SENIORS HEAD DEAN'S LIST

The dean's list for the fall quarter, ending December 18, was announced Saturday by Dr. Hoy Taylor. There were 637 students making the honor roll for the fall term, as compared with 583 last fall quarter and 548 as compared with the last honor roll released last year after the winter term was completed.

The smaller group of students making the dean's list was due to the raising of the minimum average from 86 to 87. Seniors led the list, with thirty-two seniors closely followed by the sophomores, then followed by members of the list. Freshmen came third with twenty-four representatives and seniors fourth with ten representatives.

The dean's list includes seniors, Esther E. Adams, Savannah; Dorts Ackerman, Athens; Ada Brown, Bartelle; Barbara Chamber, Kil-deville; Mrs. E. C. Cirtin, Millingdale; Elizabeth Daniel, Villa Rosa; Alice Dunham, Dobbin; Dorothy Ellis, Salem; Dorothy Estes; Mary E. Estes, Gaston, Americus; Annie Ruth Gibson, Columbus; Virginia Gray; Lea James; Jane Rose Harrod, Toller; Frances F. Herrold, Collett;

Ruth Hollinghead, McGivern;

Minnie Ann Irvin, Sonderville;

Thelma Vere, Millingdale; Mrs. Max Jones, Atlanta; Evelyn Morn-

tin, Barman; Hazel H. Moulton; Aline Wood; Sara Corn, Lochmeyer; Natalie Persons, Blackshear;

Dr. Wells Addresses Commerce Group

Dr. Guy H. Wells gave a talk on "The Habit of Thinking" at the regular monthly meeting of the Commerce Club Wednesday night.

Dr. Wells urged the students present to form the habit of being systematic and orderly in their thinking. He stressed the importance of problem-avoiding in the business world. He stated that according to John Dewey, "the problem in the solution of a problem is: first, an ongoing activity; then, a feeling of difficulty; next, the analysis of the situation; next, the arrival of suggested solution; next, the testing in the mind of one who seems to work best; and finally, the acceptance of the one that seems to work best; and finally, the acceptance of the one that seems to work best; and finally, the acceptance of the one that seems to work best; and finally, the acceptance of the one that seems to work best." Seidel Violin Recital Will Be Second In Concert Series

There probably have been more poetic utterances written in praise of Teresa Seidel by music lovers of all ages during the past ten years than there are at this moment. In the history of this magnificent artist that involved poetry, for, as Nathan Almo-sen wrote in the San Francisco Examiner: "Teresa is a poet in music, and music is a poet of Teresa. You make a choice. Will it be music, or a poem?" Thus, it is fitting that Teresa Seidel is a genius, undoubtedly, for he stands preeminent among contemporary violinists. She is a rare artist who maintains her standards and has the resources and the means to carry on for the rest of her life. Seidel in an interview with the "columnist" has said that she is in no hurry and has a repertoire unusual in the scope. Her recital on Tuesday, January 14, at eight-thirty o'clock, is certain to warm this audience to the highest of his power, and in a program which ranges from the old to the new.

Born in Odesa in 1928, Tesra Seidel made her debut in music when she was seven years old. Then he played with a local chamber group as a young artist, and with an authentic and dignified, not to mention technical facility, which were exceptional. His American debut at the New York Philharmonic where he held a soloist of great command—the leading violinist of the world. Praise has been showered on this artist, but that in no way diminishes his dedication to study and practice.

In the world has heard from England and France to Canada and across to Australia, New Zealand and Russia. Everywhere he attained remarkable success and command and abandon of his playing, a rare musical intelligence and restraint.

His playing, as he has so often said, "with the ar-

Jessie's Ideal Man Goes To Tech, Is An SAE, Questionaire Shows

(Editors' Note: Following the questionnaire that the editorial student body prior to the Christmas holidays by the publication committee, the students were tabulated by a group of staff members, the results were tabulated, and sent to the Atlanta Journal. The form was then inserted in the Monthly magazine of SAE paper on December 25.)

Hedgerow Players to Present "Twelfth Night" January 21

The Hedgerow Players will present Shakespeare's immortal comedy, "Twelfth Night" in the college auditorium on Tuesday night, January 21, at eight-thirty o'clock. Since added to the famous Philadelphia theatre repertory in 1602, "Twelfth Night" has been played in various forms in their other 115 plays.

Shakespeare's play, largely beloved comedy, "Twelfth Night" combines farce and comedy into a wonderful poetic whole, which the Hedgerow Theater presents in an excellent version. Under the artistic direction of Joseph Bester, the Bard's famous comedy, is presented in the national language of Italy.

The play is set in the Elizabethan period and in the heart of Shakespearean England's love and marketing. He wrote the play for his company,

JESSIE'S IDEAL MAN GOES TO TECH

Weiss has been a student at Georgia Tech.

Weiss is the college girl who seems to be on everyone's mind these days. She has been associated with a few men, but none of them are known to be her ideal man. Weiss believes that love is the most important thing in a relationship, and she is looking for a man who shares her values and beliefs.

Weiss is a popular student at Georgia Tech and she has many admirers. However, she is not interested in any of them as a romantic partner. Weiss is not interested in any of the men who have tried to court her, and she has not shown any interest in any of the men who have approached her.
