Sir Herbert Aimes Noted Canadian Speaks at Vespers

G. S. C. W. was very fortunate to have Sir Herbert Aimes of Canada, speak at Vespers, Sunday night, March second. Dorcas Rucker was in charge of the program and Dr. Beeson introduced the speaker. Fannie McClellan led in prayer.

Sir Herbert has had a long and varied experience in public service. For eight years he was a member of the Montreal City Council. From 1904 to 1920, a continuous period of seventeen years, he represented his native city, Montreal, in the Dominion Parliament. He was chairman of the Select Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce for nine years. During the World War he was Honorary Secretary General of the Canadian Patriotic Fund which raised and distributed money for the support of wives and dependent relatives of Canadian soldiers.

In 1919 Sir Herbert was invited to assume the post of Financial Director or "Treasurer" of the League of Nations Secretariat, then being organized in London. This position he filled from 1919 to 1926, living for six years at Geneva, the seat of the League. During the past three years he has visited Geneva and kept up with all the activities of the League.

Sir Herbert spoke at Vespers on "The Fulfillment of the Promise of Peace." He is a gifted speaker and spoke with authority and knowledge about the League. He told about the League from the time it was born on the tenth of January 1920 to the present session in 1929.

"The council," he said, "was the nucleus from which the League grew." The council first consisted of eight members and met for the first time on January 16, 1920. The council is the executive body of the League and has held fifty-six meetings since its organization. At its first meeting the main accomplishment was the election of a president, M. Bourgeois. The council was the mainstay of the League for one year. In July it was very royally entertained by the Spanish King and his court.

Near the end of the year, the preliminaries being over, the council was ready to call an assembly. Three members of the council went to Geneva and purchased the Hotel National and made things ready for the first assembly which was held November 15, 1920. Twenty-nine of the thirty-two nations connected with the war sent delegates and the thirteen neutrals joined which made a total of forty-two nations of the world represented at the first assembly. "Those not ratifying were the United States, Ecuador, and the Arabian Kingdom of Hedjaz. The assembly is the free Parliament of the members of the League. It may deal with any matter within the sphere of the League or affecting the peace of the world. In it every state has one vote and all decisions, except matters of procedure, require unanimous consent. The assembly

The Great Assembly of the League of Nations

WHERE NATIONS MEET

Here, in a nut-shell, is what the Tenth Assembly did towards increased security from war.

Great Britain announced in the opening speech her intention of signing the Optional Clause and her example was immediately followed by fourteen other states. This is the Article 36 of the Statute of the Court of International Justice which was made optional so that the establishment of the Court in 1920 might not be delayed. Three states, not of first importance signed it that year; fifteen others have done so at intervals since but these include none of the great powers except Germany. Indeed, whether they ever would was a matter of much conjecture, for the clause binds them to accept in advance the Court's jurisdiction and pessimists were not lacking who were assured that it was asking the impossible. Yet here, in this Assembly, there was a veritable competition to be first in announcing the intention to sign. Some delegates, the Italian and the Irish, displayed undisguised haste to get it done quickly but another group, which included Great Britain, India, New Zealand and South Africa, signed ceremoniously and publicly on one particular afternoon in the Glass Room of the Secretariat. Canada and Australia, prevented from joining this group by a technical delay, signed next day. When the signatures are ratified by home parliaments, these countries are pledged to submit to the Court all disputes concerning the interpretation of a treaty, any breach of such a treaty, the reparation to be made for such a breach and any point of international law.

Compulsory arbitration for a certain class of disputes thus accepted by a large number of Governments is one of the big achievements of the Assembly. It is also one of the bulwarks of peace being steadily built up while controversy continues to rage around the vexed question of disarmament.

Another bulwark is the scheme for giving financial assistance to a state suffering an act of aggression. This had British support last year as well as this but complexity of detail hinders its completion. By it states undertake to aid, with a specified sum of money, any one of their number should it be attacked without warrant. Bankers, knowing their job, have examined the scheme and are willing to sanction it provided it be automatic in its working. Only so can it be an effective deterrent to the state that dreams of aggressive attack and only so can it provide the security that is its object.

