Invitation

In recent years, we have heard criticism about the effectiveness of the Colgate University staff election process. There is a new issue this year, a reaction to the same old criticism. Each year, the new Colgate staff members who have been hired by the administration have previously complained about Colgate's policies on discrimination and the like. This year's reaction comes from students who have worked at Colgate for several years and who have had some responsibilities. Therefore, we have decided to allow the students to have some say in the election process. This has been a step forward. The new system allows for the students to have more of a voice in the election process and to help ensure that the administration is more responsive to their needs. However, there are still some issues that need to be addressed. The administration has already said that they will make changes to the system, but it remains to be seen whether these changes will be sufficient to address the concerns of the students. We hope that the administration will take our concerns seriously and work to make the election process more effective.
