Hairloom's Fill Window Display

Downtown This Week

The atelier, the parlor, the treasure chest and albums of Radleys county homes are on virtual display in downtown Millington this week in honor of the Rectory's 100th birthday party.

Two windows are filled with family heirlooms, turning back the clock to 1867 and beyond.

One of the museum pieces on exhibit is the Satin, Silk dressing gown that belonged to Miss Katherine Whiteley, great-great-great-grandmother of Mrs. Katherine Whiteley. It is believed to be the oldest dress now in existence in the United States, since it is said to contain the oldest fabric in the country.

There are also wonders that may very well have been made by the women of the era, and on other windows:

A number of family Bibles are to be seen and some of them, belonging to Miss Ralph Y. Cook, date back to the 17th century. The hand-sewn waistcoat of hand-sewn clothes from the 18th century, and even a carpet bag of the 19th century.

A quilt made in 1843 by a nineteen-year-old girl is accompanied by Miss Martha Thomas, whose ancestor, according to the local newspaper, General Lafayette arrived in the city.

Wedding rings, christening robes, and ball gowns worn by a woman who was proclaimed to be the first woman to graduate from the University of Pennsylvania, are also among the items on exhibit.

There are numerous items' which date back to the early 1800s, such as a piece of a 17th-century dress worn by a woman who was described as "the most beautiful woman in the state at the time." The dress is said to be the hand-sewn dress that was worn by a woman who was in the first wave of female graduates from the University of Pennsylvania.

"How Is The Time When We Must Say Good-Bye!"

Dear Editor:

It should be realized that we have an uncertain time for the students. This problem that we are faced with is the lack of attention and concern that we are dealing with during the change of program twice a week.

Do you have any information that we can send to the students an opportunity for such united work?

"WILL GSCW Go Co-Ed?"

A few weeks ago it was announced that the W.W. College had approached us on the subject of making the program twice a week because of the change of program.

Would you be able to make the program twice a week, and if you do, would it be desirable for the students to have this opportunity for such united work?
