April 26 Set For Sports Day

Sports Day comes to GSCW April 26 and brings with it fun and activity for every girl who wishes to participate. Invitations have been extended to 11 southern colleges to send girls to our campus to enter in tournaments of swimming, tennis, volley ball and soft ball.

The University of Georgia, University of Tennessee, North Georgia College, Armstrong Junior College, Piedmont College, Agnes Scott, and Mercer have sent letters of acceptance to the invitations. Each school has been asked to send five girls for tennis, four swimmers, and from five to ten girls to play volley ball and soft ball.

One or more faculty members have been invited to accompany the girls.

Activities will begin at 10:30 Saturday morning, and continue through "Play Night" in the gym. Girls who are unable to return to their school that night have been invited to spend the night in the GSCW dormitories. Special arrangements are to be made for the visiting faculty members.

Six Seniors Awarded Graduate Scholarship

Graduate school scholarships have been received by six GSCW seniors. These girls are: Ann Hutcheson, Emory, Religious Education; Kathryn Donnan, Duke, Biology and Chemistry; Mary Ann King, Brown and Vanderbilt Universities, Biology; Harriet Little, Washington University, Medical Social Work; Marion Barber, Duke, English; Betty Perkins, Duke, Foreign Language.

Ann Payne, Roselyn Nowell, Neva Lindsey, and Billie La Motte have applied for entrance to the University of Georgia Medical School, Augusta.

Students, Faculty To Have Suppers

A program has been set by the "Y", which will enable students and faculty members to become better acquainted.

The "Y" has a commission whose purpose is to promote faculty-student relation. A program is being installed whereby you can have a group of about 25 students and several faculty members at an informal supper on Saturday night.

If you wish to become better acquainted with certain faculty members, then round up a group of students and plan for one of those informal Saturday night suppers in the "Y" apartment.

Jean Bessent, chairman of the commission, will help you plan and make arrangements for the date of your choice. See Jean in advance and decide on a date.

This will be your party. You buy and prepare the food; you make all the arrangements. You entertain the faculty members whom you have invited.

If this sounds like fun to you, then get your group together and see Jean immediately for an open date.

HORSE SHOW SUNDAY

The horse show is scheduled for Sunday, April 27, at 3:00 in Nesbitt Woods. Due to rain it was postponed last quarter.

Lebanon College, Shreveport, La.; College of Charleston, and Baylor University, Texas.

Dr. Reid, one of the first six in chemical warfare in World War I, introduced chloracetaphone as "tear" gas. He has written two organic chemistry books and has published about 140 papers with students and 25 others alone. About 2,000 new compounds have been prepared in his labs, among these the first plasticizer to attain wide use, 30,000,000 pounds of it being used during the war.

An afternoon tea honoring Dr. Reid and the out of town guests will be given by the Chemistry Club at the Mansion, and dinner will be served in Atkinson Hall for guests on Herty Day. ## Dim-Whims

Spring has really sprung on our GSCW campus and I think its sprung right into all the girls. It's made some of our "Jessies" lazy but the majority of our gals are full of pep and energy. Mrs. Martin even accused two of her Atkinson girls of having "running fits" one night after supper when they made a mad dash right across front campus. Is it energy or are they trying to reduce?

I happened to be walking along on front campus one afternoon and all of a sudden I heard music from all sides. I was beginning to wonder if "judgment day" had arrived. I looked around and what should I see but the girls of Bell, Terrell, and Atkinson dancing on their porches. It looked as though they were having heaps of fun.

It seems that everyone has been trying to get a sun tan but the music majors. Our music masters looked so very cute with their big straw hats on while they were registering people during the music festival. None of them turned up with red noses the next day either.

I was sorry to hear today that Dr. Walston is confined with poison ivy. I know we all hope she will soon be back with us (she probably will be by the time this article goes to press).

I was eavesdropping again the other night and I really heard something good on the editor of our wonderful, marvelous paper. (That's a plug!) She and her roommate were on the bus coming from Athens the other night and all of a sudden there occurred an explosion in their seat. About that time I got the door slammed in my face so I don't know the rest of the story. So sorry!

I'm wondering what Miss Chapin is doing to her P. E. classes lately. I happened to be passing by her class which was playing deck tennis and I noticed that two girls each had one finger in a splint. It didn't seem to be bothering their playing though, as their side won the game.

