GUY WELLS SUCCEEDS DR. BEESON AS G.S.C.W. PRESIDENT

Macon Orchestra Gives A Concert

G. S. C. W. FACULTY MEMBER AND STUDENT ARE ON PROGRAM

The Macon Symphony Orchestra conducted by Professor Joseph Maerz presented a concert Monday evening in the auditorium. "Pomp and Circumstances" by the late Edward Elyab opened the program as a fitting tribute to the great Englishman, and the 1812 overture by Tchaikowski made a brilliant finale.

Mrs. Mearz, concert-master of the orchestra, and Miss Beatrice Horsbrough played the Largo from Bach's double concerto for violins in which their eighteenth century Italian instruments made a perfect blend of tone. They were accompanied by Mrs. Jelkes at the organ.

Miss Natalie Purdom, a G. S. C. W. student, is a member of the orchestra. This orchestra is a civic organization of over 50 members, the president of which is ex-Mayor Toole, of Macon. Since its founding in 1931 the orchestra has given about ten successful concerts in Macon and other cities. It has always been commended for well interpreted artistic programs, due largely to the musicianship of Professor Maerz and to the loyalty and enthusiasm he inspires in his players. This is the first time that the college has had on its lyceum course a symphony orchestra, and because of the flair that Professor Maerz has for building a well-balanced program the one chosen was appreciated by the group of faculty and students.

New Students Will On Enter April 24

Twenty-five or thirty new students will begin work here April 24 when the new quarter opens. This new term has been adapted to the needs of teachers from schools that close at the end of seven months. By beginning work now they can get credit for a half quarter's work when regular session closes on June 2, or by continuing until summer school closes July 21, they can receive credit for an entire quarter's work.

Patricia Madden Named History Club President

The History club held its regular April meeting last Wednesday afternoon at five-thirty in Dr. Johnson's classroom.

The main business of the club was to elect officers for the spring and fall quarters of 1934. Miss Patricia Madden was elected president; Miss Lois Pangle, vice-president; Miss Mary Goldstein, secretary; and Miss Martha Sue Hale, treasurer. Dr. Johnson was elected as faculty adviser.

It was decided that a breakfast hike will be held at Camel's Hump a Saturday morning in May. Further plans will be announced later for the benefit of the members wishing to attend.

Due to the lateness of the hour, the program was not completed. Miss Winnie Sheppard gave a talk on "The Path Away from War," and Miss Barbara Chandler on "Two Hundred Treaties."

Commerce Club Will Enter O.G.A. Contest

The Commerce Club had its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, April 10, at 5:30, at which time a special report on rates for typing was given by Virginia Drewry, chairman of the committee.

An all day hike has been planned by the social committee. It will be April 21, at Rocky Creek.

For interest in testing ability to write shorthand smoothly, fluently, and correctly, a contest was started. A copy was given to each member of the club and it is to be written in the best shorthand and sent in to headquarters in New York for certificates to the Order of Gregg Artists. The side receiving the most certificates will be entertained by the losing one. All entries must be in by next meeting, which will be May 10. At this time officers for next year will be elected.

At chapel last Wednesday Mr. Fowler completed his talk on "Personality in Business," which he had begun the previous week.

Having discussed personality in great men, Mr. Fowler urged that one should be able to distinguish the important things in life from the unimportant. In conclusion, he said that the commencement at college was the beginning of one's life and that he should follow the advice of experienced people.

The Southern Student Conference will hold its annual meeting again this year at Blue Ridge, North Carolina, under the auspices of the Southern Regional Student Council of the Y. W. C. A. and the Southern Field Student Council of the Y. M. C. A.

G. S. C. W. has been honored this year by the election of Miss Margaret K. Smith as chairman of National Student Council of Y. W. C. A. James May, a graduate of Emory University, will act as chairman of the men's division.

Each year G. S. C. W. has hailed the "Blue Ridge" announcements with much enthusiasm. The present year is no exception. "Casey" has been heard to remark, "The whole front section must be taken by G. S. C. students this year so I won't be frightened when I have to speak before all those people."

Proctor's Gamble Presented By Dramatic Club

Proctor's Gamble, a one-act play written by Catherine Mallory in a recent play writing contest staged by the Dramatic Club, was presented in the auditorium Saturday, April 7, previous to the moving pictures.

The play was a tangled thread of events which were finally unraveled in the apartment of two girls. Julia was placed in a delicate situation and Dot, meddlesome but well meaning, attempted to furnish a solution for her problems and the untimely arrivals of Phillip, Nancy, and Jim. Delightful wit ran through the entire play which was helped along by Camilla, a Georgia maid working in New York.

The following were selected for the cast: Camilla, Patricia Madden; Dot, Catherine Mallory; Julia, Marion Hartshorn, Phillip, Edna Lattimore; Nancy, Garnette Lynes, and Jim, Winnie Sheppard.

