CLASS OFFICIALS FOR FIELD DAY NAMED

Inter-Class Debate To Be Held Saturday, April 30

Subject on Russia's Five Year Plan

"Resolved: That Russia's Five-Year Plan Threatens The Stability of The Whole World"—this is the subject of the inter-class debate to be held April 30 in the Richard B. Russell Auditorium at Georgia State College for Women.

The affirmative side of the debate will be upheld by the Senior Class and its sister Sophomore Class, while the Junior Class and its sister Freshman Class will uphold the negative side of the question.

The debaters chosen by their respective classes are: Senior—Mary Snow Johnson, Atlanta, Degree; Junior—Lavonia Newman, Brunswick, B. S. in Education; Sophomore—Christine Goodson, Dawson, A. B. Degree; and Freshman—Sara Stenbridge, Macon, Normal Diploma.

The debaters have been doing extensive reading in preparation of their papers and they have a thorough understanding of their subject with arguments pro and con.

The question that arises is whether or not the student body as a whole is as well informed as it should be on the Five-Year Plan of Russia. Just what is this plan?

"The Five-Year Plan of Russia is a child of communism. The plan for the whole of economic life in all resembles a budget which provides its manifestations. It decrees what is to be produced, how much, for what purposes, how production is disposed of, what prices, where marketed, what is to become of children as they grow up and what they are to consume.

"The Five-Year Plan urges forward in Russia, industrialization and collectivization of agriculture. The working of the plan is carried out by a dictator. The present dictator of Russia is Stalin.

"Someone has said that the mind that can comprehend the whole of the Five-Year Plan is as rare as the mind of Professor Einstein."

There are numerous books in the

MISS FRANCES RAY WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Frances Ray, of Columbus, Georgia, now a student of the Georgia State College for Women, received a scholarship from William and Mary College of Social Work, at Williamsburg, Virginia, recently. She will enter the college in September, for graduate work. She expects to receive her Master's degree in June of next year, after which she will do active work in the social field.

Students to Attend "Y" Conference

Twenty-one G. S. C. W. students attended the state Y. W. C. A.-Y. M. C. A. conference held last weekend at Camp Wilkins in Athens, Ga. The girls left Milledgeville immediately after lunch Friday afternoon and returned Sunday night on a bus chartered for the occasion.

The purpose of the conference was for a general orientation in individual college students that they might carry back new life and inspiration to their campuses. As Dr. Soule, president of the Georgia Agricultural College, stated in his welcome address, "The conference was a filling station where young people came to be refilled with stimulating ideas for their various campus activities."

"God, in Our Modern World," was the theme of the conference. Dr. Ronald Tamblin of Greensboro, N. C., gave the first talk Friday night on: "God, A Reality in This Modern World." Saturday morning he talked on: "God, a Possibility in This Modern World." In each of his talks Dr. Tamblin broke away from the conservative, Puritanical conception of God. He emphasized the fact that each one needed to think out for himself just what God expected of

RALPH T. JONES TO DELIVER BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS

Ralph T. Jones, state news editor of the Atlanta Constitution, will deliver the baccalaureate address to the graduates of the Georgia State College for Women on May 30, Dr. J. L. Beeson has announced. Mr. Jones is one of the best-known newspaper men of the South and is a speaker of eloquence and force.

For the second year in succession a newspaper man has been selected to deliver the literary address at the graduating exercises at the woman's college. Dan G. Bickers, of the Savannah Press, was the speaker last year.

The commencement program at the college will begin on May 28 when class day exercises will be held. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, of Atlanta, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon on May 29.

Approximately 150 young women will receive their degrees.

COLONNADE STAFF POSTPONES PLAY

The Colonnade Staff has decided to postpone the presentation of "Sphagetti Vendetti," which was to have been given around the first of May. Change in the personnel of the staff and the need for attention to more pressing matters were the causes for the decision.

Pauline Reynold's Article Published In England

When Pauline Reynolds, Hawkinsville, Georgia, a Junior at Georgia State College for Women, wrote a feature story in her journalism class she did not know she was to be confronted with so much publicity—a publicity that "continues to operate."

The article that seems to have made Miss Reynolds "famous overnight" was one in which she told about a chicken with a "reverse gear." This chicken, although sounding like one of Ripley's "Believe It Or Nots," is a real alive chicken, owned by Milledgeville people. This odd hen can walk or run backwards and Miss Reynolds had often watched, from her room window, the remarkable feat of this chicken.

When an assignment in her journalism class called for a feature story Miss Reynolds wrote one telling about this chicken. That feature story was published in the Colonnade, the school paper.

