Registration, Rushing, Tests Initiate Opening Of School

Met by a bevy of tests, speeches, classes, and officials, the new freshman class was ushered into GSCW life during their four day week of Orientation. The three Terrells will house the entire class, and the Junior Advisors placed in the various dormitories are: Marilyn Strickland, Floy Black, Sunny Jackson, Marianna Mobley, Anzlett Wootten, and Mary Alice Clower.

The Rec sponsored Mixer and the surprise serenade highlighted Scholarships To the first day on campus, and the freshmen were welcomed officially the following morning by the administration, the program consisting of short greetings by President Guy H. Wells, Dean Mary Thomas Maxwell, Dean D. H. McMahon, Registrar T. E. Smith, Miss Sara Bethel, and Miss Isabel Rogers. Ann Arnold, President of College Government, presided.

Then began the first of a series of placement tests and Student Handbook study groups at planned intervals, The handbook teachers under the guidance of Marianna Mobley included Wynelle Oglesby, Martha Lancaster, Norma Marshall, Phyllis Cardwell, Gray Maleolm, Ann Mathis, Peggy Jo Mitchell, Winn Robinson, Olga Fallen, Betty Herring, Barbara Batchelor, Mary Elizabeth Mosley, Jeanne Pierce, Ann Waters, Corinne Glover, Caroline contributions have been awarded Griffith, and Lyndoll Ulm.

GSCW Awarded

Eight Georgia girls have been awarded scholarships to GSCW this fall because of the initiative, the drive, and the generous contributions of alumnae groups, clubs, and individuals.

The Charlotte, N. C., Club will provice a tuition scholarship for Lee Strozier, Gainesville. Atlanta Club 1 has awarded the Julia Fillingim Memorial Scholarship to Gwendolyn Acree of Bass High, Atlanta. The Jones County Club chose Jeanette Martin, Jones County High honor student, for its $100 scholarship.

Other scholarships ranging from $75 to $150 made possible by the alumnae of Augusta, Dalton, Macon, Thomaston, and individual Jacqueline Hall, Cordele; Nancy The remainder of the week was Lee Herring. Cairo High, Whig-

I Am GSCW

I am G.S.C.W. - I am an instrument to be used and polished - to be wielded and wrought by the eager minds of striving students. I am, in truth, the reflection of the past, the symbol intangible, the product of all who have gone before, who have built my walls and preserved my future.

I have long been kept alive by the searching breath of youth, but I grow jaded and tarnished by the past's dim light, and I wait with an eternal sureness for today's ideas. I am thought but a shell, a prospective covering of the spirit of truth, honor, knowledge, and the laughter of friendship, but my resources are yours. My traditions are a valuable trust, which are now placed confidently in your hands, with the serene knowpledge that the present will never fail the past nor betray an expeciant future.

My life is lived by the student - without them I am empty buildings - a body without mind or soul,-a reeking tomb without essential air, and an ancient hand without groping fingers. I am, alone, an instrument, the lamp of learning, the symbol of knowledge, but in the grasp of youth I am a burning torchcarried aloft by the strength of intellect, and I am now indefatigable - I am G.S.C.W.

All of which is by the way of saying what hundreds of students already know - that, whatever the astranomical set - up attendant upon the usual birth, G.S.C.W.'s new dean of women was surely born under a very blue moon!

Mary Thomas Maxwell is perhaps best known to Jessies in one (or a combination) of three capacities - an excellent English teacher, a wise and sympathetic faculty adviser to numerous student organizations, and the righthand man of our beloved first dean of women, Miss Ethel Adams. She came to G.S.C.W. in 1938 already possessing the mental and spiritual and social qualities greatly needed by a dean of women, and through years of close association, as apartment - mate, with Miss Adams she served an unsus. pecting apprenticeship in the art of fashioning those qualities intothe attitudes, the vision, and the skill indispensable to a wise handling of her new assignment.

YOU'RE HERE AND WE'RE GLAD

Dear New Students:

Now that the whirlwind, called Orientation Week, is over, you've probably breathed a sigh of relief and decided that even classes are a welcome change. Just a word of warning though—don't relax to much! Soon other events will begin-Snag Week, Annual Hike, Golden Slipper, etc.-things you'll surely want to take an active part in.