Wells to Take Office July 1

VALUABLE SERVICE RENDERED BY DR. BEESON DURING HIS ADMINISTRATION.

Dr. J. L. Beeson, who has been President and Dean of Women of the Georgia State College for Women since 1927, will complete his last year of service to this college on July 1, 1934, becoming president emeritus, and will be succeeded by President Guy H. Wells, of Georgia State Teachers College at Statesboro.

During his administration President Beeson has made many constructive contributions to this college notably along the lines of building, equipment, scholarship, and student organization.

He has been largely responsible for the erection of the Parks Memorial hospital, Miller S. Bell dormitory, and the Ina Dillard Russell library in the last few years, acting as a member of the building committee. All three buildings were erected without any extra appropriations from the state.

During the administration of Dr. Beeson the following improvements have been made:

The replacement of six wooden verandas with reinforced concrete and tile floors, the remodeling of Atkinson dormitory, addition of an ice plant and four cold storage rooms for Atkinson dining hall, three more on the south campus, and one for the hospital, the screening of all dormitories, installation of drinking fountains in all dormitories and college buildings, the addition of a gas-fired hot water system giving hot water each day of the week, natural gas for generating steam to heat college plans, and

Tribute To Dr. Beeson

Words, at times, Dr. Beeson, are so futile and meaningless. They can mean so much and yet say so little in spite of one's command of them. Sometimes they hinder rather than help.

One could take the newest, most up-to-date dictionary, gather all the beautiful, sincere words, and arrange them into a lovely and artistic appreciation, but that would not be enough. They would not, could not express the thoughts in the minds of all the G. S. C. W. girls, both the present students and those who have gone on.

To say that we shall miss you, Dr. Beeson, seems so trite, so commonplace. You have given to this college more than you will ever realize and your going is deeply regretted. We are going to miss the thoughtful advice you give to all of us, the chapel dismissal which is so characteristic of you, but most of all we are going to miss you.

You have helped make this college what it is. It is the spirit that makes this school and you are the one responsible for it. You have created something that we shall keep going. We hope we can do it in the way you would wish it to be done.

We appreciate all you have done for us and shall try to make the most of the opportunities you made possible.

We love you, Dr. Beeson, and shall miss you more than we could ever say.

New President of G.S.C.W.

We regret that the Board of Regents deemed it advisable to change the status of Dr. J. L. Beeson from the position of president of the Georgia State College for Women to that of president emeritus. But being unfamiliar with all the details of the situation, the fitting and proper thing is to look to the good of the institution and hope that the board has acted wisely. Dr. Beeson has been associated with the college through a long term of years, and in various capacities has given the best that was in him to the institution to which he was devoted. It will be comforting to the friends of the college to reflect on the fact that Dr. Beeson is still to be associated with it in a prominent capacity, and that the Board of Regents intend to deal liberally and considerately with him in all particulars.

The election of Guy H. Wells to succeed Dr. Beeson is a happy choice, since in the opinion of the board a change was desirable. Mr. Wells is 42 years of age. He graduated at Mercer university with an A. B. degree in 1915; he obtained his master's degree at Columbia in 1925, and did graduate-study toward his Ph. D. at Peabody college. He was superintendent of schools at Lumpkin, Ga., for three years; at Richland, Ga., for four years, and at Eastman, Ga., for four years. He has been president of the South Georgia Teachers' College at Statesboro since 1926.

It was of course in connection with this last-named institution that his work began to attract state-wide attention. At Statesboro he took charge of what was then one of the 11 or 12 congressional district A. and M. Schools. These schools had developed a great deal of opposition throughout the state because some of them were inefficient and expensive from a standpoint of the service they were rendering Georgia children. Mr. Wells saw the light early after taking up his work, and proceeded to convert the Statesboro school into a greater usefulness, making it a teachers' college, where unusually creditable work was done, and the institution flourished and grew by leaps and bounds.

Mr. Wells possesses a personality that is a great asset in his work. He is regarded as able, efficient, persistent. He is a good planner and disciplinarian, but withal affable, kindly, generous and considerate. The Milledgeville college has long been one of the state's greatest and most popular assets, and to be assured through the record of Mr. Wells that its future is still in safe hands is very pleasing to contemplate.—Macon Telegraph.

Have You Discovered It?

Are you familiar with the clipping file in the library? If you are, you doubtless realize its worth. If you are not, you should make its acquaintance. You will find it invaluable to you in many instances.

The clipping file is that green case of drawers near the center of the library. It contains newspaper clippings dealing with all types of subjects. These clippings are filed alphabetically under their respective subjects, and are easily found.

For budding young debaters and journalists, for term papers, for keeping up with the times, for current information on any topic, an intelligent use of the clipping file will prove helpful. The librarians go to a great deal of trouble to collect and arrange these articles for your benefit.

