Beebe Lectures on Marine Life at Lyceum Program

Noble, Kennon Fill Presidential Vacancies

With Grace Brown presiding, the International Relations Club held its first meeting Monday, Oct. 9. Two new officers were elected: Nanettie Noble, president, and Margaret Keenan, vice-president.

A lecture on American Marine Life was given by Dr. William Beebe, of the Brooklyn Aquarium. The speaker discussed the various forms of life found in the ocean, ranging from the tiniest plankton to the giant whale. The lecture was well received, and many students expressed an interest in marine biology.

Class Wedding

To Be After Frosh Elections

After seriously considering discontinuing the annual wedding of the sister classes, Student Council in a called meeting Wednesday night finally decided to hold the ceremony after the Freshman class elections.

It has previously been the custom for the Junior class to be represented by some child in the community, dressed as the Junior class leader, but this year the Freshman class president will take her own place in the procession.

Since the activity has made a tremendous difference in school spirit, the Junior class needed a treasurer immediately to fill the vacancy left by Jane Hall, who did not return this year. Council suggested that the Junior class officers appoint a girl to act in this position temporarily until a class meeting can be called to elect a treasurer.

Class elections were held Thursday that had been appearing for ten days. Student Council had been asked, to order at the first Lyceum address, Nov. Beebe, associated October 23. All members volunteered.
Colonnade Joins Survey; Students Interviewed

The national university polls of the Student Opinion Survey of America will be published in The Colonnade throughout this academic year. The poll recently sent here October 11, accompanied with a regular interview on the CSUS survey.

The Colonnade is one of the many leading college and graduate school newspapers responding to the surveys. The Student Opinion Survey, Inc., a national public opinion research firm has been conducting surveys on student campus issues and attitudes for the past 25 years. The Colonnade has included the survey in its weekly columns.

Students will be asked questions on political issues, as well as a variety of other topics. Some of the questions to be included in the survey are:

- Approval of the President
- Sexual attitudes
- The nature of the student-teacher relationship
- Approval of American policy
- The nature of the student-student relationship
- The nature of the student-parent relationship

National Magazines Print Work of Katherine Glass

John J. Bickham, senior English major at the University of Texas at Austin, has been featured in several national magazines. These include Harper's and Esquire. His work has been published in the New Republic, the New Yorker, and the Atlantic Monthly. He has also written for the Washington Post, the New York Times, and the Wall Street Journal.

Lark at Lake Laurel: Luck Only Leathery

Lark Ashley

There is a great deal of luck in the lives of students who are married. The following is a case in point:

Mr. and Mrs. Lark Ashley, of Austin, Texas, recently announced the birth of a daughter, who they have named Ashley. The baby was born on Friday, October 11, at Austin Hospital. The baby, who was born at 7:30 a.m., weighed 6 pounds, 4 ounces.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley, who have been married for 2 years, said they were both thrilled with the news. "We were just so happy when the doctor told us she was a girl," said Mrs. Ashley.

Mr. Ashley, a law student, said he was very excited about the baby. "It's been a long time coming," he said. "We've been trying for a girl for a while now.""}

Students may find that handsome, casual and affable Mr. Bickham enjoys reading as much as he does writing. He has published several articles in national magazines, including the New York Review of Books and the Atlantic Monthly.

In one of his latest articles, Mr. Bickham discusses the nature of the student-teacher relationship. He writes:

"The student-teacher relationship is a complex one, fraught with potential for both positive and negative outcomes. It is important for both parties to understand and respect each other's roles and responsibilities.

On the part of the student, it is crucial to engage in open and honest communication. This includes being proactive about seeking help when needed and taking responsibility for one's own learning.

On the part of the teacher, it is important to create a supportive and inclusive environment. This includes being approachable and responsive to student inquiries and providing clear expectations and feedback.

By fostering a healthy and respectful student-teacher relationship, both parties can work together to achieve their academic goals and develop a greater sense of trust and mutual respect."
A Solution to the Honor Question May Be Found

By Mildred C. Moore

We hope that the mechanism in hand will not contribute to the vital of Honor. The strongest and most affluent schools, however, still face the problem of Honor. In some schools, the mechanism is not as effective as it should be. The main problem is the lack of understanding and cooperation among teachers.

would be able to be teachers.

The question in the back of every student mind now is, "Who shall we elect as officers of our class?" Out of five hundred, one must be chosen to represent the class and cooperate with students and faculty.

Before a decision is made, everyone should be wise to think seriously about the requirement of an officer. Who an officer should be elected is an old question for discussion, but there is always room for more discussion. When five hundred girls sit set to reflect five or six people to be responsible for the business and representation of the whole group.

that the British will triumph and destroy Nazism. All of which adds up to the fact that we are far from neutral in our sympathies especially in the Mississippi Valley. As yet, our trade has not been touched by such a war-time volume that the U-Boat threat to it by Germany would turn our economic interests entirely towards a British victory, as was the case by 1937; but the steel mills are sold out a year in advance, and so are a few other industries, which may indicate which way our "treasure" as well as our "heart" will soon be going.