Still another bulwark will be erected when the gap in the Covenant of the League is closed. Articles 12 and 15 still allow a state to make war; the Kellogg Pact renounces this right and it would seem advisable to bring the Covenant into line with the Pact. A move in this direction was made this year and next September should see the amendment carried through. Incidentally it is interesting to remark the transmutation of the Kellogg Pact from the beau geste of last year to the solid fact of this. Japan's ratification in July set the seal on its significance. Sixty-two out of a possible sixty-four states have either ratified or have announced their intention of so doing, and these include Russia and the United States of America.

As to whether we are still to continue spending huge sums of money for hypothetical wars which we have solemnly sworn by the Kellogg Pact to renounce, the Tenth Assembly arrived at no agreement. The Preparatory Commission, set up long ago to prepare for the world conference on the limitation and reduction of armaments, has failed to make any advance and the conference is still not convened. The League being no super-state cannot impose a decision and some countries are far from being ready to relinquish the war habit. Lon Cecil did his best at this Assembly to persuade them at least to make a beginning but he could not get far. He urged four points: (1)

DR. EDWIN H. SCOTT ATTENDS MEETING OF ASSOCIATION OF TEACHERS' COLLEGES

Also Meeting of Departmental Superintendents, Branch of N. E. A.

Dr. Edwin H. Scott returned to Milledgeville Monday night, February 25, after having attended the American Association of Teachers' Colleges, which met this year in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

To all interested in the progress and standing of the G. S. C. W. the fact that this College and the Georgia State Teachers' College at Athens are the only members in Georgia of this remarkable association will bring gratification. There is also the college at Statesboro, which under the class of Junior Colleges, makes the third institution in the state of Georgia to be enrolled in the American Association.

The purpose of the American Association of Teachers' College, as revealed in its constitution, is to "promote more effective co-operation among the Teachers' Colleges to the end of the better maintenance of adequate standards of scholarship and methods teaching."

During the meeting of the Association such important pedagogical subjects were discussed and resolved upon as: Correspondence Courses; their Value, Use, and Extent; Extension Work and University Extension Work; Computation of Teachers' Loads in Teachers' Colleges; Library and Laboratory Equipment. From a mention of these subjects is easily seen the importance and far-reaching significance of such a league of educational institutions.

Among the numerous newspaper articles giving account of the activities of these meetings of educators interesting topics are presented. A few of those creating considerable interest are: UNITED States Education Seen as World Model; Jazz Influence Big Problem in Schools of Today; An Education Needed to Train in the Spirit of Everyday Life; Rural Problems; Giving Teacher Credits; Standardization of High Schools; Social Life and Character Objectives of Higher Education; Supervision—How to Go About It; Citizenship Qualities Real Ideals of American Education; Teacher-Pupil Friendship; Organization and Emphasis on Physical Education and Health; Friendliness a Factor in Social Development.

According to Dean Scott, Atlantic City hospitality is of the finest and the atmosphere one of utmost courtesy. One of the featured entertainments was an enormous pageant, including 2800 actors, which was given in the huge City Auditorium. Many other recreational activities were enjoyed and altogether the meeting of these educational organizations was pleasant as well as profitable.

It gives the students, alumnae, and friends of the College great pleasure to remember that our College is indeed foremost in all modern educational proceedings, and upon the A-1 list of accredited institutions for education in the United States.

SOCIAL NEWS

Miss Katherine Hudson of Wesleyan, Martha Thurston, Henri Jo Hudson, and Margaret Donner of Gray were guests of Sara Jo Barron Sunday afternoon.

Miss Rena Mae Terrell of Eaton-ton spent Sunday with Vera Hunt.

Mrs. C. C. Farmer spent last week-end with her daughter, Katherine.

Miss Louise McCowen of Fort Valley spent the week-end with Ruth McCowen.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Waffork of Social Circle spent Sunday with their daughter, Sara.

