Many State Legislators Are Visitors To College

Many Students To Inauguration

Over Hundred From G. S. C. W. Make Thrilling Journey to Nation's Capitol

With a rousing send off by the girls who were brave enough to venture out in the biting March wind on Thursday morning, the hundred and five G. S. C. W. representatives to the thirty-first inauguration boarded the train for Washington.

According to schedule the party arrived in Augusta about noon and had lunch, and changed to the Pullman cars which carried them straight into the capital city. They arrived there early Friday morning and started on a whirl_wind sight-seeing tou which carried them to the Capitol building where they had a special permission to observe the nation's solons at work.

·Washington's Monument was given due inspection by the party as well as the Lincoln Memorial, the Library of Congress, Mount Vernon, Arlington, and other interesting places.

One of the features of the trip was a tour through the United States mint under the guidance of a special director.

Friday night the entertainment was varied. Some girls were entertained at the Annapolis dance while others attended a few shows.

The inauguration, the highspot of the trip, was inspiring to the girls not only for the fact that they were witnessing the inauguration of the future president but also for the fact that they were mingling with the na_ tions great in a multitude far greater than most of the girls had ever seen assembled.

After the inauguration the time was spent in making the last minute tours of the not-tobe-missed places.

The train left Washington earin Milledgeville Monday morning A number of town people and former students also made the ump with the girls.

Health Department Holds Exhibit at Tea

The Health Department was excellently represented at the G. S. C. W. exhibit in the Rhodes Memorial Hall in Atlanta Sunday afternoon when the alumnae of the college held open house there. Mrs. Wooten took her pictures showing various activities of the Health Club which were made at Government Square Park at its last meeting.

At this time "Ghosts," a play written by former G. S. C. students, with its setting in a college room at a Sunday night feast, was given by members of the cluberaft class, directed by Miss Frances Thaxton, The characters were: Marie Garriett, Edna Mimms, Sara Stembridge, Wilma Proctor, Elizabeth McLendon, lantha Osborne.

Student Writes Constitution Feature

Another G. S. C. W. student has received recognition through her writing. Virginia Tanner had a most interesting story, "Cam_ pus Leaders in Georgia" featured in the Sunday edition of the Atlanta Constitution on February 26.

The story presented the students holding the highest office at G. S. C. W., Agnes Scott, Mer. cer, Tech, Georgia, Shorter, Wesleyan, Emory, Oglethorpe, Bessie Tift, G. S. W. C., and G. S.

Margaret K. Smith was featur_ ed for this college as presidence of the Y. W. C. A. Photographs were also shown of every representative.

Welcome Guests

The college has been signally honored and enlightened by the visit of some of the legislators of Georgia. As a result of the visit we feel that they know us and ou school better and that we understand ther and their work better.

In order to help G. S. C. W. and the other state institutions to the best advantage, the General Assembly should be familiarized with their condition by first_hand knowledge as well as by abstract reports. It is hoped that they were encouraged in their present discouraging work by the fine management poignant needs.

The students should have been, and undoubtedly were, awakened to the vital is to aiding our lawmakers and to the important question of voting intelligently in the future.

L'ACOLLA MEMBER WRITES ON HALES

Second Historical Sketch by Miss O'Kelly Appears in Constitution.

The second of a series of articles by Miss Billie O'Kelley anpeared in the Atlanta Constitu tion February 26. This article is concerned with interesting sidelights in the life of Stephen Hales, a leading member of the Board of Trustees under whose direction the colony of Georgia was founded.

This, along with the former article on her discovery, of the exact date of Oglethorp's birth, have been two outstanding accomplishments by Miss O'Kelley on her research work in London last summer. G. S. C. W. feels justly proud of her and her schol arly work.

The following are extracts from the longer story:

Students of Georgia history have heard of some of these trustees and are aware the outstanding person were doctors of divinity and of whom we have all too little written in Georgia. One of them was Stephen Hales, D. D. (1677-1761,) "crea_ ted" in 1733 by the University of Oxford, and was for 51 years rector of St. Mary's church at Teddington, near London. Another, and interesting Georgia trus_ tee, was John Burton, D. D., theological and classical scholar, a student of Corpus Christi College and Oxford University also. He was, however, only a bachelor of divinity when elected as trustee of Georgia, John Burton, D. D., is characterized as a "man of great learning."

Another trustee of Georgia worthy of study is Richard Bun dy, D. D., divine and translator, educated at Christ church, Ox-

Adams Anderson (1692-1765), gentleman: English historian of commerce, "preached on the side when the need arose."