Then, the article went practically all over the United States as an Associated Press article. Pathe News sent a man to Milledgeville to in-

Noa, Smith, Fort, Cowart To Lead Respective Classes

As is the custom at G. S. C., a Field Day, in which the different classes compete for honors, will be held sometime in May. Preparations for the big event of the year are being entered upon with enthusiasm. The classes have chosen some of their Field Day officials and started the process of organization.

From the Freshman class the following officers have been selected: Captain, Emeline Noa; business manager, Jessie Anton; decorating committee, Virginia Peacock, chairman, Genevieve Thompson, Virginia Thomas, Julia Baily, Frances Holsenbeck, and Frances Knox. The remaining officers will be chosen at a later date.

The results of the Sophomore election were as follows: Captain, Dot Smith; cheer leaders, Amelie Burrus and Sue Mansfield; song leaders, Marie Parker and Louise Jeanes; decorating committee, Dot Fugitt, chairman, Virginia Tanner, Emily Renfro and Bennice Johnson.

The Juniors have also selected their leaders. Mary Fort was chosen captain; while Rebecca Torbert was chairman of decoration committee. Elizabeth Smith was elected cheer leader and Anne Grimes as song leader; Elizabeth Cowart was chosen senior captain.

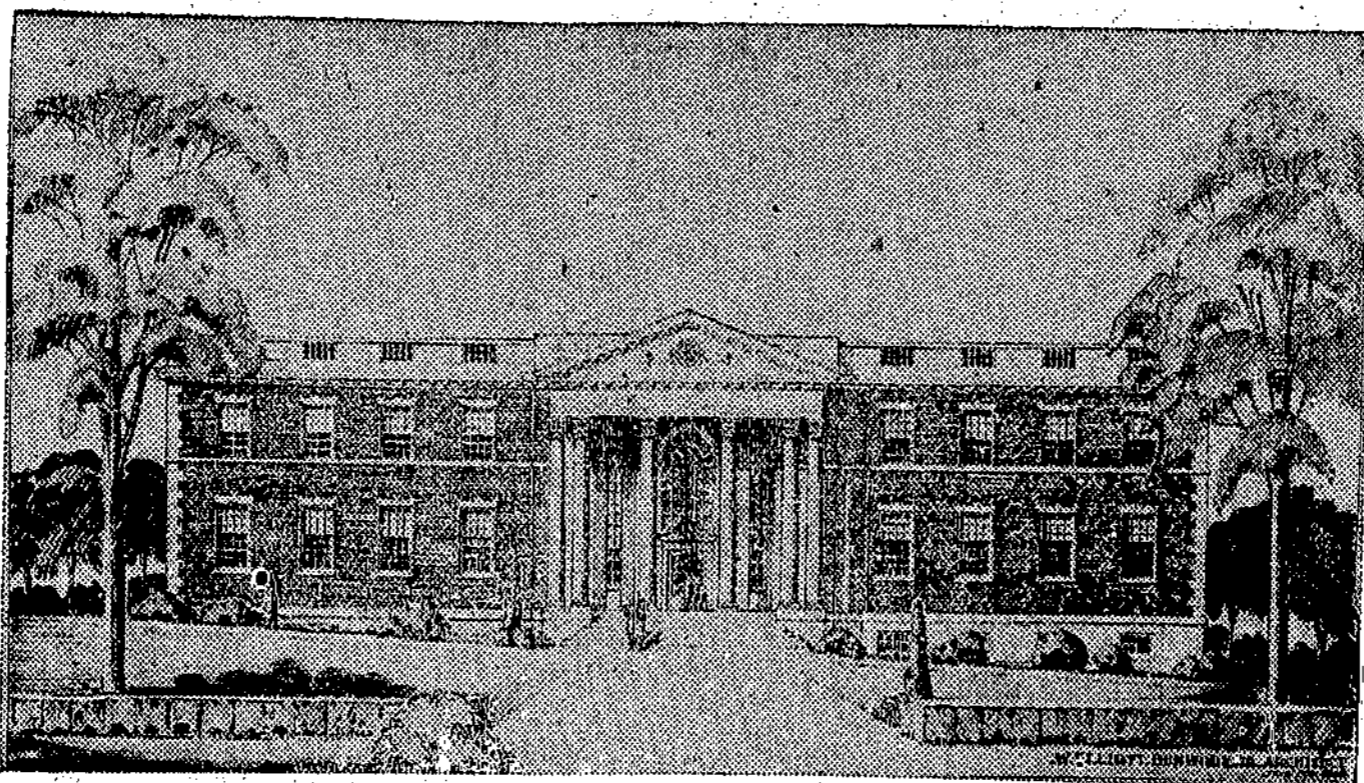

Miss Anna E. Miller, head of the Physical Education Department, stated that the theme of Field Day is to be an interpretation depicting man's quest through the age in regard to good life in the social upward climb.