The Colonnade Speaks

We are the school, and what we are the school is. Some of come to school for the simple purpose of preparing ourselves to earn a living; some of us come because we truly want to learn; and some of us come because it is expected of us. Regardless of why we come, students usually barely tap the resources of a college. The resources at GSCW offer us an education, not just by way of books, but through self-government, recreation, and cooperative and honorable living with others.

We cannot help but notice and appreciate the friendly atmosphere which exists between faculty and students here. Our relatively small classes lead to informality; we have the opportunity to know our faculty, and to let them know us.

Most of us do not realize that under our CGA, we students make our own rules, and that we punish ourselves for breaking them, and that through this system of Student Government we have fewer rules than any other Southern woman's college.

Though our class buildings and dormitories are conveniently compact, we are fortunate to have a campus which does not end within the limits of Milledgeville. Weekends may be spent at Lake Laurel or at the camp on Lake Burton (we are the only college which can boast of two such places which offers swimming, boating, fishing, and camp life.) Our campus recreation includes among other things, indoor swimming, tennis on cement courts, bowling, skating, bicycling, horseback riding, and outing at Nesbit Woods.

No other college can boast of a kitchen in every dormitory, and recreation hall facilities for all students. Nor do other schools have an Annual Hike or Parents' Day, or Herty Day, or Golden Slipper.

The best musicians and lecturers are brought to our campus every year. Incidentally, did you know that students help select the guests for these programs? And do you realize how fortunate you are to see well known plays such as "Skin of Our Teeth" and "Antigone," produced by students with the most professional touches?

GSCW offers degrees in almost anything a student could want; in fact, there are approximately 25 majors and minors offered here.

It is interesting to note that the state allocated funds to GSCW are more than four times as much as they were in 1939 per capita student.

If we take advantage of the resources at GSCW, we have every opportunity to become a "well rounded" person. We cannot build the school, but we can make the school. GSCW is only a "prospective covering" to us. Our school cannot be outstanding unless we take advantage of the resources and are outstanding ourselves.

Who Are You?

Who are you? Are you anyone besides just your parents' child? Have you ever accomplished anything worth being remembered for? If not, are you preparing yourself for a useful and admirable life, a life which will benefit others, and one from which you yourself will profit? Why are you put on this earth? Certainly there is an answer to these questions. Certainly there is a purpose for you. Couldn't it be to learn all that the people before you have known and to increase this knowledge from your own brain and to better this world with your own achievements? By doing this, by getting all you possibly can and by putting, even now, back into the world from yourselves, you will have helped future generations—your posterity.

"I made real good on that chemistry test yesterday. I almost passed!!!"

DAVID THE KING

By Gladys Schmitt

Reviewed by Susanne Lennon

David the King is a story taken from the Bible and made into a deeply moving and captivating novel. It portrays David's rise from being a simple shepherd boy to become a king and, of more importance, his rise from egotism and crassness to deep understanding and selflessness.

David's sins at times predominate the book, but they serve to make his final moral triumph more wonderful. To have omitted his weakness would have taken something away from his victory over them.

However, I think his retribution for each and every one of his misdeeds was slightly forced. Amnon, the result of Noi's seduction, eventually brought ruin to David's favorite daughter, Tamar. Bathsheba's firstborn died as if to punish David for his adultery and murder of Bathsheba's husband. People usually suffer for their sins, but punishment does not always come in the form of a physical happening.

Noi interested me more than any of the other minor characters. She had strength in her gentleness and peace in her resignation. These words, which she spoke just before her quiet death, made more impression on me than anything else connected with her in the story.

"We are, and then we are no more. It is as simple as blowing out a lamp or closing a door."

Noi loved a man she could never hope have—but loving him was the only thing she asked.

The thing that impressed me more than anything else in the entire book was Gladys Schmitt's interpretation of religion, given in the little Shuman maid's conversation with David:

"Why do we stand forever shrieking into the sky, 'I am everything, let the Lord behold me,' when it is plain that we are nothing? That He does not see us is a small matter, once we have delivered ourselves of the burden of our pride and our selfishness. All that is needful is that we should see 'God.'"