Miss Ione Sears had as her guest for the week-end, her sister, Miss Ollie Mae Sears from Pearson.

Miss Elizabeth Thompson of Agnes Scott College spent Sunday with Evelyn Hurt.

Miss Annie E. Barron spent the week-end with Sara Jo Barron.

Mrs. Sydney Edmondson of Eaton-ton spent Tuesday afternoon with Emily Champion.

JUNIORS ENJOY "KID" PARTY
Gay laughter, light, color and joyous music marked the delightful "kid" party given the Junior Class on February 24. The sponsor of the occasion was the Y. W. C. A. social committee.

Miss Katherine Jones is the chairman of the important committee and she with the rest of her helpers made delightful hostesses for the entertainment.

The Tea Room, where the party was held, was attractively decorated in lovely lavender and purple, the class colors.

All the juniors turned out for the happy occasion, and after having been entertained and served ice cream cones, cake, and candy the "chillun" went to their respective dormitories after an evening of frolic.

MRS. LUCAS IS BETTER
Mrs. O. A. Lucas, matron of Terrell A, is improving, according to reports from Parks Memorial Hospital where she has been confined for some time. We hope that she will soon be back with us.

MISS ANDERSON BACK AT LIBRARY
It looks good to see Miss Anderson back at her library desk. She taps her mallet no less vigorously since her accident, and seems to be in her usual form.

ENNIS GIRLS ENTERTAIN
On Sunday evening, the suite 56 and 57 Ennis, entertained with a most delightful feast. After a social hour, the refreshments were served, consisting of fruit salad, potted ham sandwiches, tomatoes, olives, celery, chocolate cake, and coffee.

Those present were Dorothy Hendrix, Bonnie White, Ruth Ally, Mildred Anderson, Mable Underwood, and Ruth Brannon.

CAROLYN RUSSELL

VESPER SERVICE ON DIGNITY GRACEFULNESS AND WISDOM

Ira Cade Williams spoke at Vespers on Thursday evening centering her thoughts around the qualities of dignity, gracefulness, and wisdom.

She said that these were three good qualities to develop:
1. "Dignity is not to be considered as a lordly manner and an exaggerated posture. Dignity is charm, kindness, quietness in manner and dress."

2. Gracefulness, the kind of which our own Lord Jesus Christ was a living example. He said, "My grace is sufficient for thee." Let our thoughts be clean and pure so our interior may reflect in our exterior in a graceful manner.

3. Wisdom, that none of us can be accused of not trying to attain, else we would have left school long ago. We have chosen aright. We left the apparent ease and leisure of illiteracy, desiring due training in the firing lines; seeking strict discipline in the front ranks of the battle of life; turning aside the old adage that ignorance is bliss. We realize that real happiness can come only through duty to ourselves, our country, our God. Without these ideals, our battle of life will be defeated at the beginning.

Nellie Hitt had charge of the devotional.

BIBLE STUDY PARTY

Miss Lorine Teaver entertained her Bible Study Class with a lovely valentine party in the tea room. The color scheme of valentines was carried out.

Each guest made her own costume and a prize was given for the most attractive one.

Many interesting games and contests were enjoyed and delicious sandwiches and cocoa were served. Those present: Vasta Smith, Janie Mattox, Mary Ernest Norris, Sallie Hasty, Louise Rice, Exa Childs, Dot Piper, Elizabeth Isom, Beth Saunders, Margaret Rucker, Jessie Helen Durham, Mary Crawford, Helen Agnew, Catherine Matthews, Doris Bush, Willie Mae Stowe, Helen Barron, Robertine McClenden and Marie Tucker.

EATS? AN HOW?

Suite 49-50 in Ennis Hall entertained Sunday evening with an informal feast. Games and contests were enjoyed for an hour, then delicious chicken salad, pickel, crackers, tomato sandwiches, and coffee were served. The light bell brought the merriment to an end at 10. Those present were Frances Fordham, Edith Cox, Jo Barron, Martha Storall, Helen Barron, Dot Henderson, Bunice White, and Louise Whaley.

