SENIORS GIVEN NEW PRIVILEGE

At a class meeting Friday Mary Rogers, president of the Senior class, announced that the "quiet hour" privilege has been definitely settled. Students may do anything they wish during quiet hour on Sunday except go to ride with town people. In the future on Sunday afternoon we may expect to see the campus decked with Seniors in their spring coats, cheering up. Underclassmen, "every dog has his day".

NEW SOPHOMORE COMMISSION MEMBERS

A meeting of the Sophomore class was held on Friday, Feb. 19 to fill the three vacancies on the Sophomore Commission. These members of the Sophomore Committee became Junior at the beginning of the spring term this year.

The new members of the commission are Irene Parson, Frances Dixon and Mary Rice McMichaels.

IN TRIBUTE

No finer words can be said than those to express an appreciation of a dead worthy of praise; no greater accomplishment can be made than that of devoting the admiring and respect of one's associates—than G. S. C. W. feels about Dr. Johnson's offhanging and enduring efforts. She has given her best—true, patriotic, originality, voice, talent—unavailingly. Could the hero she shall receive for his work, this creation to commemorate the two-hundredth birthday of our first and beloved president ever equal the mental and physical exhaustion it has crossed? Can even the circumstances of the whole state revolve for her the drain that has been made on her tenure time? Yet unselfishly she has given—and this can be expressed as a cause greater than her own the glorification of G. S. C. W. Her president, faculty, and students and the elation of the present old class in the influence of George Washington.

JOHNSON RECEIVES NATIONAL MEDAL

The two illustrations below show the two sides of the medal recently awarded Dr. Amanda Johnson by the National George Washington Bicentennial Commission for distinctive service rendered to the celebration of George Washington's two-hundredth birthday. This medal took the form of the writing and production of the pageant presented Monday evening in the Georgia State College for Women auditorium.

"Episodes in the Life of Washington" the pageant written by Dr. Johnson, was produced under her direction, with members of the college student body composing the cast. Each representative group on the campus was selected to present two acts to be placed in the production and Dr. Johnson selected the characters from this number.

Over Five Hundred Young Women Take Part in "Episodes in the Life of Washington."

Over five hundred young women had a part in unfolding the events in the Life of George Washington Monday evening when a pageant was presented at the auditorium of the Georgia State College for Women in celebration of the bicentennial of the first President's birth.

"Episodes in the Life of Washington" is in the title of the brilliant and colorful pageant that was given by the students of the college. Under the direction of Dr. Amanda Johnson, head of the history department and author of the pageant, the young ladies have been busy for many weeks rehearsing and preparing for this presentation. Dr. Johnson was awarded a medal of honor by the national committee for the celebration of the bi-centennial and the pageant has been declared one of the best to be given in the entire country.

The event in the Life of the First President were told in pantomime, beginning with his boyhood and continuing through until his death. The hatchet scene was especially interesting as were the many events that surrounded the old Virginia plantation.

The first inauguration and inaugural ball were most colorful and beautifully staged. Costumes of the period have been designed by the arts department and the dances have been arranged under the direction of Miss Ann Elizabeth Miller, and her corps of assistants.

Dr. J. L. Beison invited many state dignitaries to the presentation, and the people of Milledgeville were extended an invitation.

"It was an accident."

The true story of the

is a mystery. We have ever been able to account for the fact that the telephone was invented in 1876.

"You're right."

Do you want to know about the

"I don't care."

You can always find a girl who

D. A. R. MARKER PLACED ON 8-10-32

Friday afternoon of Feb. 15 — a program was presented at the auditorium celebration of the birthday of Washington. The exercises were to have been held on the campus but only weather necessitated it indoors for the benefit of the G. C. M. C. band furnished music for the occasion.

Mrs. Harry Harris portrayed Washington as a military leader, a poet, a writer and a Christian. He was "a perfect blending and understanding of all the great characteristics," begins Mr. Harris. "First, he was a great soldier. His training was to be a library leader, and when at the age of forty four he became commander in chief he knew the habits and tempers of his men."

"There were times when the stars almost went out of the sky. Washington kept on leading until victory was won and victory was accomplished. He did not win many great victories, but he never lost a battle. Patriotism burned as a fire eternal in the hearts of his followers."

"Rev. Harris said that Washington was respected by the nations. Of course, changes have been made, but the Founding Father is the same Washington had the ability to use."

"Although he was great as a soldier, a patriot, and a statesman, he represented the best in his great and characteristic Christian. The words of the Constitution and the great Christian character than Washington."

"The speech was concluded with the famous quotation from George Washington: 'Lrave men of all ages!'"

"Can we make our lives sublime? And departing leave behind upon our earth in the words of the President of the D. A. R. She said that the country would be remembered by a larger class in the near future. Dr. Besant possessed the G. C. M. C. clasp for the following: A.I."

Two Georgia Governors are refused place on Washington Table

Eight ancestors of Georgia's governors who selected Southern and the other two candidates were nominated by a bronze tablet placed on the floor of the Room by the local Nancy Hart Chapter of D. A. R. The names of two governors, James and T. P. Morgan, do not appear on this tablet because only two others were appointed and selected by the people of the southern state.

Governor Johnson was appointed provisional governor; Governor Brown of the State of Arizona was "selected for duty" by military authorities.
