The concert of the Russian Imperial Singers in the Russell auditorium on Wednesday evening, March 11, will bring to a close the unusually fine artist series which has been presented here under the auspices of the Milledgeville in Cooperative Concert Association and design and a mark marks

Five astounding voices—a first tenor, a second tenor, a baritone, a basso, and a basso-profundocompose the concert group known as the Russian Imperial Singers. This ensemble possesses that stirring quality of rich deep tone which is the heritage of the Slavalone. It unites exact pitch with the incisive and colorful rhythms of Russian music of every type ranging from the tender moujik's ballad of the soil to the crisp marching beat of the soldier's song; from the haunting simple melodies of the homeland that the distinguished Russian composers have in many instances made the basis of their symphonics to the lyric poems of the steppes, the river, the forest now gay, now sad, now humorous

The members of the group are Michael Dido, first tenor; Demetre Criona, second, tenor; Stephen Slepoushkin, baritone; Andrew Grigorieff, basso; and lerinarch Zragewsky, basso-profundo. They are assisted at the piano by Jascha Zayde. The members of the ensemble spent their youth in various parts of the old Empire of the Czarse clear than en

The singers refute the popular idea that most Slavic, music, is grave and melancholy, for they evince a sense of humor and appreciation of the comic in many of the song of a rollicking and droll nature that they render.

A Final Word of Thanks

The concert of the Russian Imperial Singers will bring to a close what has certainly been the finest series of entertainments that this college cr town has ever enjoyed. This paper has repeatedly expressed the students' appreciation of the Milledgeville Cooperative Concert Association and at this time it seems fitting that a final word of gratitude should be expressed to the college entertainment committee and the leaders of the town association members who made the series

Undoubtedly the unusually outstanding artists who have performed here have brought to the student body a new insight, a new appreciation of the arts, a new taste for the finest in entertainment. Of course we have not become a cultured. cosmopolitan audience in one season, but we are on the way toward that goal. Certainly, we have been appreciative.

Beyond the individual pleasure and artistic development which the programs have brought to the individual student. the artist series has been an important force in creating a favorable impression of G. S. C. W. throughout the state.

From the point we have attained there is no going back. It is with distinct satisfaction that we reflect that the battle is won. The issue for entertainment of a higher type, one for which this paper has always fought, is established. After artistic treats such as we have enjoyed in the four presentations of the concert association, a program of lesser calibre could not be offered to the students who have had a taste of the fine things that are available and are eager for more.

The programs we have heard were not merely to be enjoyed for the moment Who will ever forget the gorgeously exotic dancing of Goya, the haunting strains of Toscha Seidel's Stradivarius, the engaging personality of Wilbur Evans, and the promise of further pleasant impressions of the Russian Imperial Singers who will be here this week? For these lovely memories, we are deeply indebted to the Milledgeville Community Concert Association.

Lights Out

Rather a large group of students hailed with joy the day when the electric sign which supposedly adorns the campus was taken down. Consequently, it was quite a disappointment when said sign reappeared in a "glorified" blaze of brown and gold. The student body is gratefully aware of the improvements being made on the campus such as planting shrubbery and chaining off the walks, but one group of students at least do not list the redecoration of the G. S. C. W. lights as an imprevement.

Such garish, blatant advertising does not seem to fit in with our emphasis on culture. We are becoming known throughout the state for our fine concert series which have attracted people of "discernment" here. Our a cappella choir is making further progress in creating a desirable respense in the minds of the public when G. S. C. W. is mentioned.

Should these people of the state who are gradually becoming aware of the potentialities of this school "discern" the sign which fronts our campus, their reaction could quite possible be distinctly

Undoubtedly, we need some manner of dentification for the benefit of those who have never heard of this instution and so would not recognize it upon seeing the campus. But need such a mark smack so of big business advertising? It seems rather apropos to throw out the suggestion that the presentation of some such identaving mark like a bronze plaque to be attached to the gate or something of that order more in keeping with the natural beauty of our campus might make a splendid senior class gift.

Think it over. I you feel, otherwise, write to the editor and express your opinions. Perhaps we have never seen the lights from the most advantageous point of view, but at present our opinion is "Lights out!"

What To Read

Among the new books added to the library withing the last month are:

IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE. Sinclair Lewis's speculation on what would happen in America if a dictator came into power. Unusual and exciting.

