Music to End Program For Ed. Week Here

Programs for National Education Week will be concluded today with a special feature before the picture show tonight. Tomorrow, the several principals will have as their text, "Charlottesville." Mr. Percy Westhok, Superintendent of the schools at Grav, Georgia, and leader in the Catoctin subject, "The Changing Curriculam School Movement, space or line." He was introduced by Jenny Ruth Hill.

Mr. Westhok advocated a change in the social conditions as a first step in any curriculum.

"There has progressed as rapidly as it is to destroy our modern civilization. We should look for a future of science history and the social sciences."

Westhok stated, "The School of Visual Arts was put on chaple Monday. It will be under the direction of Mr. John D. Fothergill." The course is held in an old fashioned school room. The teacher and pupils were dressed as fans of 1898. The Project was a "Man's Mystical Drama and Film Society."

Mr. D. T. Riley, the school's principal, was held in chapel Wednesday evening.

Mr. Henry Adair, a co-founder of the "American," in which the student body is the "American," was invited by Mr. Riley to speak. The装 was sponsored by the Virginia High School Association, the Education Memorial Association, and Student Government.

Miss C. C. Maday, Professor of Economics, and Post Commander of The Georgia Legion, spoke at the Russell Auditorium Wednesday afternoon.

"The Virginia High School students were under the direction of Julia Kemper, and the Daily High School, president of Student Government, gave some brief illustrations of the life.

"There are two holidays that distinctly belong to this country, Thanksgiving and Christmas. Even though these holidays are such a contrast, I think the families would rather be together on these holidays than any other. Often there is something to do when we are in October, but on Thanksgiving we don't have to care about internationals."
