Summary of Rule Changes

Reports of the rule changes that have been under discussion in the last three Student Council meetings

Discussion of the rule change suggested that smoking in public places was requested. It was decided that student Council members smoke in public places only outside the city limits. A resolution was presented by the student Council in favor of the resolution that the dormitory rules to do so. The Student Council stated that dormitory members in the presence of women, thereby, should not be allowed.

The motion that students be permitted to attend driest houses while their smoking rights are to be production for one quarter if passed by the student Council and the Student Faculty Relations committee.

It was decided to let the present regulation regarding smoking with dates on dance nights stand as is. Since students have parental permission to go until 11 o'clock, Student Council also felt that it should be more successful if the girls do not leave early.

Student Council voted to recommend that the Board of House Presidents and housemothers have approval. It will be voted on each quarter.

A motion was made and passed to amend the present resolution that asking that two or more student Council members be allowed to go to the downtown restaurant on a food run on Friday and Saturday nights during regular academic hours.

Radical Conservatism

"Be set the last by whom the same are tried, not the last to lay to the old tale." This bit of advice given by Alexander Pope has a transcendent amount of meaning for all of us for this particular time. Why? Because we are looking into a world in which nothing is constant but change.

In November, the nation will change presidents and possibly even political administrations. The budget is changing and will continue to change. It is increasing in size and cost. Nothing remains the same. People who will be new to politics will be taking office. The only constant is change. We should be prepared for it.

We have new leaders in the Senate and House of Representatives. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in education and in the economy. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in the military and in the defense. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in the entertainment industry. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in the media and in the press. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in the church and in the faith. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in the science and in the technology. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in the law and in the justice. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in the art and in the culture. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.

We have new leaders in the sports and in the recreation. They will have new ideas and will change. But the new leaders will also have the same problems as the old. They will have the same goals. They will have the same desires.