I think that David at last understood when he said:

"To love, to yearn to lose oneself in any mortal beloved, is to strive darkly, imperfectly, in spite of all exigencies of the flesh and world, to become a part of the Everlasting Being from whom we issue forth and unto whom we go at last."

DAVID THE KING, is a book that I would recommend to everyone. I have never read a book that expresses more genuine, deep felt emotion so simply.

No Stuffed Shirt

Should a course in taxidermy be offered at GSCW? NOTE: Since the issue is so involved, the question will be discussed from all angles under a single heading and the reader will be left to form her own conclusions.

If I were discussing the question from the con angle exclusively, my first point would be that the proposed course is utterly useless. However, were I discussing it from the pro side I should soon prove this statement to be ridiculous.

To do this I would cite a hypothetical case, that of Miss A. Let us say that Miss A. is an English major and, after getting her degree, going to London to perfect her accent. Let us further suppose that she is carrying letters of introduction from the Milledgeville Chamber of Commerce to the Lord Mayor of London. The Lord Mayor is enchanted by her Southern drawl and her lily-white skin. (Miss A. was a student at GSCW at the time there was no place for sun-bathing). He introduced her to all the best people in London. They too, were enchanted.

Never since the great Elizabeth had London seen a woman who could discourse so intelligently on swine in Georgia and the telephone strike or could blow bubble gum so delightfully. One week-end she was being entertained by Lord and Lady Hepsby at their sumptuous manor, Spanish-on-the-Puddle, when whom should she meet but Sir Reginald Owensby who had come down for the hunting. Instantly, she fell in love with him. Never was a couple more ideal—the manly Sir Reginald and the dainty Miss A. Miss A. was quite in raptures. But, alas, Sir Reginald was quite blind to her charms. In vain did she murmur to him how to paint transoms black. In vain did she do calisthenics out-Black Marauder was ready to be taken back to Sir Reginald's side she had learned in college London apartment and stood being could impress Sir Reginald. Miss A. grew quiet and sad. She began to pine away.

Then, one day, just when things seemed darkest, it happened. It was about six o'clock one evening when Sir Reginald came riding in from the days hunt. His bronzed face was alight with joy. For the first time since he was six and had been taken to see "Punch and Judy," Sir Reginald smiled. "I say," he said, "do you know what I've done?" Miss A. didn't. "I've killed the Black Marauder." Miss A. put her hand to her throat and gasped noisily.

"You have?" she said. Now the Black Marauder was a wild stag that had been the scourge of the Scottish highlands for years untold. Actually his only fault was refusing to be shot, but this he did stubbornly. Every year numbers of young men from England's best families came up and spent the season trying to kill the beast. Many had seen him. Some even reported that he laughed scornfully at them. After one season or perhaps two, they would be broken men. Some joined the Foreign Legion. Others came to America and became indentured servants or Fullea Brush men. In that way all England's young men were being drained off and the future looked dark for the empire when Sir Reginald slew the deer.

No sooner had he told Miss A. of the deed than Purvis, the trusty guide, came riding up dragging the Black Marauder. Sir Reginald looked at it and burst into tears. "What's the matter?" cooed Miss A.

"Now he's dead," bellowed Sir Reginald, "and a hundred years from now who will remember that I killed him?" He gave long, shuddering sobs. Miss A.'s face was wreathed in smiles. "Have you ever heard of taxidermy," she asked coyly. "Sure enough she worked for twelve days and twelve nights and the job was complete. The Black Marauder was ready to be taken back to Sir Reginald's side the portrait of his father, Sir Godfrey. As he looked

There was once an attractive young Jessie,
 Who never could keep any beaux.
 Because, it would seem, she was sloppy,
 And had spots all over her cleaux.
 So she dragged herself down town to Dempsters,
 And told them the cause of her weaux.
 Today she is happy and popular,
 And almost everyone kneaux.
 That the day of her happiness started,
 When DEMPSTER first cleaned all her cleaux.

WE'RE ON THE AIR

Quiet, everybody. Quiet This Station GSCW, and we are on the air. You can't get us on your radio, but if you want to see us and hear us, come by Arts 19 on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 9:30. There are plenty of seats, there is no charge, and those who are taking the course, Speech 330, can have the benefit of a studio audience. Yes, Speech 330 is the new radio course, Introduction to Radio.

