It Looks From Here

The average student probably heard of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, but it is doubtful if many realize exactly what its provisions are, and what the effect of the Supreme Court decision will be on the future of organized labor in America. The upholding of the Wagner act removes the largest barrier to unionization of labor in all industries, by making it illegal to discharge an employee for union activity. The act, in brief, guarantees to all employees the right to join together for collective bargaining, and makes illegal to discharge a man for exercising this right. It does not mean that no one can be fired from a job for other reasons,

The decision of the Court was by a five to four decision, with Roberts, the balance of between the conservative and the liberal four on the court, the deciding factor again. Roberts has voted both ways on important measures and it was he who changed his view in the Washington Minimum Wage case and reversed the court's decision in that instance. So, as a matter of fact, on cases in which there is a clear liberal and a conservative side, the validity of the law rests Roberts' interpretation of it. American Dancers To Give Recital Here April 22

The year's series of concerts offered by the Milledgeville Cooperative Concert Association will be climaxed April 22 with a recital given by Fowler and Tamara, American dancers.

Fowler and Tamara have danced their way all over the United States and Europe and each country has contributed to their performances. GSC Conducts Child Study

Board Is Sponsor

The General Education Board of New York has become interested in a study of changes (growth and development) as children they take place in throughout the entire school course, and has invited the Education Department of G. S. C. W. to participate in such a study.

It is proposed to determine how, when, and under what conditions desirable growth in all the attributes of good citizenship takes place in children. This means a study of the development of such things as initiative, leadership, self-confidence, physical an demotional maturity, and other traits which are desirable for a good citizen, from the nursery school through high school, and even into life.

The schools which have been asked to participate are: University of Florida, William and Mary, The University of Kentucky, The University West Virginia, The University of Michigan, and G. S. C. W.

A conference of delgates from these schools has been called at Gainesville, Florida, April 19 23, 1987. At this meeting, plans will be formulated for the study. and means of checking and evaluation of set up.

The delegates from G. S. C. W. who are to attend this meeting are: Dr. Euri Belle Bolton, Miss Mary Lee Anderson, and Dr. Harry A. Little. Expenses are being paid by the General Education Board.

Dr. A. R. Mead, at the University of Florida, is Dean Andrews. Regular meetings general chairman for the confer. will be held weekly on Wednes-

Dr. Wu Will Be Guest of YWCA

Dr. Y. T. Wu, distinguished editor-in-chief of the Association Press in China, will be the guest of the Y. W. C. A. and the Colege on Monday and Tuesday. April 19 and 20. On Monday evening at seven o'clock he will speak to an open meeting of the officers of College Government, the Y. W. C. A., and the Recrea. tion Association. "Is Christian Faith Relevant to the Present Situation in the Orient?" will be the subject discussed by Dr. Wu at this group meeting in the Biology Lecture Room.

His second appearance on the campus will be at chapel on Tues day morning, when he will speak on "Youth Movements in Modern China." In his own country Dr Wu has been intimately quainted with the radical and communist group and has helped to meet and interpret their program and their criticism of Christianity.

Colleges all over the country have sought eagerly for his appearance on their campuses. He comes to us from the Institute of Human Relations at the University of North Carolina. We are very fortunate in securing him for a stay of such duration. Faculty and townspeople are cordially invited to hear him Tuesday at Chapel.

Crowell

(Continued from page 1) about 17 or 18 years old. Today the college is a fully recognized standard institution that gives a degree which is accepted by universities toward graduate work-The student age averages about 22 years.

"Eighteen years ago the plant was comparatively small. I remember that our library was merely a small room at one side of the auditorium in the old Administration building, which burned later. Now we have a fine library building that is well-equipped."

"When we have grown in physical equipment, we also have grown in academic prestige," she continued. "But I am not sure that other changes have been for

"There are too many diverting entertainments today. One cannot go through this building any evening without finding groups of committees making plans for this or that affair.

"Perhaps all this is for the best, but I have always thought, and I still think, that the intellectual development of the students should be the central idea of the college. The students should learn to think and they should gain a little wisdom as well as knowledge."

Students at the college for women bemoan the retirement of Miss Crowell. The statement of one of them is typical:

"My cousin took English from Miss Crowell back in 1921. When my sister came here in 1930, my cousin told her to be sure she got Miss Crowell for her English teacher because she was the best instructor in the college. When I came in 1935, my sister told me the same thing."

It Looks From Here

(Continued from page 1) such an amendment adopted. The plea that a constitutional amendment is submitting the issue to the people is a false one. amendments are passed upon by the state legislators, or by state conventions, and these conventions are usually composed to large degree of members of the bar, and in spite of exceptions here and there the lawyers are almost unanimously opposed to any change in the court or in any limitation of its authority.

The profession of law is more hemmed in by precedent than any other profession extant, unless it be that of the ministry, and there is in it the reverence for decisions made hundreds of years ago that exists in no other profession to a like degree. Doctors are as a rule conservative men, but there exist very few doctors who, because Hippocrates laid down certain laws in his day based upon what information he had at hand, would prefer those laws and those observations to the latest report on medical research from a modern foundation.

To return to the Wagner decision it looks from here as though there will be an immediate increase in the drive for unionization. Henry Ford is next on the list in the auto world and the union or allow it in throat over a personal feeling. The management of the Ford good business, has been excellent, and Ford has too much sense to ruin his company over a question that is at best, not too serious fact that higher wages were a good investment. His quarrel is really with the manner in which they shall be paid and who shall decide when to pay them. These are matters, that in spite of all the loud talk, will probably be settled across the conference table.

The Wagner act should act as a calming influence on the labor front. The unions will no longer have to fight two forces, the opposition of the plant and the fear of its own members. should mean an end to the plague of costly strikes, provided the owners of the industries show intelligence in recognizing the handwriting on the wall and sit down with the unions to arrage a amicable settlement. The time is not far distant when the labor in nearly all of our larger industries will be unionized and when there will be an aggressive labor party competing for a place in the national leadership. We may not like it and we may not think either their motives or their goals are good, but we must see that this is almost bound to occur either with the consent of the owners or against it and over their protest.