The classes have entered wholeheartedly into plans for the coming event and a great interest is being shown. Judging from the favorable indications, Field Day this year is not lacking in spirit and promises to be the best ever held at G. S. C. W.

The students of G. S. C. W. will be given a half holiday Tuesday, May 26, in observance of Memorial Day. The morning schedule will be as usual, but there will be no afternoon classes.

A committee composed of Dr. Wynn, Miss Kathryn Scott, Miss Thrash, Dr. Daniels, and Dr. Scott, with the class presidents will represent G. S. C. W. at the memorial exercises which will be held Tuesday afternoon in the Milledgeville cemetery to pay tribute to the soldiers of the confederacy and to Dr. Joseph Harris Chappell, the first president of the college, and Dr. Marvin M. Parks, the second president.

Work on Foundation For New Library At G. S. C. W., Started Tuesday

ARCHITECTURE BY WING OF G. S. C. W. LIBRARY

Work was started Tuesday morning on the new fifty thousand dollar library building to be erected on the campus of the Georgia State College for Women with the hope that the building will be finished in the late summer and ready for use next fall.

A score of men were put to work laying out the side of the building and digging the foundation. An average of thirty men will be employed during the construction of the building.

Constructed of red brick with a lime stone trimming, the building will be in keeping with other buildings on the campus in architectural design. Corinthian columns will be used on the front with a porch in front. The building will be two stories in height and will face west on the corner of Montgomery and Clark streets. A wing in which the book stacks will be housed will be on the rear of the building.

Dr. J. L. Beeson, L. S. Fowler and M. S. Bell are the building committee named by the Board of Regents to direct the construction.

The Boy Scouts have set up as one of their objectives: "Do a good turn for somebody every day." This is a good working principle, for all of us. I have been wondering what this would be the result, if each of us, would, this week do a good turn for someone each day. This good turn may not only be some material thing, but may be one of those little courtesies that oil the machinery of life and thus "make life most worth living."

May I give my fellow student or associate a lift with his burden? At the close of each day during the week, let my benediction be a kindly act done. "Each for all and all for each," the oath of the Three Musketeers, keeps us ever mindful that in thoughtful co-operation is strength. A two fold cord is strong, but a three fold cord is not easily broken.

"Tis only a half truth the poet has sung. Of the house by the side of the way; Our master had neither a house nor a home, But he walked with the crowd day by day, And when I think, when I read of the poets desire.

That a house by the road would be good, But service is found in its tenderest form, When we walk with the crowd in the road."

A sign on the Ennis Hall bulletin board suggested this idea for an editorial. Isn't it queer that no matter how much one is told at charm school, or how much is literally "drilled into one" by interesting people, that some girls are still running around here in skirts that seem in the very last stages of existence, and hose that seem beyond them?

It doesn't matter so much about impressions one is making on other people. Of course, it's unpleasant and may have an undesirable influence when one starts out to get a job. But putting all that aside there is left the impression one is making on one's self. Yes, old as that may sound, it is true. One's self is a real living personality, and being so it cannot but be impressed by the appearance of one. There is a certain loss of self respect when one appears at breakfast half-dressed; hair mussed up, no make up. There is a definite loss of that something that keeps one feeling fit, when one gets to the place of not caring. And it is the little things that make one stand out in a uniform school as a person one would like to know.

If it were not for habit the world would be a dreadful hub-hub of trying to remember things. But habits that one may fall into, of carelessness in personal appearance, are better never learned. It is so small a task to wear well-polished shoes, neatly pressed skirts, clean shirts, and to flatter the face with a touch, just a subtle touch, of make-up; and yet it is so vital a necessity that one does so if one wishes to reach a higher, finer way of living.

You bought a new lipstick just the other day when the old one had been worn down to the metal, didn't you? You had your shoes half-soled, the heels built up, and taps put on so your old oxfords looked nearly new, didn't you? Last Saturday you took the morning off cleaning out your trunk; you threw away all those old letters, magazines, and worthless things that only a few months ago you treasured with your life.

