Senior Officer Represents GSC in Washington

Virginia Tanner Writes of National Student Conference.

By Virginia Tanner
I have been asked to write an account of the annual convention of the National Student Federation of America, which met in Washington, D.C. from December 27 through the 31st, and I was fortunate enough to attend as a representative of the local society. Such an experience as this proves to be, its far too long and signif-ificant to outline into a few words or even into any words that I find myself able to command. It was truly a mountain-top experience. In spite of the stereotyped view of such an event, I feel that the senior officer offered three of us who had been gathered from all sections of the United States to discuss student problems and national and international affairs, it virtually lifted us up out of the rut of self, seternal, and even national bitterness and made us see in a far away, a few of the big, fundamental social and economic problems which

Scholarships Offered Teacher And Student

Two resident scholarships in Professor Belcher's College have been offered to any teacher and any student on this campus who are interested in obtaining graduate degrees elsewhere.

One scholarship is one hundred dollars and the teacher's and the stu-ent's fees are taken out of the sum.

The second scholarship was offered by the student officer to the student who would devote the student's hours to doing on the campus of professor Belcher for her benefit to a

Dr. Weber Elected to National Office

Dr. George Daniels Weber was elected first vice-president of the Pan American National Social Science Society, at the National convention held in Philadelphia December 27, 28, and 29. He was also elected the direct-city of the Social Science Publishing Co. and a trustee of Phi Sigma Alpha.

He attended the convention as a representative of the S. C. R. in chapters of the A. U. P.

At the annual dinner held at Vachel, December 28, he delivered a paper, "The Economic Problem
The Political Mind and the Democracy." Many other interesting papers were also included in the program.

Mr. Thaxton Tells Of Lyceum Schedule

Mr. Thaxton, as chairman of the committee which is bordering the Lyceum program, told the students that because of the close proximity of the two events they were only able to get two programs for the week. Dr. Ross is expected to be here today and Dr. Weeks will speak on Thursday.

Mr. Thaxton also announced that there would be a meeting of the students starting at 4:30 in the right-hand room of the new Administration Building.

Miss Johnston Dedicates New Building

Miss John Johnston, Director of Home Economics, spoke about the dedication of the new Home Economics building. She said that the building was a result of the efforts of many people and that it would be a great asset to the College.

Thursdays with the ALUMNAE

The ALUMNAE will be holding their regular Thursday meeting this week. The meeting will be held in the old Administration Building at 4:00. All alumnae are invited to attend.

LETS HARMONIZE

Beats may be indicative of life, but rivers of tears are the visible, and sometimes more than mere tears of finality. At least, some of the tears are not central wells of grief when the hero gets into a plot and plighted he is in the Leah B. Russell, Auditorium. From the heroine's viewpoint so many to traditional activity. However, there is something more along the line that brings tears.

The sympathetic giggles of bewhiskered monocled equals tears! The several tears that come from the heart of one, and from that heart there is no emotional expression.

The ancient body meet, and decide in favor of one or the other. Harmonize. Giggle or weep, but do be both.

Student Vele Causes Elm Tree To Live

"To cut or not to cut" was the subject for discussion in chapel November 2, 1928.

The question was in reference to an elm tree which stands in the center of the walk between Turkey and McDonald dormitories.

The concrete pavement was held at the time and it was necessary to saw the tree or cut it up so the pedestrians would have something to walk on. The student body voted to leave the tree.
