Georgia Singers
Here Tonight

Entertainment Will Be Given by Students and Guest Artist.

On its twenty-third annual tour, the University of Georgia Glee Club under the direction of Hugo Hodges, professor of music, will present in the G. S. W. Auditorium at 6:30 Thursday night.

Mr. Hodges, one at the few black conductors and pianists in the country, directs the chorus of 68 trained voices and takes personal part in the performances.

Miss Clara Harper, a violinist from Chicago, is the special artist on the program. Her first appearance in Georgia was before the faculty and students of Teachers College in 1923.

One thousand Georgia women college students were present at the time. She has been associated with Wartburg College, being in 23 years, a member of the faculty of Col. Col., Iowa State College, where she was a teaching assistant on the Juilliard Graduate school in New York where she received her Bachelor of Music in 1951.

Her tour of work with the symphonies, she has culminated in a solo tour in concert with Gustavus De Loer, etc.

More recently Mrs. Harper was a member of the faculty of The University of Georgia and has been associated with the University of the South and Falmouth.

Advance notices report that the program offers more than an evening of string music. It is a musical entertainment of the finest kind.

Duties Assigned
98 C 8 A Students

Dr. Earl Beirn Bolton Present Paper at Southern Psychology Meet

Dr. Earl Beirn Bolton attended the annual meeting of the Southern Society for Psychological Analysis on March 30th in Ruston, La., where he gave a paper on "The Sensitivity of the Special Right of the Negro." This paper is a modification of a previous study on the effectiveness of college students towards the Negro with the report of the National Psychological Association in Chicago last fall.

Accompanying Dr. Bolton to the convention were Claude Keith, Arthur F. Underwood, William E. Hilton, and Mary Louise Dutie.

The program of the meeting included papers on the field of psychology and philosophy studies of the Society on Friday morning and afternoon, the second day feature, and a joint session on Saturday morning and afternoon. In all of these meetings, papers dealing with laboratory or operatoric experimentation were brought by members of the Society to the city of Birmingham, and the areas interest were also included in the program.

This convention was the twentyninth annual meeting of the Society. Next year's meeting will be held in Nashville, Tennessee.

String Quartet On Radio Program

The G. & C. W. H. Health, Music, and Dramatic Club, broadcast over WMAE Monday afternoon, featured "The String Quartet." The quartet, composed of Misses Mary Beaty, Mary Hollis, and Misses Carolyn and Nancy Farnum, conducted by Dorothy Ellis. The numbers given were: "The McDowell Waltz" by Beethoven; "Ricordi" by Schubert; and "Ain't She Sweet" by Gershwin. Misses Farnum and Beaty sang solos on "Mother, We're Home." A broadcast was made of "Mental Hygiene for the Student." This was the first of the many broadcasts to be given by the club.

Vocational Guidance

It is difficult enough for a person to decide on a career when he is particularly interested in a particular field. But to a person who is not interested in the particular field, to decide on a career is more difficult. The following are some suggestions to help you make career decisions:

1. Consider your interests and abilities. What do you enjoy doing? What are your strengths and weaknesses?
2. Consider your future goals. What do you want to achieve in the future?
3. Consider the economy and job market. What careers are in demand?
4. Consider the lifestyle. What kind of lifestyle do you want to have?

These suggestions are not all-inclusive, and you should consult with a career counselor or adviser to help you make your career decisions.

Miss Lynn Explains Fashion Trends

With the climate of the northern states being as it is, W. B. and Smith have decided to throw open a special luncheon for all of their customers. This last week’s special luncheon was held on Saturday night, when a large group of customers attended the luncheon at the W. B. store. The luncheon was held in the beautiful dining room of the store, and a large number of people were present. The luncheon was enjoyed by all, and the guests were served with speciality dishes, including a specially prepared salad and a delicious dessert. The atmosphere was filled with a feeling of elegance and sophistication, and the guests were treated to a delightful evening of food and conversation.

Spring Enrollment Shows Increase

The enrollment of G. S. W. reached the highest point in five years. The increase in enrollment is due to several factors, including the excellence of the faculty, the quality of the curriculum, and the reputation of the university. The increase in enrollment is significant, as it indicates a growing interest in higher education and a recognition of the value of a college education.
