Co-operation Between C. G. A. and Administration, McDowell’s Aim

Dr. Guy H. Wells
Represents G. S. C.
At Tech Meet

Dr. Wells will be the official delegate from G. S. C. W. to the dedication of the 50th anniversary of the Georgia School of Technology at Atlanta, on October 4.

The Notre Dame-Gaige Tech football game, a dinner, and a reception at the Governor's Mansion have been planned in connection with the celebration.

B. Horsbrugh
Returns For Private Work

Miss Beatrice Horsbrugh, who was for many years teacher of the spring term because of a law enacted by the Legislature changing her positions with the State of Georgia, returned to Milligdenville September 1, Tuesday, October 1. She will not receive private instruction in violin but will not be officially connected with the college and will be paid by the state. Her studio is located, as it was last year, in the free music auditorium.

Although she has been living in this country for 15 years, Miss Horsbrugh did not take steps to obtain citizenship papers until several years ago. She has already received her first papers but under laws of European regulations cannot become a citizen for several months. When this became known last March, Dr. Wells, Congregationalist, and several members of the Board of Regents of the university said a special effort was made to have Miss Horsbrugh elected, but to no avail. An unsuccessful attempt to have the Todd University resolutions in order that Miss Horsbrugh might become a citizen was on paper election of the school. Miss Horsbrugh is widely known throughout the South in musical circles, being praised in Brum.

McDowell, Howard Pledge To Program of Student Participation

In a more or less serious statement given to the Colonnade immediately after the election Thursday morning, Sen. Bruce McDowell, Democrat for the new co-operation between the three major organizations of the campus and the administration. She went on to say that she was aware that people of different interests between the Administration and the C. G. A. would be present nearly every year, but that it "was desirable that both parties would be willing to compromise."

Sen's whole platform, it will be remembered from her statement to last week's Colonnade, was a Reform and a Reform and Democracy. She wanted more democratic participation in College Government Activities; she wanted a Box Populai for the average "girl on the campus" who didn't say what she thought in C. G. meetings; efforts should be made to discover really capable girls on the campus who were part of the minority majority. This week she says that after C. G. A. in an association between the student body and the administration, "both bodies have the same obligation to compromise on questions."

Charlotte Howard said that she "would make every effort to cooperate with the newly elected president." Charlotte Howard said that she would cooperate with the newly elected president. Charlotte Howard said that she would cooperate with the newly elected president.

Dear Editor,

I always enjoy historical and descriptive accounts, and I don't think this is the best place for one. I thought it would be more fitting to place it in the history section of the newspaper. The story is very well written and gives a great insight into the history of the town. I would love to see more stories like this in future issues.

Sincerely,

[Name]

P.S. I also think the name of the town should be changed to something more representative of its culture and history. Maybe something like "Historical Town."
Stories By Scandal-light

From what Helen meant by the "face that launched a thousand," we must assume that her description must have been most striking. In fact, as we recently managed to speak with the model, we were astounded by the vividness of her记述. The model herself has described the event in the most extraordinary way, offering insights into the mind of the model and her role in the story of "The Strawberry Girl." The model has revealed her inner thoughts during the shoot, shedding light on the creative process and the emotions involved. The tale is not only a story of beauty and charm but also a narrative of the pressures faced by women in the modeling industry. The model's perspective provides a unique insight into the world of fashion, and her account is a testament to her resilience and determination. The account is a must-read for anyone interested in the intersection of art, beauty, and human experience.

"Y" Column
BY MANOULINE JENKINS
The Y Column gets off in a strange beginning when it met last Friday morning in room 170-B. Room was filled with laughter and people were seated on the floor. After everyone was seated, the meeting was taken up with reports of the past week.

Last Wednesday Night Social Committee met to discuss the activities here. The committee consists of four girls who have been assigned to head the various committees. The committee met to discuss the activities here. The activities were planned and organized for next week. The activities included a dance, a fashion show, and a tea party. The committee also discussed the budget for the upcoming week.

This week, the committee is planning a fundraiser to help the local homeless shelter. The fundraiser will be held on Wednesday night and will include a silent auction, a raffle, and a bake sale. The committee is also planning a charity ball for next month to raise funds for the school's scholarship fund.

Next week, the committee will be busy with final preparations for the fundraiser. They will be busy with the setup and decorations, and they will be responsible for the smooth running of the event. The committee would like to thank everyone for their support and encouragement.