SCIENCE CLUB VISITS HISTORIC SPOT

Members of the Science Club motored to the Jordan home six miles from Milledgeville Monday afternoon. Those girls interested in soil erosions joined Dr. Lindsley and Misses Martin and Teaver for a walk about the grounds. The other girls went with Mrs. Anderson in search of specimens for the aquarium and the terrarium. The afternoon was almost spent when both groups met again on the hillside to roast wieners over a bon-fire. Just before leaving for home Dr. Lindsley carried the girls through the old Jordan house to note the delightful process which predominated in the days of our grandfathers.

OUR CAMPUS "MOTHER" SEES SIGNS OF SPRING AND SENDS US A MESSAGE

When two or three girls approached me on the subject of writing something for the issue of the Coincidence which they were sponsoring, I protested that was out of my line. But when they insisted, I found myself jotting down a few of the random thoughts that have been running through my mind ever since Spring began to manifest itself. I dislike saying "no", little as you girls may think it sometimes, and this allowing myself to be persuaded to try my hand at writing when there are so many others on the campus who are more capable, is proof positive. I have been thinking that just as "in the Spring a young man's fancy, lightly turns to thoughts of love" so also, at this season, there is a great move toward cleaning up. I do not know just how those two things are allied, or whether they are or not; but anyway, both seem synonymous of Spring. However, it is along the lines of cleaning up that I have pursued my thoughts, for I am not particularly well versed as to the "symptoms" of Spring in a young man.

FEATURE CLASS DISCOVERS STORIES AT THE HOME OF DR. WYNN

If you're looking for a really interesting English course, you should join the Feature Writing Class. Its so very interesting that it doesn't even seem like work. Last Wednesday February 26, we had our class over in Dr. Wynn's own yard. We examined all his flowers, he has some lovely ones, you know, and his library, and even the chickens. Then we all sat around and discussed our lesson for that day. A little later we went in the house, and there Mrs. Wynn served us grapejuice and crackers. Can you imagine a nicer way to have a class? The next day we decided to write a story about something interesting that we found while we were at Dr. Wynn's, and we found so many things to write about that we haven't even finished them yet.

Dear Juniors,
A young teacher instructing her class in composition said, "Now, children, don't attempt any flight of fancy. Just be yourselves and write what is really in you."
Following this advice we ain't gonna attempt no flights of fancy. We're just writing what's in us and we have innumerable tongues for the sole purpose of boosting the Juniors (and the Freshmen, incidently), hearty lungs to cheer our jebaters on to victory, and about 525 hearts full of gratitude and appreciation for our sister class.
All in all we are a green bunch of red-blooded Freshmen anxious to cooperate with our big sisters in everything they seek to accomplish.

ON TO CHARLESTON

The Sophomores and Seniors will go to Charleston, again this year, on their class trip. They will probably go about the middle of April. Memories of other good times had in Charleston, makes the Seniors whisper confidentially to the Sophomores: "We'll have a good time in Charleston. On to Charleston!"

Some girls may be perfect models of beauty, and may have attained all that even Grecian art ever imagined of faultless form and feature, and yet, unless all this is backed up by more important attributes, beauty may not prove an asset. Indeed, it might sometimes become a liability. To be really attractive, one must have poise. One must know something of work, of love, of play, of unselfishness and tolerance. Long ago we were given the foundation for these things by Him who taught of humble service, freedom, common sense, and love. "The greatest of these is charity"—that is, love. So, with the heralds of Spring everywhere in evidence, let us begin to take account of ourselves, that we may eliminate the undesirable traits of character, and by so doing, be better prepared for greater achievements.

Let us remember that "if we love our neighbors as ourselves," if in our

A FAREWELL AND A WELCOME, REPRESENTATIVES ATTEND STUDENTS CONFERENCE

Farewell Juniors who left us in February for the mightier and higher class of Seniors. There are times in the experience of everyone when "farewell" seems the saddest of all sad words. There are other times that around these words linger a golden hope and joy that we shall all someday meet at the gate of success, and rob these words of their sadness and makes of them "God speed on your way!"

