

THE CORINTHIAN
The Journal of Student Research at Georgia College

The Corinthian

Volume 21

Article 1

5-21-2024

Letter from the Editor

Claire Kosobud
Georgia College & State University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://kb.gcsu.edu/thecorinthian>

Recommended Citation

Kosobud, Claire (2024) "Letter from the Editor," The Corinthian: Vol. 21, Article 1.
Available at: <https://kb.gcsu.edu/thecorinthian/vol21/iss1/1>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Undergraduate Research at Knowledge Box. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Corinthian by an authorized editor of Knowledge Box.

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Dear Readers,

In a world that is so swept by the hurried notion of doing things now, we often forget the value of things that take time to produce. In our academic and personal experiences, we have come to understand that good things take time, and under that category falls The Corinthian. It has been close to three years since an edition of The Corinthian has been released, and much has changed since then. We are a different school with a different student body. We are full of different ideas and motivations, all of which will be positively expressed in these pages. Undergraduate research has always been valued at Georgia College & State University, and I hope students will continue to pursue this opportunity and the lessons its processes teach. As the editor of The Corinthian, I am honored to be trusted with its rebirth, and aspire to do the ideas presented justice. I am constantly reminded of the vast nature of education and the ways that it presents itself in more than just words on a paper, but in what it inspires outside of the office.

In life, sometimes a break is needed to ensure productive growth, and it is my hope that that will be evident in this new version of The Corinthian.

Claire Kosobud

Editor-In-Chief

The Corinthian Vol. 21