How the contest originated

By Janie Metcalfe

"What is a Golden Slipper? Is it all about secrecy?" was the first question I asked one of the freshmen.

"When I first got my ticket," said one, "I looked for it all over campus. I found it Nov. 15. I was a Golden Slipper." After that, a group of freshmen started talking about Golden Slipper during Orientation Week. I heard stories everywhere about Golden Slipper from the upperclassmen. But everyone was so mysterious about it. I listened in on some of the whispering and heard "Golden Slipper is the biggest thing on campus... We're lucky this year... We have just got to win the slipper this year..."

Well, little freshmen sisters, you are finding out what a Golden Slipper is all about. It's the contest between the freshmen and sophomores. A slipper, 1000

A One to Jesse

With Apologies To Beats Giann

"The year after graduation, all through the room, We laugh and sing, and we hang with our dawn."

Two papers are piled on each bed, without case In hopes that one-thirty will never be there. We laugh and sprawl over the bed.

White visions of goldfins buzzed by our heads. And serve in our bobble pipes and dance in our socks.

Hod just dropped down after a day of hard labor. When of a sudden, there rose such a clatter We fell from our beds to see what the matter. Away to the dinner we stumbled and fell.

And turned off the alarm which was ringing like bell. The bell like the hour, so very well known. Brought back memories of our own. What in our wishful minds should appear But a little gold slip and moos we hold dear.

With little slip songs so lovely