Have you ever taken stock of your ideas? Ever cleaned any of them out and taken on some new ones?—illusions, that you once thought precious now mere farces—not even fit for the waste basket? What about your habits? "I have been doing it like this all these years. It is the best way and I'm going to try no other!" (with a stamp of the foot).

Well, it is time you had spring cleaning—way passed time in fact.

That pet theory of yours about "blue" days—you think they are necessary things. You indulge in their luxury and just have the best time feeling sorry for yourself and writing homesick letters. How about turning on your own sun lamp if the sun is not shining into those dark depths. The switch may be on the opposite wall but it will not hurt you to walk over to it.

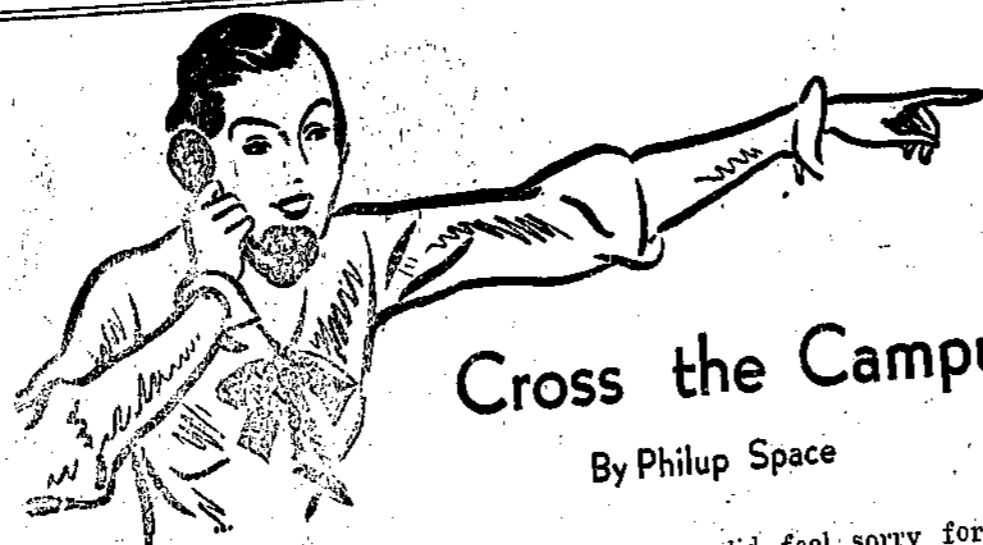

You have been going to the library on Monday afternoon to read your history references when the whole school seemed to be doing the same thing. In the morning, go at eight, read till time for nine o'clock class. You didn't finish? Go again the following morning. Having finished that job, read the day's newspapers—all smooth and new, pappy-smelling—before they are frazzled.

You sleep until the whistle blows. Get up at seven just for fun, dash cold water on your face, comb your hair. (Mrs. Hall will be pleasantly surprised). Take a turn around the campus. Maybe you'll have time to walk, out to see the "Ag" gardens behind the tennis courts. They are so smooth and damp with the smell of night leaving them—but there are "other" worms to turn.

Maybe you haven't been to town this week. Go. Buy a magazine that the old home town has never seen. Send it to a lonesome friend there. You have been to town every day you possibly could? See how it feels not to gad up and down the streets. Instead, go over to the hospital and take Kat some crabapple blossoms you got on the walk the other day.

All you have been reading lately is some light stuff of Temple Bailey's—Try Dorothy Canfield. She'll open your eyes, but that's what you want—to see how the other half lives.

You've been a staunch Democrat all these years; try being a Republican just a little while and see how it feels. It won't hurt. Don't forget—there are three sides to everything: yours, your roommate's and the right!

Cross the Campus

By Philip Space

Dear People;

Tsk! Tsk! It isn't nice to point! But it happens in the best of families.

You can talk all you want to about exclusive clubs, but you just ought to see a G. S. C. Dorm. Why a man couldn't walk thru there with an army of 10,000. Somebody says, "No, There wouldn't be room." But no' kiddin'. And just let a town girl try to get in Exclusive, I mean! "Eddie" Guest" doesn't see any poetry in a monkey. But after all it takes a butcher to see a barbecue sandwich in a pig.

They're certainly getting the work done on the new lib. Boy, there's no lame duck atmosphere about that idea. But I guess an idea ought to thrive around here. The soil hasn't been exhausted.

You heard the one about the prof who walked into his class and announced that the lesson concerned prevarication, didn't you? He asked the class how many had read the 35th chapter in the text? Well the class raised its hands one-mindedly. "Good," said the prof. "You're the very ones I wish to speak to. There is no 35th chapter."

