The Female of The Species Most Expensive, Say Males at Sr. Dance

By CATHY BAYMANS

No wonder the seniors have been strutting their stuff ever since their dance Saturday night. Approximately one hundred dollars (and I mean whole ones too) were spent in their behalf for costumes to emphasize their investment. It has been estimated by a statistic compiling report. There is no end of things that such money could have been used for, but then the connectedness certainly fulfilled their purpose to the 9th degree, so it was well worth the cost.

Some of the costumes that inspired the compliments of satisfied were:

Miss Stone wore an antique corset, which was sent by her mysterious friend, Mr. Peter Paul Pogin. Terrie Badal, Katie Rogers, and Anne Millhousen also joined the ranks of the picturesque, which were decked out in archaic. ... Maudie Stephanon wore a beautiful black dress of swatchet and red shoes of the olden days. While Greer Hughes preferred one made up entirely of rabbit fur. "It came in handy," she said.

First Corinthian Comes Off This Week

The Corinthian, the College literary magazine, will appear next week, seven weeks after the first issue's publication, but due to contract complications was unable to do so. This means that the next issue will come out in January, some three school weeks after the prostected house and that all work on that issue must be done in a very short time. Therefore the staff workers to request that all students, who write short stories, poetry, one act plays, sketches, or any other form of individual expression do this over the holidays and hand it in as possible after their return in January. All contributions are to be put in the Corinthian cabinet on first floor Fisher, just below the faculty mail slot.

We feel sure that there is a wealth of talent on the campus if it can only be discovered.

"It Happened Next Door" Wins Over "My Darkest"

Tradition was broken Wednesday night when for the first time since its origin, the Golden Slipper contest was won by the sophomores, Face McDowell made the acceptance speech. The prize winning play, "It Happened Next Door," was based on an old story published in the "New England Magazine," which, in its essence was true, although the names and scenes were fictitious. The play was adapted upon Rupert Wyatt. After Rupter had murdered his sister; Mrs. Mary Wyatt kept him hidden until he died. Freed by his death, the chance forced upon her for twenty years, Mrs. Wyatt gave up her race to the same that brought the play to a close.

Mary Beauford Edson as Mrs. Wyatt, and Julia, Marla Howard as Mrs. Edson, gave suspense and exciting performances. "My Darkest," a comedy in two acts was written by Beth Bird and Cecile Board, members of the freshman class. The characters, led by Peril Wing as Peggy, Mary Jean Bivins as Joyce, and Virgin Melvin in David, gave an most creditable performance. The words and music for the two songs were composed, by John Birnbaum.

The highlight of the evening was the vocal radio program under the capable leadership of

Classes Work On Christmas Projects

Following a tradition established several years ago, the four classes are planning various ways of helping and of bringing some semblance of Christmas happiness to more unfortunate families.

The senior class gave a party for underprivileged children of Milledgeville and vicinity on December 14th. Both rooms in the East Hall were filled with Christmas decorations hung by the seniors, who did the decorating themselves.

The Sophomore class, under the leadership of Mary McClean and J. F. McClellan, gave a Christmas program on December 15th.

Bowling Alley

It is all too obvious to observe it's decision. The doesn't mean, of course, that any of the students would be less interested in the activity, but everybody has a different idea of the main event's performance. The bowling alley is the place to be seen. And bowling and bowling seems to be their favorite pastime, creating a lively atmosphere in the facilities. With the bar and the games, the students can enjoy a night out.

TOWN GIRLS

The reception from the town girls was a nice surprise, as they had not expected so many interactions with this group. In fact, the town girls were interested in the proposed events for the evening and expressed their desire to participate. The town girls' interest was an unexpected bonus for the organizers. The evening was a success, as the students had a great time and enjoyed the activities. Overall, it was a wonderful evening for everyone involved.