A sincere welcome we extend to our new Juniors. They are now Juniors and have the same responsibilities and duties that we, the old Juniors, have. We hope they will be successful and happy and make their class proud of them.

VERA MORRIS AND ANNIE WELLS LEAD VESPERS

Vera Morris and Annie Wells had charge of the Vesper program on March 6. Vera led the devotional and Annie gave a very inspirational talk on "Christian Loyalty."
Helen Hall sang a solo, "The Old Rugged Cross."
Annie defined loyalty "as a practical, thorough going devotion to a cause" and gave as the two main rewards of loyalty, the love and friendship of Jesus Christ and eternal life.
The service was closed with the hymn "O Master let me walk with Thee."

NEW OFFICERS OF LITERARY GUILD

At the last general meeting of the Literary Guild, Mary Farmer was elected president to take the place of Ruth Hightower. The Guild regrets that Ruth can not continue to fill the presidency but heartily welcome Mary as its new president. New group leaders were elected as follows:
Drama—Louise Chambliss.
Short Story—Josephine Belts.
Novel—Camilla Hutchinson.
Poetry—Sara Harvey.

The Association has, in the past three years, been the guest of Mercer University, Emory University, and the University of Georgia. The students join heartily in the desire to have the press come here.

ABOUT YOUR SKIRTS

We are living in the present, and judging by the past, when women wore street sweepers, We think short skirts will last. It has been a slow transition, They rose an inch a year. We're all so very used to them That now long skirts look queer. Today we have athletic girls That oft compete with men. They haven't carried smelling salts Since nineteen hundred ten. Our morals now are just as pure As in the nineties gay. When you'd scarcely count an ankle To the mile upon Broadway.

limitation of effectives, (2) similar treatment in dealing with military, naval and air forces, (3) control, (4) limitation of war material. Of the imperative need for the latter he is convinced. "You cannot check the ingenuity of man," he said, "but you can limit the amount of money which shall be spent in perfecting machine of war and in making still more terrible the means of destruction."

Towards a World Governed by Law
In the legal group of activities the chief thing to tell is the acceptance of the revised statute of the Court of International Justice. This revision was undertaken earlier in the year by a special committee of jurists, much helped by the octogenarian American, Mr. Elihu Root, and, with its acceptance by the Assembly, there is now nothing to hinder the United States from becoming a member of the Court. How much nearer will this bring Washington to Geneva, we wonder?

Then the third group of Assembly activities. Towards Increased Prosperity
A truce to raising tariffs! A tariff holiday for two years during which no tariffs shall be raised about the existing levels! Then to use the two years in paraciel effort to get representative conferences to ascertain how existing tariffs could be reduced, what conditions govern the field etc., and to seize every opportunity to reduce, either singly or in bilateral or multilateral agreement.

Here was the suggestion from which the world had been waiting, the Economic Conference of 1927 had pronounced in no uncertain voice the verdict that tariff barriers were the root of all evil as far as trade and commerce were concerned. The pronouncement had some good effect for a time but it did not last and when the Assembly met it faced the fact that, in spite of this considered expert opinion, tariffs were steadily rising in Europe. Three weeks later the delegates departed with invitations to their governments to think over this illuminating idea of a tariff truce and to consider it further or not. (This is not the place for a fuller discussion of the economic work of the League but it may be noted that special conditions such as exist in Australia, for example, where a tariff wall behind which to build up industries seems indispensable, are accepted and have a place made for them in the general scheme.)

The international aspects of the coal question and of the sugar industry came up for discussion and the Council is charged to consider whether meetings of government representatives should be called for consultation on each subject.

There still remains to tell the story of the League's work for the suppression of the drug evil, in which such a splendid advance was made in September, the beginning made towards drawing East and West closer together as well as other odds and ends of interest.

