DRAWS REGENT'S FIRE

Quoted from The Red and Black:

"The Regent's fire was one of the greatest events in the history of the University."

Examination has been threatened. The line is not what we are or what we are not, but rather we are what we are not. Examination is designed to help us determine our strengths and weaknesses.

Campus Candids

Did you know that two men on the current Georgia Tech faculty have never been married? One is E. H. Rich, who has given birth to a boy, and the other is S. L. A. Sir, who has given birth to a girl? Both are unmarried.

Three President graduate students, all of whom have been married, have been married to widows. Two of them have been married to widows who have had children, and the third has been married to a widow who has not.

The second round of a play, a new play, and a play that has been performed before. Our favorite is the one that has been performed before.

Campus Candids

As the end of the Red and Black year approaches, Mr. Harris does not agree with the notion that we are in a panic. He feels that it is just the right time to celebrate and enjoy the end of the year.

We believe that the student body should be encouraged to participate in the celebration and enjoy the end of the year. We also believe that the student body should be encouraged to participate in the celebration and enjoy the end of the year.

The final round of the season has been greeted with enthusiasm by the student body. Many students have expressed delight at the conclusion of the season and have expressed hope that it will continue.

Uncle Remus Tales

Lillian Robbins

The big event had finally arrived. We had practiced "The Time Goes By" and it was time for the Sina to end. The curtains opened and the most realistic big cats and the great story teller Uncle Remus created a scene of the scene. All the people were seated in the audience and the story began. Uncle Remus stories that he always looked forward to. In Uncle Remus' front yard were two little pickaninnies who led the audience songs in perfect rhythm.

The characters in Uncle Remus' stories traveled down the aisle or Highway 41 in an almost endless procession. I enjoyed the big fat Negro mammy with her many colored scarves and other Negroes with their large baskets of flowers on their heads. The sight was almost like real life. A little bit of poppy over the edge of one of the buildings. I could distinctly remember the story that Mother used to tell me about Negro Rabbit and the wall. I would have liked for my little sister Dorothy to have seen Negro Rabbit hopping down the highway on his way to see her doll. The turtle crept slowly down the road. As the heat wailed she crept from side to side having enough laughter behind. The trees, vines, and rosebushes which were frequently made me feel as if I were in the country near a big corn field.

To love this long procession, some of the characters performed a trick act when they sat on the stage. The old Negro mammy fell off the stage on the line to see if they were dry. Several others had a similar scene while another two some played ball. They even had a little baby and Negro Rabbit picking up sticks while trying to make the two baby balls. The wedding ceremony of the mammy was so emotional.

A hand of bowled dogs played while the little Negro boy in a suit overalls and his sister in her brown calico dress took the ladies' entrance step. While these songs were still being sung with great pup, the negro cotton-pickers came by the mammy as they huddled off from work. Following them was the little boy's mother who grabbed him from Uncle Remus' side and let him off to support. The stage lights slowly faded and the dying rays of the evening sun shone on the jolly face of old Uncle Remus.

Happiness

Priscilla Leonard

Happiness is like a crystal, Fact and emotional, clear and clean, Broken in a million pieces, Shattered over and over. Now and then along life's pathway, Let some shining fragments fall, But there are so many pieces No one ever finds them all.

You may find a bit of beauty, Or an honest store of wealth, Or another just because you Cultivate honor, love or health. Vain is to chase a glimpse of you, Broken is the perfect ball, Close to as many spotted No one ever finds them all.

Yet the wise, as they journey, Treasure every fragment clear, Fit them as they may together, Imagining the shattered sphere, Learning ever to be thankful, Though their shreds of it is equal; For it has so many pieces No one ever finds them all.
