Dr. J. L. Bessow Relates History and Development of Georgia State College for Women

Dr. J. L. Bessow, President of the Georgia State College for Women, was discussing the history and development of the college on Thursday, November 18. He said that the college had been founded in 1871 by Dr. John L. Bessow and had been under his leadership since its inception. Dr. Bessow emphasized the importance of education for women and the college's commitment to providing quality education. He also discussed the challenges faced by the college and the progress it had made in recent years.

The college was founded in 1871 and was the first public college for women in the state. It was founded by Dr. John L. Bessow, who was a prominent lawyer and politician. The college was initially known as the Georgia State College for Women and was located in Atlanta. It was initially a private institution, but it became a state institution in 1881.

During Dr. Bessow's presidency, the college has grown significantly in size and scope. It has expanded its program offerings and has provided more opportunities for students. The college has also become more diversified, with a growing number of students from different backgrounds.

TO THE ALUMNAE OF GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Thanksgiving Day will soon come, and now is a good time to reflect on the good fortune of alumnae and friends. It is during the month of November that we should remember all the happy memories of our college days and the people who have helped us to grow and develop. The memories of those college days are precious and should be cherished. It is during the holiday season that we should think about the people who have helped us and who have been an important part of our lives.

Happy Thanksgiving Day to all of you.

A Book Review

Book reviewing in the Prise and joy of amateur reporters. But to be able to review a book written and signed by a person one knows, and claims for a friend, Call for something more than a formal review. It seems to call for the enthusiasm and freedom of an informal talk.

In the first place there is the excellent name of "Home-Keeping Hearts" in gold. The cover makes one think of sprays for its light, lively shade of green accented with spring gray and leaves. The title is well known, as coming from those lines of Longfellow.

"Sparking at home my heart and hands."

Home-keeping hearts are happiest. For those that wander, they know not where.

Are full of trouble and full of care.

To stay at home is best."

The book is dedicated to "My Grandmother and My Garden." Following the dedication are three photographs. The first is a Usance of Mrs. Hines' grandmother, Emma Womack Hines, Jr. The second is a picture of the beautiful garden at Greenhouse, the home of the author. The third is a photograph of the garden with Mrs. Hines and her grandson sitting together. The pictures vividly illustrate the two short lines of dedication.

The seven divisions of the book are illustrated with pen and ink sketches drawn by the author. The divisions of the book are:

1. Home-Keeping Hearts.
2. Where Milk and Honey Flow.
3. Along Comes Spring.
4. A Little Nineteen Now and Then.
5. When Mary Sings.
6. Hollyhocks and Butterflies.

Each division gives and satisfies some need of the reader. Each new poem expresses some special idea in one's mind that has lain dormant, waiting for just such an expression. It is so also in the collection of poems in a loving kindred, ready at hand to use when the desire comes to read. Now did Mrs. Hines forget her Alma Mater for one division there appear four short verses headed "All G. S. C. W."

The most attractive thing in the book is the last page. Have you seen pictures made, say forty years ago, of a little fat girl, in prim and sober, with two tight little curls? That's when one finds on the last page, and its entitled "Dear Little Me at the Age of Three."

You will have to own one of them delightful books to see how very charmingly our own Mrs. Hines has written and illustrated things as dear to the hearts of school girls and Georgia. One of the slogans of the country is "Mrs. Hines' books have come."

TO THE ALUMNAE OF GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

From Alumnae Matrons

Although Wedesday was my original Alumna Matron, my subsequent studies at G. S. C. W. have not the right to be called an Alumnus.

My course here began with studies leading to the renewal of teacher's license, led to the dual role of teacher and student, and graduated me to the position of matron. The course has been an interesting one.

The Alumnae Matrons of Georgia State College for Women are Mrs. Almira Bland, '29, and Mrs. Markwoman Mabry, '29, and Mrs. Mary W. Ash, '29.