You've received welcomes many times and from many people since you arrived—all of them sncere—but each time you were welcomed as a stranger to our campus. Now I want to extend one more welcome, not to strangers, but to our new friends and fellow members of the student body. We're glad you have joined us!

We wish you luck throughout the next four years and sincerely hope that through us you may gain an understanding and liking of, and a strong desire to work for a better CGA. CGA will be yours throughout your college career and though we won't be here all that time, we, by our conscious striving, hope to pass on to you our desire for an ever forward moving college gov-

On behalf of CGA

Dear Little Sisters:

If I had written this letter two weeks ago, maybe it would have been easier because then-I hadn't met you. I only knew that you would be here when I returned to campus. But now—after seeing you, being with you, laughing with you, living with you, and sometimes reprimanding you—I know you as a living part of GSCW.

'56'ers, you were destined to be our Little Sisters. Therefore, we will be privileged to share many things with you. Just to mention one or two-Rat Day which you must know about—and the other—??!!! GOLDEN SLIPPER! Now, you've probably heard about Golden Slipper, and most likely someone's made a stab at explaining it to you-but-until you eat, breathe and live Golden Slipper—you haven't lived! And with the class of '56 and the class of '54 eating, breathing, and living Galden Slipper together, we're bound to make a good showing.

Along with this welcome let me say, in behalf of the Junior Class-we are indeed glad you are here. We are already proud of you and are so glad that you have become a part of us. We hope that we, as big sisters $\underline{\ }$ and friends, can help you to know and love Jessie as we do.

Sincerely,

SUNNY JACKSON, President of Junior Class

This Is Your Freshman Year

Now that you're really here, Freshmen, and you've learned everything about college in one short week, perhaps that highlight calendar will be of use to you. You know your way around the campus, you've made friends, and met your Big Sister. You attended classes where you learned, we hope, the rules and regulations, as well as the Alma Mater and the dinner and supper bless. ings. Some of you even learned the breakfast blessing in time. But for those of you who may still be a wee bit confused, here is a bit of repetition in the guise of explanation which may offer some enlightment as to your schedule.

Soon you will experience Sports Day and Annual Hike, followed by an event which will be very important to you. This event is Goden Slipper. As you prepare for Golden Slipper you will realize just how wonderful it is to be a Freshman. You know that there is no other class quite as good bystanders their first Saturday night on campus. My as the Freshman class, and no other leaders quite as good as the Freshman class leaders. But at the same time, you are conscious that you must work hard to make that realization come true.

After you have been here about six weeks, you elect the officers who will lead you through the Freshman year. It's up to you during your first six weeks to get to know your fellow Freshmen, so that you will know who is qualified to be the ones you choose. You Oughta Know— You Did It

Since the purpose of this issue of the "Colonnade," is to "Howdy-do" the Freshmen, I'll not ruin it by reminding them of their minor mistakes and major obligations, but watch out, Frosh, this won't last forever—one false move and your name will be "black and white and read all over."

Speaking of major obligations—Isn't one of the most important obligations of the upperclassmen to always be an example (a good one) to her underclassmen? Of course, it could be that some upperclassmen prefer to be different and plan to receive full benefit of a set of rules and regulations in March instead of October. It looks that way.

I got this pretty straight from an on-the-spot reporter, that one fourth of second floor in "the dormitory" of the celestial, along with a member of your sister class fairly drowned themselves and a few innocent informer stated that this would not have been such a revolting development, had not the House Council and their advisor been discussing their code of living just below this small bombardment. It seems that Golden Slipper is a friendly contest between one girl practically maimed herself trying to get ness, "How soon do you think we can put our code into action?" Any question, if there was one, was beyond all doubt lost in the falling of plaster.

Hilarious as it may sound, this situation is far from being funny, although these girls, some of whom are the presidents of the major oranizations have found it quite an interesting topic of conversation ever since. I quote-"Talk is cheap, because the supply always exceeds the demand," unquote.
