growth and strength of character for all who actively seek it. So believing I willingly accept and pledge to support the Honor System, realizing that as I do, I assume the responsibility not only for myself, but also for every other student living under this system.

Annual Hike

That certain day in October: no afternoon class, hankering appetites and equally anxious spirit mounted for a truly memorable Annual Hike. Lined up on front campus, the classes began the trek to B...win High School. A new dimension in amusing competition this year was the greased pole climb. The favorite relays still played the big role in stirring enthusiastic competitiveness.

As a grand finale, the Irish exhibited their talents on the field, turning everyone to a shade of green. The Royal Class then stole the show and topped the day with that complimentary purple hue.

COLLEGE

Dimensions

A closer look at the inner self can put a new perspective on life. With such a belief, the Christian Association sponsored as the theme for Religious Focus Week, "Dimensions." The programs that were set up to stimulate this sought after self included movies, breakfast discussions, speakers and an agape' meal. The organized schedule of events played a role in reaching the individual person; but it was the individual who was to meet the call and put into focus the dimensions of life.

Around Campus

Bow-wow . . .

Trudge, trudge, trudge, all day, trudge, trudge, trudge.

Alumni Day

If I should meet thee after long years,
How should I greet thee? With silence and tears.

The existence of adult organizations to support the youth in their drive toward maturity is an example of the nobility and unselfishness of which parents and friends are made. If youth is to mature, it needs leaders and guides to demonstrate what maturity is. The young have never been against the old. Youth realizes it is not self-sufficient. Alumni recognize that, too. Today's student is tomorrow's alumnus. And there is no finer school in which to learn these roles than one which rosters together the traditional and the contemporary in a program designed to produce an adult who is valid for tomorrow.

Seniors

For the seniors four years have passed and Russell Auditorium begins to seem like more than a probable location for lectures, concerts, and assemblies. Now, as the graduation hour approaches, each minute is filled recalling feelings of belonging that are special to each. Coming here as children believing themselves to be wise, adults will leave knowing otherwise. Much more is learned here than the hours in the classroom and the library can represent. Friendship, awareness, and the beginnings of learning have been acquired.

The glorious reality of seniority finally makes its way to that third finger.

Juniors

"G.C. is a challenge, a challenge to you." Georgia College has indeed been a challenge to the class of '70. After three years, each has changed but in various ways and to different depths. Being big sisters to the baby Elephants was a rewarding experience. The year has been one of increased responsibilities and important decisions—a year of growing up. Approaching the beginning of their senior year, the Thunderbirds can look back on a rich past and truthfully say: "We look to the future with bright aspiration."

Sophomore Class of '71

With a bit of Irish spirit and a true royal background, the class of '71 faced their second year of college. A little older and more composed, they made their way through the school year. Was it learning from the past or just Royal-Irish luck that made such a winning year? Annual hike and Sportsmanship Day took on a royal hue, building that Super Royal Irish Spirit. Undoubtedly that familiar purple glow was destined for a golden glimmer with the Royal Irish Golden Slipper victory. The year was full and though the Irish leave us, it is this spirit and love that will live on with the birth of a new sister class.

To others we will show the love we grew to know. Royal Spirit live on . . .

Freshmen

Angela Gay, Representative to CGA; Donna Fulford, Secretary-Treasurer; Hoylene Head, Representative to Judiciary; Kathy Youngblood, Representative to Honor Council; Pete Dillard, President; Ann Wall, Vice-President.

With the restless thinking of concerned Youth and the everpresent apathy which shadows it, a new freshman class came to Georgia College. They were hesitant, doubtful and they were more. They brought a newness which is necessary to institutional living, the spirit and mindfulness of Now. In a sense they have made waves, they have challenged the very school itself to listen to them and to understand them. They have presented ideas which have been both alarming and exciting. But such ideas reflect a sincere concern for the future and are a factor necessary for responsible change. Hopefully, the significant thinking of this potentially energetic class will prove to be a continuing and memorable element in G. C. life.

Now that the 1969 Spectrum is completed, our minds are filled with notions of how things might have been done differently. We hope the reflections within this book will be a catalyst for thought both now and in years to come. If only one person recognizes what we are trying to say, then we will consider ourselves somewhat successful.

We offer our many thanks to those who have helped us during the past year. Dr. Allen Skei, Mr. Julian Veal, and Miss Sarah Gordon receive our special thanks as well as Dr. Specht and Mr. Gaines, our advisors.

As the school year comes to a close, we hope that it will be a good beginning for many. Although often harried by responsibilities, we are glad we had an opportunity of having a part in recording campus life for a year.