EVER FORWARD

There is no information that come to us that gives us quite as much pleasure as the wonderful progress that G. S. C. W. has made and is making.

During recent years many honors have come to the school and to those who or employed on the faculty. It was with great pleasure that we learn of the splendid report that was made at the meeting this week of the Association of Teachers Colleges and the high recognition and rating given G. S. C. W.

Dr. J. L. Beeson has carried the college forward and it is recognized as one of the leading institutions of higher learning in the country. The work being done by the college equals that done by any of the other teacher's colleges in the country.

All Georgia is proud of her Woman's College and the people of Milledgeville have a special feeling of pride in its accomplishments.

The Union-Recorder extends congratulations to Dr. Beeson and his faculty. We assure them that their continued success gives us much satisfaction and pleasure.

FROM THE UNION-RECORDER.

WE—THE STATE

Whom do we consider the State? The governmental organization in Atlanta? We are the State. We, or our parents, pay the taxes and help support the government and institutions of the State. Some of the money is given to our college. How are we spending OUR money? When we leave all the lights in our suites on during meals or entertainments, are we taking very good care of our money? When we leave water running in our bathrooms indefinitely, are we saving our money for other things? If we were in our own homes we would not leave lights and water on when they were not needed. Soon we may have homes of our own. There will be no income to budget. Let us begin a good habit now by using lights and water when we need them and at other times, cutting them off. Thus we will save our funds and form a habit which we will need in the future.

QUOTED FROM PUBLICATIONS

The following is an abstract from Antioch Notes published by Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio. It is a contribution from Deryl Clark, class of '25.

The Duty to Adventure

Perhaps the highest duty of man is to undertake adventures. When he has mastered his immediate environment and has insured reasonable comfort and safety—when he would like to settle quietly by his own fire-side and cultivate his own garden—the call comes to leave his security and venture out beyond the frontier. With most men today the command to adventure calls for pioneering in the social or personal, rather than in the geographical, world.

The Three Stages of Ethics

There are three stages of ethics. In the first or negative stage, men try to ignore, circumvent, or thwart the prevailing standards. These are the criminals and generally undesirable citizens. Because of the difficulties they cause, the comparatively few men in this class are much in evidence.

In the second or neutral stage, men accept prevailing standards and conform to them, except where pressure to do otherwise would make conformity inconvenient or difficult. Most people have this attitude.

The third stage is that of creative initiative in ethics. It is represented by men who grow in ethical discrimination and who strive to make their more exacting standards prevail. Such men originate ethical standards.

The Growth of Ethics

Until recently the doctrine of caveat emptor was the standard in commercial life. We need but recall the storm of protest which met President Roosevelt's demand for a pure food law, to realize the difficulty of introducing a new standard. Formerly it had been allowable to sell glucose mixed with clover seed as "pure strawberry jam." Artificial coloring and flavoring were very common, and every sort of deceit was practiced in food adulteration. Who can doubt that present standards of trade are an improvement?

Every advance in decency and harmony of living has resulted from an ethical adventure. Our whole moral inheritance is the contribution of such adventure to a world still largely wild. Every advance has been met with resentment and ridicule from those who are neutral in their ethical lives—those who accept as authoritative, standards that were fought for and won by previous generations, but for whom any further advance is an unwarranted infringement on personal liberty.

The Field of Adventure

At every turn we find ethical standards that are inadequate and obsolete, but so entrenched that it seems almost futile to attack them. The workman's habit of secretly limiting his output, the advertiser's habit of exaggeration, the contractor's habit of exerting undue influence on public officials, the lawyer's habit of jangling or thwarting justice to protect his client—all these furnish opportunity for adventure. Everyone recognizes that life would be better if other standards in his own life means risk and hardship, but the odds often against him. But just those conditions constitute adventure.

There are men and women to whom adventure appeals more than security. In on other field of life is opportunity for adventure so universal as in the field of ethical conduct, and nowhere are the results more productive of well-being. Is the present cynical contempt of ethical adventure more than a defensive disguise of cowardice?

