After Home-going, Students Return With Town Chatter

By BLANCHE LAYTON

Do you know what people are talking about just after a home-going week-end, or are you usually so busy talking yourself that you don't know what others are saying? This night, "It wasn't really a surprise, because you see, I knew all the while he was going to give it to me." Just because I'm not here to give —Sho

"I went shopping Saturday. Bought an old dress and hat. I really don't like. Do you like it?" Then there's the old maid-type who brings back all the community news. "Yes, they had to give Mr. Hamanour because he started during the high school split." Oh, and here comes Miss with that far-awfully look in her eyes. She's always in the room, but not in heart. For in heart and thought she's with Bill who gave her that engagement ring last fall.
