Student Receives N.E.S. Scholarship

A 19-year-old sophomore at Georgia College, Lee Roy Lane of Milledgeville, has been awarded a $500 News Election Service scholarship by the Georgia Ordinaries Association.

Judge Calvin Simpson, Baldwin County ordinary and president of the state association, made the presentation to Lane in the presence of two men having the name Taylor--Dr. Orville W.

Taylor, chairman of the department of history and political science at GC, and Charles S. Taylor, Jr., manager of the News Election Service of Georgia.

Lane is a political science major and is working his way through college.

The News Election Service is an organization formed by The Associated Press, United Press International, NBC, CBS and ABC to collect and tabulate the General Election vote. NES gives the scholarship to the ordinaries association for helping to collect the vote in each general election.

The winner of the scholarship is chosen by a committee of the association. To be eligible, a student must be majoring in either political science or journalism and must need financial help to complete his education.

Dear Action Line,

Why do freshmen female students have a restricted cur-view?

M.D.

Dear M.D.,

This is for two reasons. Number one, Dean Littleton said that the doors had to be locked in womens dorms to keep out unauthorized personal, Number two, the college is expected to act as parents, guardians, and general overseers of female freshmen by most parents. Therefore, because the college has this responsibility they cannot afford to be negligent.

Mike and Vulture

Dear Action Line,

Is it really necessary for upperclass females to secure school permission to live off campus?

J.F.

Dear J.F.

Unfortunately, it is. However, if you happen to be a Senior, or a Junior with a very good reason, you might be able to convince Dean Gaddis that it would be to your advantage to live off campus. Both Dean Littleton and Dean Gaddis would consider your case separately and make their decision based on your situation. Up until last year, every student was required to live on campus unless they were living with their parents or near relatives. So you can see they are slowly changing their policy. This year, only Freshmen and Sophomores are required to live on campus. So, hang in there, J.F., the times, they are a changing.

Two G.C. Profs

To Attend Convention

Two members of the Georgia College faculty will attend the 50th annual convention of the Southern Business Education Association to be held at the Seelbach Hotel in Louisville, Ky. on Nov. 22-25.

Theme of the convention is "A Golden Anniversary and a Golden Opportunity."

Dr. Joseph Specht, chairman of the department of business administration and economics at GC, will speak on the topic "A Golden Opportunity for the Junior College."

Dr. Doris Engerrand, an assistant professor of business administration and economics at GC, will participate as a panelist during a session on teaching communication through office simulation.

Georgia College Adds New Faculty Members

Two new assistant professors have been added to the faculty of the home economics department at Georgia College.

Miss Marie Smythia, whose specialty is fashion marketing, received her B.S. degree in home economics from Middle Tennessee State University where she was also chosen for Who's Who Among Students of American Colleges and Universities. She received her M.S. degree in clothing and textiles from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in 1972. While working on her masters degree, she was a graduate teaching assistant at V.P.I.

She is a member of the Association of College Professors of Clothing and Textiles and the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists.

She has held several positions in production and sales for several sportswear companies in Tennessee.

Mrs. Cheryl Whetstone Hutton, a former instructor at Cornell University who specializes in textiles, is also new to the GC faculty.

She received her B.S. degree in dietetics in 1968 from the University of Alabama and her M.S. degree in food science in 1969 from the University of Tennessee.

The Journal of Animal Science published an article written by Mrs. Hutton in 1971 entitled "The Relationship of Alkali and Ringer Insoluble Collagen to the Tenderness of Beef Heated at Two Rates."

She received a leadership award from Pensacola Junior College, which awarded her an A.A. degree in 1966. She also received a Borden Award, the highest scholarship presented in the home economics field, in 1968.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor: On September 27 of this fall quarter the Maxwell College Union was dedicated to the use and service of this current student body, faculty, and staff and, hopefully, to similar academic bodies for years to come.

college officials should have considered the expediency of concrete benches. Such furniture holds up very well under the severest abuse even in Central Park. Cement blocks negate all comfort factors, of course, but they last and they are cheap.

The building represents an investment in excess of 1 1/2 million dollars. This cost was covered by a Board of Regents appropriation.

The College Union Board has been convening recently to figure the future of Maxwell Union. We're looking for suggestions for the care and preservation of the newest addition to our campus environment. The sofa previously mentioned cost $350; the felt on the pool table costs $100 when replaced. Who can afford the expense of such repairs? Now we, say members of the Board.

Realizing the desperate need for an adequate social hub and center for student activities on our campus, the entire college community has long awaited the completion of this facility.

Actually, Student Activity funds saved over a period of years have helped furnish Maxwell Union. According to the Comptroller's Office $16,600 from this source helped in the purchase of such items as TV sets, pool tables, stereo players and lounge furniture. This cost-sharing decision came from the Student Activities Budget Committee.

So now we have it...and along with it some attendant problems that no pill can cure. The main problem is destructo-environmental and thoroughly heartbreaking to some of us who believe it is sinful to damage the goods of others. But then senseless destruction and abuse of property are not new problems. What is new is Maxwell Union, and in little more than a month's time this building shows more use than normal wear-and-tear would produce over a period of several years.

