Class Reunions Here June 7, 8, 9

Former students of GSCW will return to attend class reunions June 7, 8, and 9. The reunions to be held this year will be the first since the begining of the war; consequently, an unusally large number of alumnae are expected. These returnees will be house in available dormitory space.

The class breakfasts to be held Sunday morning are one of the special events planned. These breakfasts will constitute the only gathering of each separate class. Alumnae vespers scheduled for Sunday evening will be presented by members of the class of '46 in honor of the members of the : class of '47.

Celebrating their fiftieth reunion, the class of 1897 deserves special recognition. The class of 1922 wil celebrate their twentyfifth reunion. Other classes holding reunions include the classes of 1893, '94, '95, '96, 1912. '13, '14, 15, *16, *31, *32, *33, *34, *37, *38, '39 and 1946.

The schedule of events include: Saturday, June 7-Registration in the alumnae office.

Thespian Chapter Installed At GMC

The members of Alpha Psi installed a chapter of the National ciety in the GMC audiorium, May 8. This society is for high school students who have done outstanding work in the dramatic field.

The installation consisted of a reading as to what Thespian should mean to its members; and the story of dramatic arts as it advanced through the ages. Alpha Psi members participating in this part of the program were dressed in Grecian robes and lit a candle to represent the different influences as they affected dramafics. These influences were:

Marianne Singer; Dance, Ruth Ellis; Dionysus, Virginia Bradord; Thespus, Sarah Jane Wollithe theatre as we know it today, ed in the park, which will be Weylene Edwards.

Rresiding at the installation were:

Miss Edna West, Miriam Chapunan, Helen Potts, Anne Wells, and Beulah Oliphant.

One Quarter Gone, Two To Go

In this, the last issue of The Colonnade for the year I, on behalf of the staff, wish first to thank the people at the Union-Recorder office for their suggestions to and most of all for their patience with the staff (especially the editor) during the first guarter of publishing The Colonnade. I wish also to acknowledge the many kind remarks and words of encouragement which we have received from Both faculty and students, and to thank the GSCW publicity officers and faculty members for their cooperation in helping us to get the news.

The staff has worked hard to give you your school paper as we promised in our first issue this guarter-our editorials have pertained to campus life; we have tried to cover all clubs, departments, and organizations in our news stories; and we have tried to write our stories correctly-but we realize that we are a long way from perfection.

Once again I ask you for your cooperation, more earnestly than before, for every issue makes me more aware that it is an impossibility for a few people to publish a paper all by themselves. have not received those letters to the editor but I am hoping for many next year from faculty and students alike. I welcome your suggestions for improvement of The Colonnade along with your opinion of campus happenings.

It has been a pleasure to serve you in this quarter, and my only hope is that next year we will do a better job. I speak for the staff in saying that we will do our best to fulfill our obligations to you and your expectations of us next yearwe will do everything possible to do better than you expect-but we cannot do the job alone.

Like statements have been made before and will be made again.

Vacation time will soon be here. The majority of us will leave GSCW for a summer of work, fun, or we hope, a combination of both. A few of us will remain at summer school.

As walking advertisements of our college, we should conduct ourselves accordingly whenever we are away from her. Whether or not we realize it. our institution is judged by the out-of-school behavior of her students. We can make or break the reputation of our school. It is up to GSCW girls to uphold the traditions of which we are proud. It is standards be upheld.

Britannia Mews By Margery Sharp

Reviewed by Susanne Lennon It took a lot of independence and courage for Adelaide Culver to defy her family by marrying Colonnade for publication as an open leter in the Henry Lambert, a poor young artis; but it took sincere hope that student opinion will stimulate even more to face the results brought about by her hasty action.

> She received quire a shock when she stepped from her sheltered, very conventional life in a se would-be fashionable Victorian society to become "Poker-back" in Britannia Mews, a slum that once housed the horses and coachmen of her family and

However, such was not the case: someone had seen her when she pushed Henry Lambert down the stairs. It was Mrs. Mounsey ("The Sow"), and Adeaide was compelled to remain in the Mews to pay blackmail money. She was freed from the evil clutches of "the

I agree with Dean McMahon's observation that the first part of the book was writtten much better than the last.

The change in Adelaide's character after the coming of the second Mr. Lambert was too sudden therefore not realistic.

Horses Leave-Enthusiasts Grieve

If you have seen some awfully sad people on campus, you can be sure that those people are GSCW'S famous horseback-riding "phines." Now they haven't broken any limbs-(that is most of them haven't). They are just unhappy because the horses will soon be leaving niw that summer is coming and the girls cannot ride these "wonderful" nags.

You can see girls hurrying down to the woods every day, and you know that they are going riding, for characteristically enough, they are wearing jeans or jidphurs, They rush down with high hopes of riding Dusty or Scatter-(these are not nags). You see, with so little time remaining in the quarter, everybody wants a good horse that can make the ride enjoyable.

But the trouble is-those brilliant horses won't cooperate. The only explanation is that those creatures know they are leaving soon-and they want everybody to know they are not sorry. Why, they are celebrating.

Just the other day Dusty simply would not canter another step. And to prove his point, he dumped one of the professionals on the ground. The Chief was not tak-ing orders from any under-gradu-ate either, so he checked off up the bank of the track.
