Frosch Have Eventful First Days at GSCW

Wandering around the campus Tuesday, that memorable day for the freshmen, we started talking to several of the new arrivals and upon question found that they had many experiences to fall about their arrival at GSCW, and some were quite amusing.

Most memorable was the story of Don Dodson following his arrival on campus. He was from Dallas, Texas, and arrived on the train. He was met at the station by a friend who had arrived a few days earlier. The friend took him to his room and introduced him to his roommate. The next day, Don Dodson was informed that his roommate had been expelled from the college for cheating on an exam.

The Freshman Organization will meet on Monday evening at 7:30 in the auditorium. The program will include a welcome address by the dean of students, a roll call of the freshmen, and the election of officers.

Just Because its Fall, Don't Let All Things Fall

By Ginger Shape

Webster (what would we do without him) gives the little four-letter word "fall" a generous amount of space in his dictionary. He contributes the following definition: Fall—"to drop freely from a higher to a lower place; to depart from dignified behavior; to enter into a new condition: to pass gradually or passively into some state; to change.

Just as in many words, there are good falls and there are bad falls. Some GSCW students have had bad falls, for they have applied this word to all those things which the college eye might happen to "fall upon." Of course, this is wrong and of course one shouldn't carelessly let things "drop freely from a higher to a lower place," so, in order that the welcome and the entertained students won't take the "fall" habit, we will review some past calamities.

The very first day on the campus one always has "hopes we can rent them" books to fall all over the desk, and perhaps on a chair. And then before those study texts are neatly arranged in the desk, carelessly deposited money and keys in the shirt pocket easily land on the floor. Curtains rust high in the fall line. They delight in falling at the most unsuitable times; often when new guests are in the room. Something really should be done to prevent this window trouble.

In the dining fall and in chapel—never in classes of course—there is a tendency to fall down in the chair. This sounds terrible. Humor has it that these kind of falls won't be taken this season.

Then too there comes the end and dreary day when the hair just will fall. This is due to three causes: bad weather, illness, and bad weather. Since the weather isn't under our control, perhaps boys pin and a comb would help prevent such. They say it's amazing how a neat coifure rakes in the compliments.

Last of all, let's apply the definition of "to fall gradually or passively into some state or condition." This pertains to the art of falling in love. Now such is not a bad fall usually, but a very delightful one (so they say). It might be suggested that if you don't let your books and physical self, and hair and your curtain fall, that is, known, perhaps, you will find your own little self falling rather than all these instantaneous objects.

But remember now, with love as the only exception, a fall always come to those who let things fall in the fall!

In October
The first entertainment program on the college campus for the year will be held on October 14 and 20 when Professor Dutch plans, will appear at GSCW according to an announcement made today by Max Hash, program chairman.

A brochure of advice published by homon, senior homon society, and written by Ray Tully of Eulrichs and Mary Detienne of Newharpport, advises not only how to dress but how to act.

On "dating," a major portion of the booklet, the advice is to "hold onto your knees till you find somebody you really want to give them to.""Don't forget that boys talk about girls... and if you "date" with one teen, all his 'brothers' will know its soon.

Other warnings include:

- Don't be possessive. It is the easiest way to lose a good date.
- Don't be too choosy at first. Some fellows can imitate you to some good future dates if you're smart.
- And girls—
- "Don't believe an eighth of what you hear."