So why don't the students protect their investment? Looking after one's own is a basic in human conduct. Giving advice is another basic. If members of the student body wish to address the problem we have described and offer advice directed toward a solution, we are ready to listen.

In the billiards room the walls are dirty where soles of shoes have deposited smudgy footprints to affirm an interest in the game. Little holes in the felt-topped tables are reminders that an ungainly cue stick missed its mark; end tables in the lounge have sidestrips missing or loose. A sofa facing the color TV has several buttons missing. Across the top of another sofa is an indelible signature-"Judy S." (Graffiti on furniture is as necessary as telling the preacher it's Sunday).

Sports Awareness At Georgia College

by Alan Messer

In the past and even now in the present it appears that athletic support and participation has been considered somewhat of a trival matter and a second-rated activity for the majority of Ga.

College students. Support for athletic teams simply does not exist in the form of mass participation. Reasons for the non-support are plentiful but for the most part are totally irrelevant.

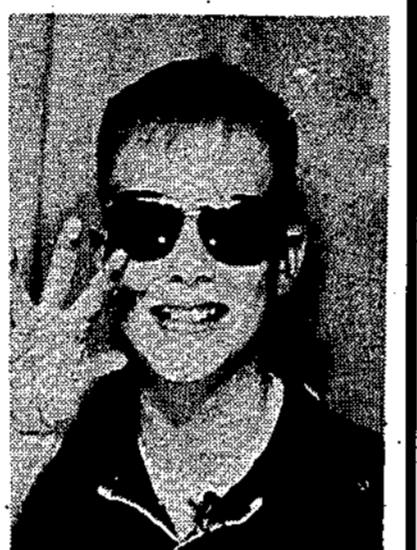

Examples of our great school spirit could be reviewed at our soccer games. I myself must admit that the soccer team was indeed nothing spectacular by I seriously feel and know (through past experiences) that if the games were supported many defeats could have been possible victories. For those of you out there including myself who have possible victories. For those of you out there including myself who have participated in high school sports, you know and realize the affect that a large crowd can have on the outcome of a game. Also, those of you who have participated in competition know the feeling or sensation received when accomplishing an outstanding feat and are cheered by the crowd. I myself have experienced this sensation and it is a feeling that can not be obtained too often by any other means. At times just the presence of a large excited crowd stimulates the team and gives them needed momentum and a desire to win.

Participation in sports require great dedication and the athlete constantly sacrifices needed time to practice. This factor alone should give you the students some consideration for your fellow student. The team practice and excels not only for the gratification of the team but for you and Ga. College. The athletics dedication time and efforts are to give you a better sport's team. The least we can do is to support them!

The Colonnade is trying desperately to develop sport's awareness and spirit within Ga. College. We will try to accomplish this huge feat by publishing weekly a section dedicated to the athletic programs at Ga. College. Our section will premier on the 30th of November, when at this time we will give you, the students of Ga. College, a preview of this year's basketball team.

improved relations between students and the administration more student rights and voice 5 respondents change the freshman girls curfew 4 respondents

G.C. campus phone system with phones in all rooms

more organized co-ed activities

As those of you who read our paper know, the Colonnade has already ran two PRO AND CON articles. Some of you may be delighted while others may give a sigh of despair and pray that next week one won't appear on Herty. Rest assured, no pro and cons on Herty will flow from the pen of Quill. I'm willing to admit ignorance where it exists. Unfortunately, my knowledge of science is so limited that should a pro or con of Herty walk up and slap my face I would not recognize it. However, if there is anyone else who would care to do this, feel free to go right ahead.
The downstairs of Maxwell is a beautiful sight to behold especially to those of us who remember Atkinson! Ah, Atkinson, how we frooze there in winter, and melted there in the summer. The tables were few, we were crowded and cramped. The place was old, filthy, crumbling and condemned. The facilities upstairs were little better.

Our new building, Maxwell, contains a new post office and a large convenient bookstore. The SU is a pride and joy. We have a place to play cards and we can even borrow the cards. We have pool tables, ping pong tables and two t.v.s. Bridge and chess players have quiet, private rooms to use, and there are even some good places to sneak away to for a little extra study on that exam! And here, right in the building, we have rest rooms! (To the Freshmen this may not seem to be anything to get excited about, but to those of us who endured the old S.U. this is progress to be thankful for.) And best of all, there is no fear of the building falling in on us.
As a whole, this building is a great addition to our campus.
It has added alot to the convenience and fun to those of us here, and this should be a great addition in attracting prospective students.
However, as wonderful as

Maxwell is, it is not without its faults. Fortunately, most of them can be corrected. For instance, it would be nice if the building had at least one pay phone that just anyone could use.
Many students wish that the building could be left open a little later than 11 p.m., especially on the weekends. This would be nice for certain organizations that have offices in Maxwell who might have deadlines to meet.
Often the S.U. is littered and filthy, and absolutely gross to behold. This fault lies with the students. Trash cans are provided, and we could greatly improve the looks of this building if we used them.
On the whole, we have a building to be proud of. It is one of the best things to happen to this school in 30 years, and of all of the new buildings, the downstairs of Maxwell has the least mistakes.

Announcement!
Brett will surf down a huge wave of iced tea at Maxwell Union Friday morning.