Get acquainted with the clipping file right away.

"Long Remember" is a fine novel of the history and romance of Gettysburg by MacKinlay Kantor.

"Here Today and Gone Tomorrow" by Louis Bromfield attempts a picture of the crash of the nineteen-twenties. In four short novels Mr. Bromfield spins realistic tales of the gaudy era.

"Treatise on Right and Wrong" is H. L. Mencken's natural history of morals. "Designed For Reading" is an anthology from the files of the Saturday Review of Literature for the last ten years, selected by Henry S. Canby, Amy Loveman, Christopher Morley, and William Rose Benet.

David McCord, a writer of delicate verse and distinguished prose emerges definitely as a poet with "The Crows."

"Our Starving Libraries" by R. L. Dufus uncovers the faults and errors of the present library systems, an dtries to point the way to solving a vital public need.

A chronological account of the pictorial drolleries of our forefathers from the earliest times to the end of the Civil War is "A History of American Graphic Humor" by William Murrell.

This 'N' That

The triangle was invented by Euclid, tested by Don Juan, and brought to perfection by scenario writers.

A rolling stone gathers no moss but at least it gets smooth in the rolling.

"What this country needs is a good poem," sez Herbert Hoover. Maybe the G. S. C. W. Poetry Volume Number 1 will be just the thing.

And then there was the co-ed who thought she knew all about "Relativity" because she had more than the usual number of uncles and aunts.

And then there was also the young housewife who asked her grocer if he'd find out how those big bakeries manage to bake sliced bread without all the slices sticking together.

FOG

(Apologies to Carl Sandburg, and Wm. P. Cow of "Life")

The fog comes

On little cat feet . . .

About the time

Of Examinations . . .

It sits looking

Over desk and chair . . .

On silent haunches;

Then moves . . .

But usually it stays.

Reverend Horace Smith

(This is the fourth in a series of sketches of Milledgeville pastors.)

It has been said that happiness is essential to a long and useful life. It would be nearer the truth perhaps, to say that usefulness to others is essential to life-long happiness. If this be true, Reverend Horace Smith, of the Methodist church, should surely be blessed with life-long happiness. His warm understanding of the G. S. C. girls is possibly due to his close association during the four years in which his daughter was a student on the campus. Rev. Smith has a fatherly interest in the students here and is one who is loved and admired by all of those who gather each Sunday to worship at his church.

SCOOPS

Did I say 'twas Spring? That's the way with the weather, say it is one thing . . . and it'll make you out a prevaricator every time. Here it's cold . . . in comparison with the last few weeks. But by the time you read this it will be warm 'n' all, and you'll wonder if I'm crazy.

The funniest sight in a long time was the return of the girls from church last Sunday. Of all the wild scrambles up Bell steps! Perhaps the humor of the situation was one-sided, but "grace" is amusing.

If all the girls that attended the G. E. A. get jobs, then we'll know for sure that the depression "isn't."

Edith Taylor is elated over a new photograph and the affairs of next week-end, and she will attend the spring dances at Georgia. She's the only one I've heard of that will go from here, but to show no partiality I will try to get the rest, if any, in next week's column. Edith goes with the editor of the Red and Black, you know.

Betty Reed finally lost membership in the aforementioned L. L. Club. Thursday she received a long letter. I think that now the L. L.'s are all un L. L.'d, but maybe some will re-enter! Betty goes to Atlanta soon, to get in the visit she missed Spring Holidays.

Dene Stone and Mary Lance went to Athens last week-end . . . to stay at Dene's. They had a big time, which makes me wish all the more that I could have gone. Mary goes with an ex-G. S. C. W. girl's brother at Gawgia . . . You'll hear more about him later.

Just think! In about a month I can start stating the dates that the seniors will have for their big ball on June 1. Not that I don't already know who some will ask! My hat's off to Frances Boone.

I WONDER WHY:

India Brown had an atlas out in the library the other day?

Kat Evans gets cards written in blue and red crayons?

Alice Lee Swicord was worried Sunday night week?

The seniors are getting excited and sad at the same time?

We don't sing Love Divine?

"They" call Mary Leverett "Iggy"?

"They" call Virginia Grey "Mademoiselle X"?

