Joray Mimes Past and Present; Avon Troop Does "As You Like It"

Shakespeare's Play To Be Given Friday

Late News Briefs

"Increasing interest in drama indicates that it is not beyond the realm of possibility that we may see a flourishing of dramatic art in our own day that will surpass that of the Elizabethan Age," Frances Conkey, recently seen in the Jester production, "You Can't Take It With You," said Thursday in her introduction of Campus Drama Week. Although this is not the greatest hit by the nation for observation of drama week, due to the unusually large number of programs of dramatic interest to be presented here next week, the Jesters and Musicians have chosen it.

Beginning with Peter Joray's costume revival Monday evening at 8:30, the program of the week will continue with one-set workshop plays to be presented Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights by the play production class in the Little Theatre under (Continued on page two).

Monologist Gives Series of Impressions

Under the auspices of the College Lecture Course, Peter Joray will appear at Russell Auditorium on Monday, December 6, at eight-thirty P.M. Mr. Joray, a monologist, will present his one-man show entitled "Impression—Old and New".

Post-War Acting

Peter Joray interrupted his studies to enlist in the World War in 1917. Returning to America soon after the war, he entered as a student with the Irvin School of Theatre. A season with Anna Q. Nilsson followed and "What Price Glory" and "Smilin' Through" were his winter stock work. It was during this season that Mr. Joray decided to change his field of work. After a great amount of research and study he built up for presentation in costume, his remarkable impersonation of royal personalities of the past.

Reade, Destler Give Ideas for Success of Honor System

"Success of the honor system depends upon (1) your willingness to accept the code of get- tiness and (2) your strong belief in democracy," stated Dr. Charles Destler of GSYC, States- men, when he spoke to the Junior men and Students in chapel Tuesday. He continued by explaining that faith in the ability of the students to establish such a sys- tem as opposed to imposing hon- or on students was the method to be used. In general, he stressed the fundamental student character necessary for a successfull honor system and the necessity for its development in student, alumni, life as well as on the campus.

Dr. Frank Reade of GSYC, Virgina, Ga., which spoke on the honor system in Profsam and Sophomores chapel Monday re- questing that he be not quoted. He said of the history of the system and related his experiences under the honor system at the Univer- sity of Virginia.

Since the campaign for an honor system has been started on the GSYC campus many occasions such as chapel, club meet- ings, and classes have been devoted to discussions favoring against the system. As Dr. Reade and Dr. Destler are the first "outside" speakers the campus has had.

Funny Clothes, Umbrellas, Hazing Mark Day of Rat Initiation

A big snow storm pummelled the NYU campus today, with inches of snow covering sidewalks, streets, and roofs.

The storm began yesterday evening and continued into the day, with strong winds and heavy snowfall.

In the evening, NYU students gathered in the courtyard to celebrate the traditional event of hazing, which involves dressing in ridiculous clothing and carrying umbrellas to mark the day of the Rat Initiation.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

Please clean up a few points that have been passing me for several weeks.

The first tip is the idea expressed before the last trip to Adams for the Cuscar order to let the college be informed.

The second is that the college be informed that the students are having a hard time understanding the social aspect of the college.

The third is to let the college know that there is a need for more social events on campus.

Yours truly,

The Place of Student Government

In recent months, the role of student government has been a topic of much discussion on campus. While some argue that student government is an effective way to represent student interests, others believe that it is a outdated system that needs to be reformed.

Some students have expressed concerns about the effectiveness of student government in addressing their needs. They argue that decisions made by student government are often not in line with the desires of the student body.

Others argue that student government provides a valuable learning experience for students, allowing them to develop leadership skills and gain a better understanding of the decision-making process.

Ultimately, the role of student government may need to be reevaluated and adjusted to better meet the needs of the student body.