Ethics and Freedom

Conventional society surrounds us with a web of restrictions in the name of ethics. Ethical adventure does not necessarily mean building and defending more restrictions to personal freedom, along with a setting up of vital standards difficult of achievement.

Ethical adventure combats taboos and restrictions against wholesome freedom, but sets exacting standards that only great purpose can achieve. In such adventure there is double risk. We may think we are destroying taboos when we are striking at a vital principle, or we may vainly defend some dearly held standard which is but a taboo of our own. Exploration and adventure, dangerous at best, are productive only as supported by intelligence, good will, and experience. Where these exist, great tolerance is advisable. For determining their presence, we have no criterion but fallible human judgment."

BRIEF CHATS

It isn't every day that we get to hear a man speak who for seven years has been the Treasurer of the League of Nations. Sir Herbert Ames certainly did give us something to think about in his lecture on the FULFILLMENT OF THE COVENANT, in regard to the League of Nations coming into its own. His talk made most of us wonder why America is not in on the greatest of all international organizations. We feel as if we have had an inside peep on a Geneva conference.

We are giving you a chance to hear what other people think about our wonderful Alma Mater. Be sure you read the nice things that the Union-Recorder said about us in a recent issue. The article is EVER FORWARD. We always did think The Recorder a fine paper!

You can always expect good things to happen that pertain, directly or indirectly, to G. S. C. W. The members of the faculty are not the only ones making names for themselves out in the world. The "faculty wives" are also making fame. Their names frequently appear in regard to the various work here doing over the state.

How would you like to see what is perhaps the oldest rose bush in the state? We don't know whether to give you this hint or not, but if you whisper in Dr. Wynn's ear he might take you to his house to see "Katherine." You know, Dr. and Mrs. Wynn have about the most interesting back yard in the city to say the least!

We wonder why it is that people so like to gossip. It seems that everyone does it. All of which reminds us of something we read or heard somewhere one time. "There is so much that is bad in the best of us, and so much that is good in the worst of us, That it doesn't behoove any of us To talk about the rest of us." It does hit home, doesn't it?

We are not trying to give the Tea Room a free advertisement or anything like that, but its no secret that there have been some mighty contented looking folks coming out of there after "tea."

The commercial department seems to be getting a great deal of practical experience in stuffing—stuffing bulletins. There should be a large crowd of folks attending summer school if one can judge from the stacks of literature that are being sent out.

Isn't it great that Dr. Beeson has invited the Georgia Press Association to meet here next year? And won't we have fun if it does come! It will be just another feather added to our little brown hat.

It is too bad that the finance committee of the Y. W. C. A. is having such a pull collecting the second part of the budget. Everything went over so splendidly in the fall that it is a shame not to live up to the record made then. Nows the time for all good girls to back their "Y" up.

The "Beauty Special" will soon be starting for points of interest all over Georgia. And we hope that all of you will—well do the things that you have been wanting to do for a long time.

DOCTOR'S ACADEMY MEETS

Dr. and Mrs. George Harris Webber were hosts to the members of the Doctor's Academy at their home on the hill at the last meeting of the organization.

A most interesting program was given. Dr. Lindsley, head of the department of Chemistry at the college, read a paper entitled, "Great Chemistry." Dr. McGhee discussed "Contrast between French and American Universities. Dr. J. L. Beeson, president of the academy, presided during the meeting.

A delightful social half hour was enjoyed at the conclusion of the meeting.

DR. DANIELS READS POEMS AT KIWANIS MEETING

Dr. Francis Daniels, member of the G. S. C. W. faculty, read a number of poems of his own composition for the members of the Kiwanis club at a recent meeting. Dr. Daniels is one of the most gifted writers and speakers in the South and he is always an asset to any program.

QUOTED FROM PUBLICATIONS

Miss Decorra Adams, a member of the class of '28 is teaching in Swainsboro High School. She is faculty advisor for the Swainsboro Hi-Flyer, the High School Publication. The following is a clipping from the paper, a copy of which we received a short time ago.