Do you know what they call a man at G. S. C.? "Man", of course. Somebody says a miracle. I'd say a mistake. Everybody to his own opinion

—I always did feel sorry for the cow.

You know, if I just had some witty room-mates, I mean ones who'd give me publishable wit, I'd have an easy job being columnist. Or if I could get into a new run of courses maybe I could pick up some new jokes. Nope I didn't say I wanted new room-mates.

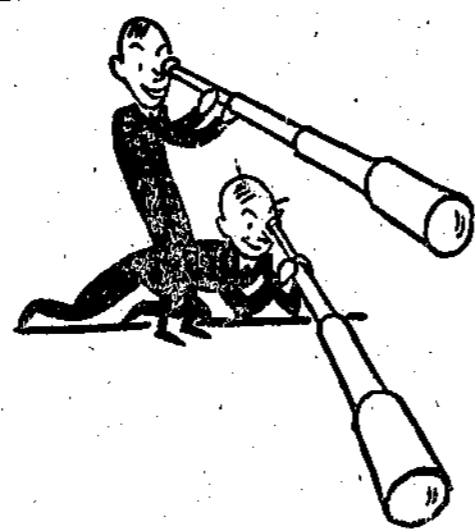

Seems to me we might use some of the "Thank You" slips received by many of the hopeful, ambitious, and bum writers of the campus, to use as a pink one. Nope, Mary Snow, I have more, blue ones now than I can use.

The depression's over! Yeah, Over the whole town!

Everybody's asking me what I'm going out for field day. Oh, I'm going out for about two hours. And if anybody wants to know the policy of this paper, it's neutral—till we find out who wins.

I liked the ads this week, especially those with lots of space. We're glad to welcome some new ones to the ranks. What we need to do now is get a few of the drug stores to print names for free ice-cream.

As ever,
Truly nobody's,
PHILIP SPACE.

Confessions

We would like to know why a certain "berry" in Ennis is so joyfully anticipating the arrival of Friday April 22? We think it's one of those salesmen stories.

Have you heard about that sophomore in Bell Annex who has struggled through so many courses on the campus that were not cinch courses? She's a terrible girl—uh huh believe it or not we saw her going to English Lit last Monday morning.

Now we didn't get away to Wilkins last week-end but we have seen a number who did. Judging from the sleepy eyes and woo-begone expressions on some faces we think those appearances demand an explanation.

We wonder why a certain little girl "cross campus" who is very fond of History and Spanish, attempted to take all the curl from her hair the other day by putting olive oil on it.

We are glad we don't have many classes on the side of the building where the library is under construction. Just a little sisterly (?) tip—tion. In this laxy weather it is so much fun to look out of the window and watch the men dig away than to force your mind to listen to what is being said in the classroom.

Did you notice how many ads were in the paper last week? We knew that you would guess it—we had a hard time getting them even if we were doing nothing but chaperoning. The thing for you to do is to patronize those advertisers. Perhaps we are getting a little away from the subject which we believe, is confessions.

We have heard of some terrible quarrels with roommates and so forth, but we must admit that worse has come to worse when as a result of a desperate or rather a trifling dispute one of the poor victims was forced to change her lodging quarters. We heard that her reason was a weak heart. Don't mention it but we certainly don't agree with her. We would say that if she has weak anything she should have weak lungs from all that hog calling or whatever it is she does in the halls during speak period at night.

You remember the little story—stop me if you have heard it before—as I was going to say—about the poor little kitty better known as Diphtheria? Of course that is stale news but we have a small addition to make. We heard that the students in that Biology class have started calling it "Dippy" for short. From all the squeals, exclamations and tales which come forth from that class we would say that those girls have certainly gone "Dippy."

In conclusion please let us emphasize the importance of patronizing our advertisers. Of course that's just a little sisterly (?) tip—

HOW TO PASS A COURSE WITHOUT STUDYING AT ALL

There are ways and ways of getting desired results in anything undertaken, but when the easiest and most convenient way is discovered, real achievement has been reached. For the benefit of Freshmen, who have not yet found a way to pass a course with the least output of actual work, the following suggestions are offered:

1. If possible get a front seat and put the most intelligent expression on your face that can be held for fifty minutes.
2. Agree emphatically with everything the instructor says, or at least be easy to convince.
3. Laugh at all the instructor's jokes, even though it be the fifth time you've had to laugh.
4. Ask questions on the subject for discussion, if you can remember the subject; if not, ask about something in which the instructor is interested. This often leads to a forty-minute monologue by the teacher.
5. Carry at least four books to class. A large dictionary, also, should make some impression.
6. Never make the mistake of saying, "I don't know," to a question. A fit of coughing or sneezing will usually "tide you over."