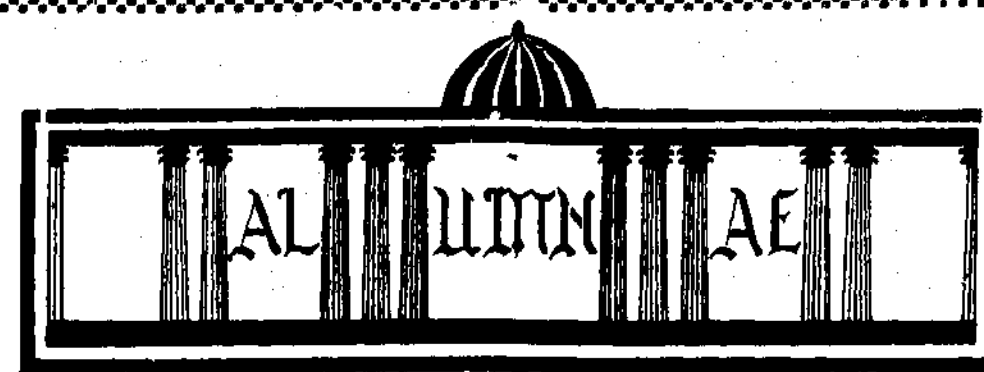

—SAPPY,
who knows the answers.

HEAR YE! HEAR YE!

On the seventeenth of April The tea-room as before Will open up to you and all Its large and welcome door. Come one, come all And bring your friends And in return for what you spend We offer you a generous prize That's bound to open both your eyes.

If you should win the lucky slip We offer you another trip To visit us next Friday, too And this time we'll be treating you!

The Globe Trotters

Around and around and around we go!

And we'll begin on top this week. Business conditions are still improving. Even those men who have been against Roosevelt's plan for recovery all along are beginning to say that . . . even though they don't give the credit to NRA, Puerto Rico feels the influence of the administration, too. Economic problems are improved very much, especially the employment problem.

At last Soviet Russia is becoming interested in the League of Nations. Heretofore the fact that Germany and France were in has kept her out, but she is beginning to see the vast influence that she would have, as one of the leading nations of the world.

Italy voted for the Fascist regime by a vote of ten million to fifteen thousand. Rather a majority, we should say.

Prussia is doing away with co-educational schools of all kinds, to the greatest extent possible. They believe that schools of other kind would best fit persons for the life that they are to lead.

Hungary has erected a monument to homing pigeons that rendered service to the country during the war.

Insull is still fighting. Greece and Turkey have decided that the long-lost friendliness between them, which has at last been restored, too valuable a thing to be upset by the American Utilities magnate, and so they have washed their hands of the affairs. Broken, worn-out, and pleading ill health, Insull is still seeking refuge.

And trotting back to Russia. They are enjoying a balance of trade again. Germany ranks first, with Great Britain second.

Seems to be about all that we've taken in this week.

Til next,

THE GLOBE TROTTERS.

U. S. Mail Boxes Now Curb Service

Curb service for letter boxes is the latest development in the modernization of Mil-ledgeville.

One foot, twelve full inches, nearer the curb is the mail box in front of the post-office. Now would-be correspondents may drive up to the box and deposit their epistles therein without getting out of their automobiles.

Plans are being made to place other boxes in the city in similarly vantageous positions.

Best Selling Vs. Best Reading

According to a tabulation recently announced by Edward Weeks as a compilation for the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia University, sixty-five books have been published in the United States since 1875 whose total sales amount to more than half a million copies each.

The leader, so far in advance of the others that its popularity quadrupled that of the runner-up was "In His Steps," by the Rev. Dr. Charles M. Sheldon. Its circulation is given as eight million copies. It was published in 1899, and pictured what the world would be like if people began to follow truly the teachings of Jesus. Dr. Sheldon wrote a number of other books, but none of them attained even a transient popularity. His name appears in no general history of American literature.

Far behind the leader comes a juvenile, as it is called in the parlance of the book trade, the famous "Freckles," by Gene Straton Porter. Mrs. Porter has three titles among the first five and a fourth among the first eight. "Freckles" sold to the extent of two million which was three hundred thousand more than her "Girl of the Limberlost," four hundred thousand more than her "The Harvester" and five hundred thousand more than her "Laddie." Those fictions enabled her to outdistance by far an author whom many might have casually judged to be the leader in popularity, Harold Bell Wright.

"Ben Hur," the book that was on the table in every parlor in the '80's, falls short of the two-million mark by only fifty thousand, but its immense circulation is due in large part to the fact a mail order house bought an edition of one million copies and eventually sold them all after a long and tedious campaign.

Other books selling a million or more copies, according to the list, are "Tom Sawyer," by Mark Twain; "The Virginian," by Owen Wister; "The Call of the Wild," by Jack London; "Story of the Bible," by Jesse Lyman Hurlbut; "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," and "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," by John Fox, Jr.; "David Harum," by Edward Noyes Westcott; "Five Little Peppers," by Margaret Sidney; "Huckleberry Finn," by Mark Twain; "Pollyanna," by Eleanor Steward; "Black Beauty," by Anna Sewell; "Treasure Island," by Robert Louis Stevenson, and "Trilby," by George DuMaurier.

Those who fancy they possess critical discrimination and sound literary taste may study the list and formulate their own theories as to the relation of artistic merit to popularity, after which they may as well leave the final judgement to that inexorable jury, posterity.
