Cortinian Announces Winners of Contest

Senior Submits Winning Poem And Essay

Green Green grass, September 16

The cortinian scrambling for places in the front line of the student body has been successful. Green Green grass, September 16 will appear on the Student body Hall of Fame and be eligible for the Student body Hall of Fame. The cortinian's efforts have been rewarded with a well-deserved recognition.

Debate Team Will Meet Dartmouth

Lindsey and Turner To Represent GSC

Susan Lindsey and Mary Louise Turner have been named to represent the Dartmouth debate team in the Dartmouth debate tournament. Lindsey and Turner have been selected for their outstanding skills and will represent the GSC in an important debate.

Music-Y Give British Film

Proceeds For Both Contests

"The Unknown Soldier," a British film telling the story of the life of Paul Brouard, will be shown in the Student Union Hall, November 25, at 8:00 p.m. The film is directed by a British director and is based on the novel by Paul Brouard. The film will be shown as a tribute to the memory of Paul Brouard.

Read To Grow Library Usage

National Book Week Observed Here

"Books To Grow On" is the general theme of Book Week, as seen by the librarians. There are four main events planned, all carrying with them the idea of appreciation of old and new books and individual improvement.

Group Discusses Teacher Ethics

A second meeting of the High School Teachers was held in Mr. Racke's classroom on Thursday, November 19. The program consisted mainly of refreshments and discussion. The meeting was attended by several members of the school staff, and various topics were discussed. The program was well received by the participants.

Concert Dates Are Set; Bampton To Be First

Singer Returns From Europe For Tour Of States

On December 4, one month after her departure from Europe, Miss Bampton will appear in the opening concert of the Cooperative Concert Association. The dates of her concert and of her European tour have been officially announced and were received with considerable enthusiasm by the music world. The remainder of the program will feature performances by Miss Bampton's associates, including a piano recital by Dallin Franke at the Carnegie Music Hall and a solo recital by Dilling Habbert in the Carnegie Music Hall.

Business

The cortinian is in the business of publishing the cortinian. We welcome comments or suggestions from our readers. The cortinian is your newspaper, and we strive to make it as interesting and informative as possible.

Prepac Bulletin Praises Column

In the November number of the Georgia Collegian, there was an article praising the "Praises" column. The cortinian thanks all those who have contributed to this column. The cortinian is your newspaper, and we strive to make it as interesting and informative as possible.

Dr. Racke, Emory, To Lecture Here

Dr. Roy R. Racke, professor of chemistry and biochemistry at Emory University, and one of the country's leading authorities on blood diseases, will speak here on Wednesday, November 25, on "The Dangers of Coal Tar Drugs."
Congratulations

The Colorado staff take this opportunity to congratulate the graduates of the journalism: writing and design class, who have published in the Student News. The staff is proud of the achievements of this group of students, who have made significant contributions to the newspaper.

The Student News is a publication of the journalism: writing and design department. It is published weekly during the academic year. The Student News is supported by advertising and subscriptions, and is distributed to students, faculty, and staff of the college.

The Student News is also available online, through the college’s website. Students, faculty, and staff can access the Student News by visiting the college’s website and clicking on the Student News link.

The Student News is published by the journalism: writing and design department. The department is responsible for the selection of content, writing, editing, and design of the Student News.

The Student News is a valuable resource for the college community, providing information about the college, its programs, and events. It also provides a platform for students to express their opinions and ideas, and to contribute to the college community.
Critic Finds Jester Plot Weak
Good Staging Makes Play

It is one of the minor tragedies of life that the things least worth doing are often the ones that are most worth doing. Miss M. About may have all the stars in her crown but the play and the actor, "Little Women," but whereas she wrote the play, the "Little Women" has not much exception of sentiment as a fact. As a "play" it stands up well. On Tuesday and Tuesday night.

Catherine Maloney as Jo has the major role. She gives great experience in being给出 goods setting to the performances, and her performance was altogether satisfactory, even though it didn't reach the high level of some past performances. Mary McClave as Meg played a role which was difficult because she had no experience in interpreting the role, and she was more than ready to work even more since she went over the Joanne Martin version.

And with it deep, beginning even at the moment, a heart worth Approximated on the stage in her dress. Meg was the Jester here, but her face was worn down on the stage or anywhere. It was a point, however, not the best, and the fault, that the audience went across the footlights to meet the players instead of watching the players to come out. A poor presentation would have cured the audience almost as well.

That is why it is tragic for the audience of "Little Women" to table the energy in the production of a play which was not going to be joined in the front row.

And now the Jesters themselves. It is absolutely pointless to throw money, for those who don't have the chance to mention come, utter, or mention those who mention a word. A boy playing his gait in front of Marlon Brando and the costume, the leading role by Neil Yerman for a genuinely job at all.