A Dult or Not A Dult

Most of us, when we come to college, like to consider ourselves adults, or, if we secretly admit that we're still rather adolescent in a few ways, we, at least, like to think that we're fast achieving that fond old normity called maturity. When we hand down our color boks and paper dolls to the "children" in the family, and when we command the atention of our peers by methods which are more socially acceptable than stamping our feet, screaming, or being "problems," we then decide that we have put away our childish things and become a man.

However, there's one facet of this adult business that probably too few of us consider, and that is: how adult is our conversation? Using the vocabulary of a 6-year-old, try to carry on a mature conversation with your roommate. Anyone with this limited vocabulary would spend his life concentrating on the profound thoughts of a 6-year-old. This would be rather a handicap in the process of becoming an adult (now that's reasonable, isn't it?)

At what age did you suddenly decide that learning new words was too bothersome? Some of us are going merrily on our way, stuck with the maturity of a 16-year-old because our vocabularies haven't caught up with our anato-

If the position could be filled by a teen-ager, your future employer would have hired a high school graduate. And if your husband wants an adolescent for a wife, he wouldn't be looking for her among the list of college graduates. It's time some of us took stock and found out whether we're allowing this devilish process of growing up to continue or whether we've thrown a monkey-wrench in the work.

-Bunny LaHayne

To The High School Students

So now you're ready for a few years of higher education. Don't tremble and by all means don't laugh. They say college is the place where you learn to live with others and where you discover how to look things up in books. It's true, but college is that and much, much more.

This weekend the G.S.C.W. faculty and student body are hoping that you will take advantage of their warm welcome and decide for yourself how much you, personally, could gain from a college education. Talk with them and listen well to what they know of college opportunities.

The Colonnade staff would like to take this opportunity to welcome you on behalf of the entire college. We are at your service. We urge you to participate in all of the activities offered, and in the meantime—have a nice weekend.

You Ought'a Know—You Did It!

Despite the foul weather and the spreading "flu" germs, "The Voice" doesn't have laryngitis. Did I hear someone say, "What a pity?" Just the same, you are going to be sorry you uttered that statement, because I have no low blows to deliver this time. Quite the contrary—I wish to extend to the newlyelected Presidents of the three major organizations my congratulations and best wishes for a successful and profitable reign! To Pat, M.A.C., and Phyllis, our victorious leaders, may I give these two thoughts to help guide them through the coming year:

"I wish, I can, I will—these are the three trumpet notes to victory"-and "the block of granite which was an obstacle in the pathway of the weak becomes a stepping stone in the pathway of the strong." Good luck kids!

And while congratulations are being handed out let me say to the out-going officers that you've done a wonderful job. One of which you the student body and G.S.C.W. as a whole can be and are proud. All the mistakes that were made during your term of office will act as reminders by which the news officers can profit. We are grateful for your understanding and guidance and wish to say: So long—"job well done!"

My term of office is almost completed too. With the new Colonnade staff there will come a new 'Voice" You can soon tell me face to face all the things you've been saying behind

Before I pass my job on, I will disclose my identity, because I want you to have the pleasure of running me out of town on a rail. Are you in for a surprise!!!!

And Having Read, Moves On

After reading the editorial on vocabulary, I had the thought that there is here, an interchanging and integration that should perhaps be carried further. We cannot read and comprehend, unless we understand the basic structure, the word itself. And, also, we can never achieve this understanding, unless we do read . . . and read beyond our own field, our special developed

Granted, to have a thorough knowledge of one's major would be a miraculous accomplishment, but using that as an excuse to not broaden one's scope of interest, to become stagnant and dull, is to fail oneself.

Actually, except for a limited number of strictly practical purposes, what are we doing here? How many of us have developed interests, gone outside the circle, and realized there is much beyond our own narrow sphere? "We do not like to walk out of a door and find ourselves in the same room," and yet, therotically, this is what many of us do . . . . far too often.

To view is a fine thing—to view with openmindedness, is wonderful-but to view an unknown with openmindedness and vitality to develop interests and react to stimuli no matter how Caroline Griffith small, is the ultimate.

Spirit of G.S.C.?

"Spirit of G.S.C."-Just how much spirit does G.S.C. have? not how many songs can you sing about spirit—not the arguments you would readily raise in defense—just how do you participate?

No one could criticize an enthusiastic Golden Slipper school or the spirit found on Annual Hike or Sports Day, but these are big evnts. What happens after and in-between? What happen's to student body meetings? What happens to class meetings and class intramurals? Perhaps we should ask-are these things really important? Does it matter whether we vote or not? Should we confine school spirit to the active? People all over the state support and appreciate programs planned by our campus organizations. Do we?

organizations. Do wer "Spirit of G.S.C." We have it—why don't we show it?

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Please can you tell, what hapened to the lights along the walk from the library to Sanfrod? It's not that I get scared walking home at night or anything like that, although it is a very dark and lonely and bleak path. I know, too, that ten Seniors went out after the wandering man, and nine of thef caught him (one placing first in the Kentucky Derby); but still, can you tell me, what happened to the lights? I know that they might have all burned out at one time, but why haven't they been replace? If you cannot answr this satisfacorily, can you tell me where we Seniors might purchase some miner's helmets and blackjacks?

World Student Service Fund Drive Cashes In On Auction, Demonstrations

The annual World Student Service Fund drive was one of the major highlights of our campus this week. The WSSF is collected each year here as a sort of "banking" system for worthy students abroad, who are today in desperate need of books, clothes, food, Webb and equipment.

The drive opened Wednesday with one of its popular auctions, Mary Tippins, Priscilla Smith, held in the Student Lounge. The Mary Ella Rogers could be heard, "Going once, going twice, and sold to Jewell Aswalked away with a picnic supper | Mosly for six, given by Mrs. Ireland. FLOYD-

The bidding was heavy on Dean Maxwell's famous cheese straws. Wynelle Oglesby being the lucky winner. Dean MacMahon's Album, "An American in Paris," really created a sensation. Though it was a tough fight, our own 'Izzie' emerged victorious.

There were so many things to be auctioned that it was held again | Sherry Hampton, Sandra Paul. in the Lounge at noon Thursday. Jeanine Fraport All in all, the auction netted the Fund around sixty dollars.

Another event of the week was Coley the Circus given by the Tumbling Club in Russell Thursday with Betty Herring, President, and her group giving a sensational performance. During the program the hat was passed, everyone contributing generously.

Other highlights of the week were: The Senior - Faculty basketball game Thursday night the former being the victors, and the contest between the different dormitories.
