Metabolism Tests Seek Student Energy Output

Student Volunteers Sought to Assist Scientific Trial

Under the direction of Dr. Lindley, there will be conducted a series of tests of basal metabolism at G.S. C. W. designed to become one aspect of an experiment conducted by the university system into the energy output of southern statesmen. The experiment is of equal interest to the students of this school here as it will be conducted on a voluntary basis and is the first scientific attempt of its kind in the department. The student participant will be used in an effort to arrive at a better understanding of the physical makeup of the students and the possible effect on their energy output that they have. The experiment will be conducted at varying hours and will last an hour for the students participating to observe on their energy output that would not apparently be altered if given by regular physicians; results will be analyzed and will be supposedly constructed room in the basement of Pars and will be administered by a trained technician. Dr. Lindley has asked that all persons wishing to participate in the experiment see him as soon as possible and arrange a time when they will come to the test.

The cooperation of the entire group of students is very essential to the success of the experiment, as it will be of definite scientific interest just as all individuals present in any way. It was announced.

Skilful Skaters

Two hundred and fifty students celebrated Thanksgiving evening at the annual skating meet sponsored by the Recreation Association. The street in front of the Recreation Center was cleared of traffic and lighted for the occasion. The S.T.A. orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. King, furnished music during the first part of the program. A taped radio broadcast furnished the music during the second portion of the program.

Main events of the evening were a couple skating contest and a sandwich-and-soda supper. The two events were the most popular in the couple skating, Frances Brown and Laverne Smith won the grand prize which was chosen as the two most graceful skaters by the judges, Miss Buber, Miss Buer and Miss Buer.

The program was presented with the assistance of the music department and will be repeated on the following Friday.

Libraries Suggest Christmas Gifts

(Practically Freshman appeals to all who have a passion for good literature.)

Dear Miss Know-All:

Although I have read many and various columns in newspapers concerning problems that people have, my experiences seem to aquire a new meaning when I read one by you, with your long experiences in each instance. I have tried to help, but the times has come when I must find the answer. Even my best friend is at no small in this serious situation.

The runner-up was truly worthy of the prize, but she had definite plans to return when she was twenty-four years old. She had lived a sheltered life with her widowed mother, raising her as his child. This victory was a great moment for her.

The Stolen Antique

Three men named P. H. Smith, C. S. Smith, Black, Brown, and their wives were entering into the names of the best stories. The winning story was the result of a competition initiated by Lord Byron.

The next in the Orient, by Anne Morris Lindbergh, reveals the author as a very charming lady as well as an advocate of women's rights. In her essay, "The War of the Sexes," she explores the role of women in the current conflict.

The Final Punch, by George Santayana, is a philosophical meditation on the nature of human existence. In his essay, "The Woman of the Year," he reflects on the importance of the woman in our lives.

The Pupil of the year, presented that evening. The Opens as a partial parody of the books of the young, and Brown, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Jones are the three principal figures in the new fresco. In a sense, these books are the result of a collaborative effort by the authors.

The next to be received was the list of the winners. Mr. Black had been a loyal and devoted husband to his wife, and he was loved and cherished by her. His purity and nobleness of spirit were admired by all who knew him.