If, after these rules are applied, you are still in doubt as to your grade, you can always get sick on test day and get the questions from your roommate.

RECEIVE HIGH RECOGNITION COLLEGE FACULTY MEMBERS

The first edition of the Biographical Directory—Leaders in Education edited by J. McKeen Cattell is just off the press and carries the biographies of seven members of the faculty of the Georgia State College for Women. They are: Dr. Jasper Luther Beeson, President; Dr. Euri Belle Bolton; Dr. Thomas Burton Meadows, and Dr. George Harris Webber, Department of Education and Psychology; Dr. Francis Potter Daniels, Department of Foreign Languages; Dr. Edwin Hobart Scott, Dean of Teacher's College; and Professor Osceola A. Thaxton, Department of Rural Education and Supervision.

The preface makes the following statement as to the purpose of the volume: "This book follows the lines of 'American men of Science: A Biographical Directory,' which was a by-product of the weekly journal Science, as 'Leaders in Education' is a by-product of 'School and Society.'"

VESPERS THURSDAY, APRIL 21, 1932

A report of the Camp Wilkins Conference was given at vespers Thursday night by the girls who were sent there as delegates from G. S. C. W.

The program was opened with a short introduction by Vera Hunt. She explained the purpose of the conference and gave a summary of the entire week-end. After the girls sang "Climbing Jacob's Ladder", Lillian Dillard described the setting of Camp Wilkins. The social contacts made there were told by Frances Knox. Christine Goodson talked on the interest groups and their leaders. Next, Frances Holter gave an account of the many features at Wilkins. Margaret K. Smith, gave a short review of the main talks of the conference. The program ended with the entire congregation singing one verse of "Day Is Dying In The West."

The recent meeting in Macon of the Modern Foreign Language Division of the Georgia Education Association was the finest on record. One of the outstanding features was the informal luncheon at the Hotel Lanier with M. Charles Lorida, French Consul of Atlanta, as the guest of honor. Dr. Juanita H. Floyd, president of the group, served as toastmaster. Monsieur Lorida proved to be a most delightful speaker and displayed the usual French "esprit" in a very charming manner.

The regular meeting in the afternoon had the largest attendance in the history of the organization. Some of the most prominent teachers of the state appeared on the program, representing the French, Spanish, and German languages. Professor Robert M. Strozzer of Georgia State College for men at Tifton was elected president for the coming year. Mrs. Carolyn F. McCord of Lanier High School for Boys in Macon, vice-president, and Miss

TEN RULES FOR SUCCESS

8. Take an active interest in public affairs.
9. Meet your fellow man frankly. You don't have to go through business armed to the teeth.

DR. W. T. WYNN'S BOOK ON SOUTHERN LITERATURE JUST OFF THE PRESS

Dean William T. Wynn has received from the publishers, Prentice-Hall, Inc., of New York, a copy of his new book, "Southern Literature; Selections and Biographies." This book will be the text used in Dr. Wynn's new course in southern literature during summer school session.

The volume of 534 pages is beautifully bound in dark blue leather with a moire effect.

Following a series of introductory articles the material is divided into thirteen parts. They are named as follows: The South, Southern States, Poets Laureate, Oratory, Southern Women, Humorists, The Negro, Religion, Nature, Miscellaneous, Personal Sketches, and Biographies. With an explanatory paragraph at the first of each division Dr. Wynn follows up with selections from Southern writings exemplary of the subject.

In a concise but fitting preface the editor states his purpose in publishing the book and in a word explains why many people have failed to see justly. One truly feels after reading his unbiased statements that "To be an American is truly greater than to be a Southerner."

The introduction consists of an editorial on Southern Literature from the Nashville Tennessean and articles by Harry Stillwell Edwards and Lillian Shearouse.

Although the group of biographies represents a great amount of research and ingenious handling it would not be doing the author nor his book justice to alienate that part and call it the best or the most outstanding. The collection, with the editor's personal touch added, has given the college and the people of the United States the essence of southern literature.

Carolyn Eakes of Griffin High School was re-elected secretary.

At the close of the meeting a rising vote of thanks was extended to the retiring president, Dr. Juanita H. Floyd, for her excellent leadership and untiring efforts in making the meeting so great a success.