Ten Good Rules of Life

- 1. Never put off until tomorrow what you ought to do today.
2. Never trouble others for what you can do yourself.
3. Never spend your money before you have it.
4. Never buy what you do not want because it's cheap.
5. Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst and cold.
6. We never repent of having eaten too little.
7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
8. How much pain those evils cost us that never happened.
9. Take things always by the smooth handle.
10. If angry, count ten before you speak; if very angry, count a hundred.

—THOMAS JEFFERSON.

TEA ROOM HAS RECORD CROWD

For the past few weeks the college Tea Room has been having crowded tables. The record was five hundred in one afternoon. The folks in the Tea Room certainly do deserve to be patronized for they have always worked hard to give the students good eats. You miss something good when you don't go to the Tea Room. Let's do a little more trading with folks on the campus; you can't find better "bargains" anywhere!

PLANS FOR SUMMER SCHOOL WELL UNDER WAY

The commercial department, under the supervision of Miss Barnett, has sent out thousands of summer school bulletins all over Georgia and surrounding states. From the response that has come in to the director of the summer session, Dean E. H. Scott, summer school at the Georgia State College for Women is going to be a great success. Professor O. A. Thaxton, who has charge of student activities, is making interesting plans to make the summer students have a good time for the six weeks that they will be here. The summer school will open June 10 and will close July 19.

NEW TRAFFIC LAWS FOR TENNIS COURTS NEEDED

Every morning there is a mad dash down the steps and into the gym. For several mornings I observed this and I thought that the practice for field day must have started. But this morning, I could stand the agony of uncertainty no longer, so I dashed down with the mob. I was unlike this herd in only one detail, I had no small slip of paper in my hand. I asked one girl what her slip was for but she ignored me and hurried on faster. Finally, I was stopped abruptly because all in front of me stopped. Then I wriggled my way to the front and such fights I have never witnessed. I, finally, saw what it was all about—the girls all had tennis slips in their hands and they were attempting to put them on the tennis board. For every space on the board there were about four slips—and, as you know, only one slip can go in a space. The fights were for the right to the spaces. So many girls have fought and argued over the question and so many hours have been wasted that the college will greatly appreciate any system of traffic advocated whereby more than one game of tennis can be played on a court at one time.

LITTLE KNOWN ASPECTS OF COLLEGE LIFE

now meets regularly on the first Monday of September of each year. The important thing done at this first meeting was to appoint a committee to lay down statutes for a world court. That was on this committee. Other nations joined and before the assembly was over there were representatives from forty-eight nations.

The second assembly was held in September 1921. At this assembly eleven regular judges and four substitute judges for the world court were elected. The court was officially opened at the Hague February 18, 1922.

At the third assembly in 1922 the question of disarmament came up but not much was accomplished because the nations did not feel secure enough to disarm.

At the fourth assembly a treaty of mutual assistance was agreed upon by England and France, some boundaries defined and the Corfu incident settled.

The fifth assembly in 1924 was the first to be attended by prime ministers. The questions of arbitration, security, and disarmament were again taken up.

At the sixth assembly the Locarno treaty was drawn up. England, France, Belgium, Germany, Czechoslovakia, and Finland met and drew up an agreement to make the center of Europe safe. Italy and Great Britain pledged to Germany that provided she came into the League they would help her if France attacked, pledged to France they would help her if Germany attacked.

At the seventh assembly Germany came into the League.

The eighth assembly gave rise to no spectacular incidents.

At the ninth assembly treaties were made between neighboring countries.

At the last assembly in 1929 a new spirit of confidence was felt in Geneva. The council had just held its fifty-seventh meeting and since it first began operating only twice had it not been able to reach an agreement.

Fifty-four nations belong to the League now. "The League of Nations today is not only an ideal, it is also a reality. It has stood the test of ten of the most trying years in human history. Some day we expect that it will become universal and thus increase to the maximum its power to render useful service to all the world."