Most of the radio equipment has arrived and is being installed, and it should be ready for use for the next programs. The miniature "radio station" consists of a studio and a control room in which the students may gain practical experience.

There are twenty-one students in the class, which is divided into three groups. Each group puts on a fifteen-minute program, which may be a play, an interview, or any one of a variety of programs. Each group will have its own production man, announcer, and director.

The purpose of this course is to give basic instruction in microphone technique, continuity writing, announcing, control operation and the production and direction of radio plays and other programs. The prerequisite for this course is Speech 308 or its equivalent.

NOTICE

If you would like to have some copies of Collegiate Digest which were not distributed, or if you are interested in reading papers from other colleges, come by The Colonnade office at any time except Wednesday and Tuesday nights.

We regret that there are no student pictures in this issue of The Colonnade, but due to the rainy weather pictures scheduled could not be made.

on the work, Sir Reginald's heart went out to Miss A. He took her hand and remarked tenderly, "In the LINGUE VULGAE, Miss A. I love you." So they were wed. Sir Reginald received the Order of Bath, and it all came about as a result of a course in taxidermy.

Then, I would again begin to think of the con. The difficulties would be many and great. Not a few people would look at the situation cynically and think how the preserved Marauder, that emblem of England's might, would antagonize Russia. Not a few would remark that the aroma of taxidermy fluids would overpower that of hydrogen sulfide in the chemistry laboratory. Not a few would think of the timid souls who spend their time avoiding the biology labs. What would be their sentiments if their roommates suddenly took to stuffing and arranging about the room armadillos, and beavers, and rats?

The question is a difficult one to resolve. It all goes back, of course, to the ancient controversy as to what is an education. Let it be clearly understood that the writer has no ideas on the subject. These few thoughts are for the sole purpose of stimulating others. The issue is vital. The time is come.

THE COLONNADE

Rambling.... ....With Rec

Have you heard the latest? Rec is busy as a bee planning one of its biggest events of the year. If you don't know what it is all about, now's your chance to "get in the know." Sports Day, which will be held April 26 is going to be loads of fun. Girls from the University of Georgia, Armstrong Jr., Piedmont, North Georgia, Agnes Scott, Mercer, and even the University of Tennessee, are coming. We're all planning to have a big time and with cooperation from everyone, Sports Day can be a big success. If you're interested in participating sign up to play softball and volleyball, and even if you don't participate, come on out and watch the swimming meet and tennis matches will be fun to watch too. We're counting on you to make our first Sports Day one that we'll never forget, so don't let us down.

Frances Lewis has been elected as new vice president of the Recreation Association—Welcome Lewis!!

The Rec Association is being fully represented these days. Kit Rice and Collen Jones are going to the Georgia Athletic Federation of College Women, which is to be held in Macon, April 26, and Helen Newsome and Jeanne Kleber left the 17th for Greensboro, N.C. to attend the National Athletic Federation of College Women. Have fun girls!!!

And Her Shoes Are Number Five

Have you been a victim of the newcomer to GSCW? Let me tell you about her—yes, "her" for a change. She's a very nice sort of person who wouldn't harm a flea. Yet she is so brave and courageous, that not even a mouse would frighten her.

Some of you haven't seen her; so I'll try to describe this exotic creature. This character is a "massive-figured" form of six feet, but she has small feminine feet. They tell me that she has attracted numerous students, who, seeing her, just stand gazing at her many features. Today she was wearing a lovely blue dress. I saw her in Arts—and that's what's so strange: no one ever sees the girl unless she is in Arts. One of her many intimate friends, a Distributive Education Major, told me that she is tops in her field. And if you'll notice you'll see that all the D.E. Majors make quite a "to-do" (accent on last syllable) over her and treat her with particular care, for she is none other than the Distributive Education Dummy—one of our best teachers on campus.

Perhaps you have been in that room in Arts—everyone is invited. At first you might think it is Rockefeller Center in New York with all its display windows. But it's quite the place to shop if you are down to your last penny.

Don't laugh at the dummy—she is quite earnest about her work. You may think it all folly, but take the D. E. Majors' word for it—it's work to clothe, stylishly, a six-foot doll (who can move only her arms).
