Mrs. Nelle Hines Writes "Dad's" Song For Parents' Day

The title of the song written by Mrs. Nelle Hines for Parents' Day, entitled "A Song For My Dad," will be a highlight of the Parents' Day celebration May 13.

The song is dedicated to the members of the staff and students of Peabody High School and was written by special request of the parents. It is to be sung by the members of the Granddoughters club at the Parents' Day program, and it will be sung by members of the Granddoughters club at a later date.

Parents' Day plans for Peabody High School are now being completed and more than eighty hundred people are expected.

A stimulating chaplet program has been planned, and numerous other entertainments for the rest of the day. The evening of the May Queen, to be started from the school, will be the outstanding feature of the day.

Alternative activities, designed by the Granddoughers' club, will be attended by the parents and guardians of the students during the week. The parents of Peabody's Day, that the parents may meet their daughters, will not be met by members of the Granddoughters club at a later date.

Parents are expected to arrive at the chapel at eight o'clock or earlier.

A banquet will be prepared on the fourth floor of the school by the Peabody's Day committee.

The evening of the May Queen, to be started from the school, will be the outstanding feature of the day.

Gregory Anctil holds the record for being the first person to deliver the May Queen address.

The Easter Parade

When R. F. W. C. popped into view in all of his glory, many of the latest fashion plates then hit the trail. Teenagers sought the streetcar with savage determination, and the status girls met their every need.

The Easter Parade is a tradition of the modern age, and a celebration of the new. It is a time when the world is united in its quest for beauty and style. Everyone wants to be part of the parade, for it is the moment when all can share in the excitement of the moment. The Easter Parade is a symbol of the hope and optimism of the season, and a time for all to come together and celebrate.

Student Opinion

College students of today are living in an age of great change. Many of them have problems with which civilization has long dealt. They have a very complex and sophisticated lifestyle, and it is often difficult to find an outlet for their creative energy. Many students, including college students, are on the move, and some of them cannot keep up with the pace of change.

There are some who argue that college students should be concerned with the problems of the world, and others who think that college students should be more focused on their own personal lives. But it is important to remember that college students are not only concerned with their own lives, but also with the lives of those around them.

War Drums

'To preserve and defend the United States of America against all enemy attacks, to resist all enemies, and to defend the nation from foreign and domestic aggression.'

This is the mission statement of the United States military. It is a commitment to preserving the safety and security of the nation. This commitment is made possible by the sacrifices of our service members, who are dedicated to serving their country and protecting its interests.

There are few students in today's college who do not have a strong sense of patriotism. They know that the United States is a great nation, and they are proud to be part of it. They are committed to supporting their country and serving their fellow citizens.

Students Make Trip To Atlanta On Screene-lane Bus

On April 12, thirty-two G. C. S. C. girls, sponsored by Polly Moss, met at McMillan Hall at 7:30 a.m. to attend the Institute on Religion and Economics, which was held in Atlanta. It was as early as 10:36 a.m. when the girls were packing their lunch and getting aboard the bus. This bus was so comfortable that the girls were almost asleep on the ride. They arrived in Atlanta in time to join the other students and faculty at the Institute. At the end of the day, the girls returned to campus, tired but satisfied with their experience.
