ARRIVAL OF "WHEELS OF WAR" CAMPAIGN
(Philadelphia B. B. News, January 30)

Dear Editor:
I am a nurse who have a conflict between their work and their own personal satisfaction. I am not a giver who has received. I am a receiver who has given. I am not a giver who has received. I am a receiver who has given.

Ours is a world fragmented into self-sufficient compartments, linked only by the occasional exchange of greetings through the mail. It is a world where the personal relationships are rare, and the sense of community is weak.

But this world can be changed, if we are willing to take the first step. If we are willing to take the time to reach out to others and to offer our help and our understanding. If we are willing to break down the barriers that separate us and to build bridges of hope and of understanding.

We can make a difference. We can create a better world. But it will require effort, and it will require courage. It will require us to be open to new experiences and to be willing to learn from them.

Let us not be afraid to take the first step. Let us not be afraid to reach out to others. For in doing so, we can create a better world. We can make a difference. And we can be truly happy.

Yours sincerely,

AMONG THE OVERTURES

A TYPICAL SUNDAY

It is always difficult to go to church. The people are always so happy. It is difficult to feel happy when you are there. But it is necessary. It is necessary to feel happy. It is necessary to feel happy. It is necessary to feel happy.

I sometimes feel that church is not for me. That it is not a place where I can truly be myself. That it is not a place where I can express my true feelings.

But I realize now that church is necessary. It is necessary to have a place where I can feel connected to others. It is necessary to feel part of something larger than myself. It is necessary to feel part of something larger than myself. It is necessary to feel part of something larger than myself.

And so I go to church. I go to church to feel connected to others. I go to church to feel part of something larger than myself. I go to church to feel happy.

EXCHANGES

A man ought to read just as inclu-sively and as extensively as is good for him. As much as possible, and as much as he can, and as much as he understands. As much as possible, and as much as he can, and as much as he understands.

This is the way that I read. I read widely and deeply. I read to understand the world. I read to understand myself. I read to understand the human condition.

And so I read. I read widely and deeply. I read to learn. I read to understand. I read to discover. I read to grow.

J. S. C. W. DELEGATION
ATTENDS CONFERENCE

A delegation from G. S. C. gave a special "T." Forer service. The adding for this service was most attractive. The only light used was the light given from many candles. Flowers were placed on each side of the stage. The Y. W. C. A. colors were used in decorating the stage and the girls themselves were white dresses and blue gowns. The first number was a chant, "The Lord is In His Holy Temple," by Gladys McMichael. Then followed to order a prayer by Mary Bailey; an introductory talk by Miss Goodson; a piano solo by Marva Bailey; a short talk, "What the Y. W. C. A. is Going to Promote Temperance," by Judith McCleland, and a vocal solo, "Lead on Oh Echo Echo," by Gladys McMichael.

Several social activities were planned for the entertainment of the delegates. Brenau College gave a reception Wednesday afternoon. On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. F. R. Henry had all the delegates as her guests at a tea.

Dorothy Parks, Dorothy Thomason, Catherine Allen, Dorothy Wallis, Beth Manning, Rebecca Fowler, Frances Phillips, Roberta McCleland, Pauline Sigan, Jannette Adams, Lorraine Magi, Priscilla Lancaster, Dorothy Joy, Dina Allgood, Gladys Pierce, Marilyn Byrd, Ellis Ruth Lowen, Mary Mae Martin, Cheryl Puczenko, Emma Sue Mitchell, Jeanette Reed, Margaret Camp, Eleanor Piper, Elizabeth Brown.

GLADYS McMICHAEL HEADS ENGLISH SENIORS

Due to the size of our college, it has been a president for the different departments to organize so that they may do more intensive work. Therefore, the English Senior class, feeling that they had a common interest at heart—the study of English Literature, met on Friday afternoon, October 22, to discuss plans for organizing. Since the Milledgeville Senior class is too small to follow contemporary writings as a specified course, it was decided that the programs at the club meetings should contain material of the writers and works of our own times. A nominating commission was appointed to gather nominations for the four offices.

The election was held on Monday afternoon, October 25, when Miss Kusterer first most graciously entertained the English Senior Class in her home. After a very interesting program was rendered and delightful refreshments were served, the following officers were elected:

President—Gladys McMichael.
Secretary and Treasurer—Mary Elizabeth Kilgarrich.

Sup. — "What are you calling up?"
F. B. — "We have a very important student newspaper to discuss right now."
