Quartermaster
A proposal that the mails of American ships be opened at sea, especially on vessels carrying enemy arms, has been recently discussed in the highest military circles.

The discussion of the proposal has been prompted by recent developments in the war.

The proposal is based on the premise that enemy arms carried on American ships are a threat to the safety of the United States.

The proposal has been met with strong opposition from some quarters, who argue that it is a violation of maritime law and a breach of international relations.

The proposal has also been criticized for being too vague and lacking in practicality.

The debate over the proposal is likely to continue for some time, as it is a complex issue with many different perspectives and interests at play.

The Colonnade

Cameras Crusts

The following clipping from the Colonnade is an excellent illustration of the dangers of photography.

The object of the photo is a small, delicate flower, but the photographer has focused on the background, making the subject almost unrecognizable.

The photographer has also used a long exposure, causing the flower to blur and lose its natural beauty.

The result is a photo that is beautiful in its own way, but it is a far cry from the intended subject.

The lesson to be learned from this experience is that it is important to focus on the subject and avoid distractions.

Through the Week With the Alumnae

The Alumnae of G.S.W. has named the winner of the annual "Alumnae for the Alumnae" contest.

The winner, a senior at G.S.W., will receive a $1,000 scholarship and a trip to New York City to attend a fashion show and meet with members of the fashion industry.

The Alumnae for the Alumnae contest is designed to encourage alumni to support the university and its students.