ADMIRAL BYRD MADE HONORARY PRESIDENT OF PI GAMMA MU

Winfield, Kans., April 20—The election of Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, of Boston, Mass., as Honorary National President of the National Social Science Honor Society, Pi Gamma Mu, Inc., was announced here today by Dr. Leroy Allen, Dean of Southwestern College and Executive Secretary of that organization. Admiral Byrd's election was authorized by the third national convention of Pi Gamma Mu which met at New Orleans, Dec. 28-31, and has just been consummated by formal vote of the National Board of Trustees and acceptance of the office by Admiral Byrd.

Its national president is Dr. Charles A. Ellwood, the distinguished sociologist, of Duke University. The other national officers are: Dr. George Harris Webber of Georgia State College, Dr. Gordon S. Watkins of the University of California at Los Angeles, and Dr. S. Howard Patterson of the University of Pennsylvania.

Admiral Byrd was chosen Honorary President because of his well known interest in social science and its application to social problems. He became a member of Pi Gamma Mu in 1927 and in 1929 was appointed a member of the National Advisory Council.

In 1928 Admiral Byrd carried with him on his expedition to the Antarctic the blue and white checkerboard flag of the society, each square representing a chapter and the whole symbolizing the checkered career of mankind and the intricacy of social problems.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE DIVISION OF G. E. A. MEETS

A unique and interesting opportunity for displaying skill and originality, was afforded the students at the Georgia State College for Women on Saturday April 9, when they were invited to suggest titles for the two unnamed plays which were presented in the college auditorium on that evening.

The plays, each one act in length were written and directed by Mrs. Nellie Womack Hines and presented under the auspices of the college "Y".

Students submitted titles for each of the plays at chapel exercises, and on Tuesday April 19, winners were announced.

For the first play, a serious type portraying a wife who loved the finer beauties of life, and a husband who misunderstood, the title "Hyacinths and Roasting Ears," submitted by Marie Parker and Margaret Story was chosen.

"Bless My Soul," suggested by Dorothy Allen and Sue Standard, was selected for the second play, a light, comical type, portraying two families, one of which got up on time on Sunday morning, and the other which slept too late.

These winners were presented copies of Mrs. Hines's book of poems "Home Keeping Hearts," and four copies each, of her printed songs. Besides these, two members from

WE WONDER

A diamond ring may have more uses than as an index to a title.

Many years ago, two girls attending "G. N. and I." used a diamond ring to sketch a bit of romance upon a window pane. On a window of Ennis Hall Dining Hall, indelibly scratched is "Walter Cassels, Fri. May 1, 1903." Higher up on the same pane is seen "Exa & Sam." Another window pane bears the inscriptions "Exa Woodruff" and "Exa & Laura."

The alumnae records disclose the fact that on the class roll of 1903, there appeared the name of Exa Woodruff, Porterdale, Georgia, now Mrs. Douglas Rumble of Emory University. The "Laura" was presumably Laura Strickland who is now married and living in Greenville, Georgia.

The search proved disappointing, however, when Mrs. Walter Cassels could be found and nothing more of Sam. But it is always the privilege of a woman to change her mind.

Of course no good story has any business ending as the above, leaving poor Sam and Walter out in the cold, but we did not know exactly how it should be arranged since we are no competitors of Cupid in "fixing up matters of the heart," until Mrs. Martin came to the rescue. She certainly did things for us. Personally our imagination is good and we had rather think of all the nice things that could have happened to Walter and Sam, but disillusion will come in the best of regulated families. But we will tell you the sad story and let you draw your own conclusions.—Walter Cassels is a girl!!! Well at least if Mrs. Martin doesn't beat us to it again, we can still build our fairy stories around Sam.

I cut my class and went to town With many a glance behind, For fear some queer authority My cutting class, would find.

When safely out of campus's sight I heaved a heavy sigh, For I was cutting class that day And I was getting by.

While thru the city streets I strolled Enjoying well my fling, I saw my Prof four shops ahead Doing the very same 'thing.

MRS. P. CHESNEY TO SPEAK

Mrs. P. Chesney, chairman of Better Films Committee, of Macon, will speak to the members of the Child Study Group of Milledgeville on "Better Films for Children," in the Peabody Auditorium, Friday at 3:30. Mrs. Chesney will bring with her, two other members of her group.

each of the four college classes were given copies of the poem book for making the best suggestion for the plays, from their classes. They were: Freshmen: Virginia Peacock, Lucile Jones; Sophomores, Elvia Urén; Marie Parker; Juniors, Adrienne Wills, Elizabeth McKoon; Seniors, Dorothy Allen, and Theo Hotch.

library at the convenience of those who wish further information on the the Five-Year Plan of Russia. Some of these books are: "The Challenge of Russia" by Sherwood Eddy, "Russia's Economic Conditions" by Arthur Feiler, "The Russian Experiment" by Arthur Feiler, and "New Russia's Primer" by M. Ilin, a Russian.

