The American medical community is an old and storied group, full of rich history and tradition. Among these, the Association of American Medical Colleges stands out as a beacon of excellence, offering a platform for the exchange of ideas and the advancement of medical knowledge. Recently, a lively event took place at one of these esteemed institutions, the Medical College at Georgia State College for Women, in Millen and Sylvania, Ga., Tuesday, December 12, 1935. This gathering was a unique opportunity for students, faculty, and alumni to come together and share their experiences and insights. The event was a testament to the dedication and commitment of the medical community, as well as the importance of education and collaboration in the field of medicine.

The event began with a speech by Professor Smith, who welcomed everyone and provided an overview of the day's proceedings. Following the speeches, the audience was treated to a series of presentations on various medical topics, including recent developments in surgery, the latest research findings, and innovative approaches to patient care. These presentations were delivered by a diverse group of speakers, including medical doctors, researchers, and medical students.

One of the highlights of the event was the presentation by Dr. Johnson on the latest research in cancer treatment. Dr. Johnson's presentation was both informative and inspiring, highlighting the progress being made in this area of medicine. The audience was left with a renewed sense of hope and optimism for the future of cancer research.

The afternoon was dedicated to a roundtable discussion, where participants were invited to share their thoughts and ideas on the day's topics. This was an excellent opportunity for attendees to engage in meaningful dialogue and to gain insights from a variety of perspectives.

The day concluded with a reception, where participants had the opportunity to network and socialize with their peers. The atmosphere was lively and convivial, with music, refreshments, and conversation.

In summary, the event was a resounding success, and it is evident that the participants left with a greater understanding of the medical field and a renewed appreciation for the role of education and collaboration in advancing medical knowledge. The organizers of the event are to be commended for their efforts in bringing together such a varied and knowledgeable group.

Senior Broadcast Is Big Success

Messages of congratulations received from all parts of the state.

The senior class program at W. S. B. Thursday was more than a success, judging from the thunderous applause that greeted the last word in the act department. The banquet was given by Mrs. Minnie Pugh, Mrs. Lillia Scott, and the department, and was attended by over 150 guests. The program included a variety of musical numbers, speeches, and presentations, all of which were well-received by the audience.

The highlight of the evening was undoubtedly the presentation by Miss Lillian Scott, who spoke on the theme of success. Her speech was a call to action, encouraging the audience to pursue their dreams and never give up. The message was inspiring and resonated with the students, who were left feeling motivated and empowered.

The evening concluded with a grand finale, featuring a fireworks display that lit up the sky with a burst of colors and lights. The audience was left in awe, and the program was a fitting conclusion to a memorable evening.

In conclusion, the senior class program at W. S. B. Thursday was a resounding success, with excellent performances, inspiring speeches, and a grand finale that left the audience in awe. The program was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the senior class, and it is evident that they left a lasting impression on their classmates and the community.

Three Students, One Teacher, Take Grand Medal in Drama

Five students, including three seniors, were honored at the annual Drama Department dinner, held in the college auditorium. The awards were given in recognition of the students' outstanding performances in the fall play, "The Three Investigators." The students were chosen based on their talent, dedication, and hard work, and they were congratulated for their achievements.

The dinner was a celebration of the students' success, with speeches and a special performance by the newly formed Drama Society. The evening concluded with a delicious meal, and the students left feeling proud of their accomplishments.

Overall, the Drama Department dinner was a fitting tribute to the hard work and dedication of the students, and it was a testament to the power of theatre in bringing people together and inspiring excellence.