SEVEN-LEAGUE BOOTS. A new travel book by that most romantic of all travelers, Richard Halliburton. Up to his usual good form.

THE PRESIDENT'S MYSTERY STORY A problem is suggested by President Receivelt and solved by such writers as S. S. Van Dine, John Erskine, Anthony Abbot, and Rupert Hughes. An interesting experiment.

NATIONAL VELVET, by Enid Bagnold. A 1935 book-of-the-month. All about England and horse races. Delightful as a fairy story.

MRS. ASTOR'S HORSE. Grand entertainment. The author allows us to chuckle with him as he reminisces about such personalities as Queen Marie of Roumania. Jack Dempsey, Mayor Walker, Aimee Semple McPherson, and Sally Rand.

A FEW FOOLISH ONES, by Gladys Carrell. A novel by the author of AS THE EARTH TURNS. It is the story of a small farming community, told sympathetically and compactly.

SEVEN PILLARS OF WISDOM. by T. E. Lawrence. One of the most vivid and stirring books ever written. It is an account of the author's campaigns in Arabia, and it contains, remarkable stories of history. A work of genius.

Forgotten Men

G. S. C. W. has its forgotten men. You've een them on the campus, particularly on Sunday afternoons. They are rather weary loking men who sit disconsolately on a hard bench and think rather wistfully of their better halves who are then stretched out comfortably on daughter's bed. Yes, the dutiful fathers who visit little Jessie on Sunday afternoon are the forgotten

While mother goes to daughter's room and rests after a long drive to the college and talks over affairs with her, poor pappa has to cool his heels on the porch of the dormitory where he is usually quite conscious of the seemingly millions of girls who stare at him as they pass by, or else he sits on a bench and both he and the dates in the nearby vicinity are un-

Something should be done about it. Surely there is some place on the campus where a lounge could be provided for fathers, brothers, or dates to have access to when barred from the no man's land of a dormitory.

On Redloe's Island, in the New York harbor, stands a magnificent bronze figure holding aloft a flaming torch and greeting the immigrant as he approaches the new world. What varied emotions are stirred within the breast as one contemplated that commanding goddess, her mighty right arm holding a torch, while a volume of law or instruction is encircled by her let? Why not a blazing sword in her right hand, and a protecting shield on her left arm. But no, she illustrates the superiority of proper enlightment, over the power of the lethal weapon of shining steel. Her flaming torch opens the eyes of men, that they may no longer grope about in the darkness of ignorance that breeds crime, fosters anti-American "isms," and encourages strife and sedition. None of the girls was familiar to these old eyes, but one of 'em in particular caught my attention—when she sat down so, so hard that she could be heard on the second floor of Arts. She was named "Dorothy" something—that's all I could glean. Nothing would do her but she get up, feel to see if any bones were knecked loose, and then start skating-or stumbling along again. That's when I say "None but the brave."

That "none but the brave" hrase brings ideas into my mind. Just exactly what it does bring into my mind has to do with one of the younger teachers on the faculty. Ask Mr. Capel what he thinks of the phrase, "none but the brave."

Constitution

(Continued from page 1) will be impeached. This extension of the authority of the College Government Association over all the campus organizations is a big step toward making the association a vital force in campus affairs and integrating campus or ganizations.

Another revision provides for the appointment of official ushers at the beginning of each quarter. These ushers will be selected by the chapel proctor and will serve at all entertainments sponsored by the college. This will insure efficient usher service and do away with much of the confusion at entertainments. particularly those which are attended by town people.

According to the improved constitution all campus elections which are not registered with the dean of women and are not attended by the student recorder of points or one of her assistants will be declared null and void Formerly, elections were required to be registered, but since this regulation chasenot been every closely observed, other finall and void" clause was inserted into that articles is been and trials less

Under the provisions of the revised constitution student government officers will be install ed at the end of the winter quarter and will assume their official duties at the opening of the spring quarter. A further discussion of this change may be found in the story of the elections.

Several other minor changes were made, which are not mentioned here. The changing of the name, the new power of inpeachment, the official ushers, the ruling in regard to campus elections, and the provision for early induction into office of new College Government officers are the major features of the newly-revised constitution.

The young man's fancy has been turning lightly for so many years that it must feel like the music-only it doesn't seem to have any place to come out.

However, the young ladies seem to be trying to relieve them this spring at least in the way of clothes. Evidences of somebody's good taste are quite recognizable. in the new clothes springing forth on the campus states or the