The magazines containing interesting material on the plan are: "American Mercury," "Forum," "American," "Harpers," "The Fortune," "The Nation," "The New Republic," "Current History," and "The Literary Digest." The March issue of "The Fortune" has a very good article on the plan.

The inter-class debate at the Georgia State College for Women is sponsored by the Christian World Education Committee of the Y. W. C. A.

The subjects chosen for these debates are one of vital importance at the present day. The judges are persons who are interested in the subject and who are capable of rendering a just decision.

The debate this April will be the fourth of its kind to have been held at the Georgia State College for Women and it is being looked forward to with much anticipation.

each; then get busy and do it. His clear, forceable delivery and his practical thinking rendered his messages vital and important.

Dr. Ashby Jones of Atlanta and St. Louis also gave two inspiring talks. In "How Can A Negro Believe in God," and "The Modern Quest for God," he showed the difficulty that confronts the Negro in his search for God. One of Dr. Jones' strong points was that the social and economic problems of the South would continue until the white man could help the negro raise his living conditions.

Miss Vera Hunt, of G. S. C. W., as president of the conference, introduced the leaders of the meeting. Dean Floyd Fields of Georgia Tech was there and took charge of the fraternity interest group. Mr. Claude Nelson, Southern Regional Secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Miss Carrie Meares, Southern Regional Secretary of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Elizabeth Smith, her assistant; Miss Mary Moss, Y. W. C. A. Secretary at G. S. C. W.; and Miss Mary Banks, Assistant Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at the University of Georgia were the others who led interest groups.

As Camp Wilkins was just a step toward Blue Ridge, Blue Ridge was featured by a skit, posters, talks, and personal impressions.

Another interesting feature of Wilkins was the daily newspaper, "We Tell 'Em". This newspaper was the cherry 'Good Morning' that greeted each delegate at breakfast, and gave the interesting bits of news, gossip, and announcements.

Besides the social contacts made through the reception at Soule Hall Friday night and the mock possum hunt Saturday afternoon, the conference was delightfully entertained by the Tech 'Y' Singers under investigate the matter.

All of this was exciting. However, things began to settle down to normal again, when up pops the news that the article has been published in an English paper.

The clipping was sent to the mayor of Milledgeville by Miss Lucy Milledge of Weymouth, Dorset, England. Miss Milledge had seen the article and being interested in collecting data on her family tree, she particularly noticed the mention of Milledgeville, a town bearing her name.

Miss Milledge wrote a letter inquiring how Milledgeville received its name. In this letter she enclosed the clipping about the chicken with the "reverse gear."

The original article of Miss Reynolds is somewhat changed and here is how it appeared in the paper at Dorset, England:

Chicken's "Reverse Gear"

"It ought to have happened in Detroit, the motor city, but it was in Milledgeville, Georgia, that a hen with a "reverse gear" has been found.

The discovery is vouched for by students of the Georgia State College for Women, who learned that the hen can walk either backward or forward.

At feeding time, when the fleetest fowl gets the most, this hen goes into "reverse" and makes better speed that way than by going forward."

It will be interesting to note Dr. Beeson's reply to Miss Milledge concerning the man for whom Milledgeville was named.

"The town of Milledgeville was named for John Milledge who was at that time Governor of the State of Georgia. John Milledge was born in Savannah, Georgia, in 1757. His ancestors came to Georgia with General James Edward Oglethorpe who founded this State. I do not know from what part of England they came, but this is evidence that his ancestry is English.

John Milledge was a soldier and a statesman and one of the most patriotic and useful citizens Georgia has produced. He served in the State Legislature, was Governor of the State from 1802-1806, and was both a Representative and Senator from Georgia in the United States Congress. He was one of the men who helped to establish the State University, and he made a large donation in money to its establishment."

Thus we see that Miss Reynold's feature story, by appearing in the English paper, might help Miss Milledge in obtaining much-valued material on her family tree.

SPRING IS HERE

Spring is here, birds' songs the music;
To which flowers dance, Violets and lilies

Vie for honors from the fickle sun,
Who smiles on them, then flirts with a passing cloud.

Spring is here, cocks crowd the music,
Which awakens mortals, Conscience and desire

Vie for decision in dreary hearts,
Whose beats repeat,
Sleep—sleep—sleep.