Arthur Eedford, M. A. (1668 1745), "busied himself with the many important questions." He waged a crusade against the "acting stage," and felt that his service to God found expression in denouncing the evils of his age of which the stage and its patrons were chiefcst. He especially felt that the stage was condemn_ ing the nobility and that the country could expect to "go bad" if the leaders participated in such "ridiculous an outlandish Consliness."

Thomas Coram (1667-1751), philanthropist, was not an "orthodox minister" but "took care of needy children and therefore might be considered a minister of God's children."

John (Lord Viscount) Percival, first earl of Egmont, the first president of the trustees, earl of Shaftsbury, the third earl it was who was a trustee of Georgia.

In adition to being a minister of the gospel, Stephen Hales was a physiologist and inventor of no mean repute. There was a baronetcy in the family, which although now extinct, proves the standing of the family.

At the age of 19, Stephen entered Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, as a pensioner, June 19, 1696, and was "admitted a fellow 1702_03." The M. A. degree was conferred on him in 1703, and the bachelor of divinity in 1711. It was in 1733 that Stephen Hales was created doctor of divinity by diploma of the University of Oxford, and it was the same year that he was elect-

According to Frances Darwin: Hales' work falls into two main classes, (1) physiological and chemical, and (2) suggestions on matters connected with health, agriculture, etc.

Some writers think his book, "Startical Elsays," is his best work dealing chiefly with botani_ cal and animal physiology. The book was well received and was translated into Prench. German. Dutch and Italian, and was published largely from essays read before the Royal Society.

It is said that Frederick, Prince of Wales, father of George III, was fond of surprising males in his laboratory at Teddington. When the prince died, there was some talk of making Hales (ac_ cording to Liorace Walpore) tu tor to the young prince. He did not receive the appointment, however, but in 1751 he was chosen clerk of the closet to the princess-dowager and chaplain to the prince, her son, Frincess Augus_ ta, as the princess_dowager is properly called, retained a regard for Stephen tiales, for she put a monument to him in Westminster Abbey, a copy after a work by Wilton,

Col. Sam Wilkes

Praises Pageant

"Most Engaging Entertainment Eye Ever Witnessed," Says Kaiiroad Ufficial.

Monday of last week Col. Sam W. Wilkes and Mrs. Wilkes came down from Atlanta especially to witness "The Mad Genius," fouract drama pageant which was staged in the auditorium of the Georgia State College for Women, under the direction of Dr. Amanda Johnson, head of the History department of the institution. Col. Wilkes, who himself has been the possesor of a large number of friends in Milledge ville for a number of years, and Mrs. Wilkes came here on this occasion largely at the request of Mr. Chas. Wickersham, president and general manager of the Georgia Railroad. Col. Wilkes asserted that "Mr. Wickersham bas always manifested great interest in Milledgeville and your wonderful girls' college and he insisted that Mrs. Wilkes and I came down here and pay our res_ pects to the efficient managers of this great institution."

Since Col. and Mrs. Wilkes re_ turned to Atlanta, Col. Wilkes has written The Times and expressed himself as having been much pleased to meet many "old friends" here, after an absence

Among many out-of_town visitors, Col. and Mrs. Wilkes witnessed the first night's staging of "The Mad Genius" Monday night of last week. Since their return to Atlanta Col. Wilkes has written a letter to The Times in which he declared that the pageant, which was written and staged by Dr. Amanda Johnson, "the most engaging entertain ment I ever witnessed."

Below is printed in full Col. Wilkes' letter relative to his and Mrs. Wilkes visit here:

The Alumnae Tea in Atlanta was a lovely success. Never have seen as many old students and strangers, but all of them still have the real G. S. C. W. spirit, That check from home didn't go so far this last week end-

The cantata that the Glee Club is working up this year sounds mighty good. Even heard that it'll be better than the recital they put on last year-and that will be going some!

Dear Mr. McAuliffe:

I hadn't been in Milledgeville for a year on account of illness until last week and I was glad to meet with good old friends like yourself and "swap the time of day."

Mrs. Wilkes and myself attended the show at the auditorium of the Georgia State College for Women on the evening of the 20th. The historical pageant I shall never forget. It was by far the most engaging entertainment I ever witnessed. It was unusual in conception, broad and illuminating to'a degree, and ab_ sorbing in interest throughout All who were connected with it deserve the greatest commendation and I can not refrain from expressing my admiration of it through your splendid paper. Sincerely your friend Sam W. Wilkes
