Stevens Mill Plans Tour
Jaycees Are Sponsoring

The J. P. Stevens Woman Mill in Millville is open to everyone on campus in an on-campus tour planned for April during the hours from 2:00 to 4:00 o'clock. This tour is made possible through the "Join Your Friends in the Chamber of Commerce Commercial Club Sponsorship." The Jaycees, the student organization of the Chamber of Commerce, are sponsoring this year's event.

The original mill of the Stevens organization was in operation when the mill was started in the 18th Century. The mill was first owned and managed by the Stevens family, who were prominent figures in the town. In the early 19th Century, the mill was purchased by the W. & J. Worth Company, which operated it until 1924.

The mill was closed in 1924 due to the Great Depression, and it was not reopened until 1946 when it was purchased by the J. P. Stevens Company. Since then, the mill has been a major employer in the town, providing jobs to many local residents.

During the tour, visitors will be able to see the various parts of the mill, including the weaving room, the finishing room, and the control room. The tour will also include a brief history of the mill and its role in the local economy.

The tour is open to all students and faculty members, and it is free to attend. Visitors are encouraged to arrive on time, as the tour begins promptly at 2:00 o'clock.

Big Annual Spring Dance Scheduled Tonight in Gym
Cyglass Theme Will Be Featured

The annual spring dance of George State College of Women, Millville, was held April 16th, with a theme of "Nights in Old America." The dance was held in the new gymnasium of the college, and it was attended by over 300 students.

The dance was sponsored by the Student Council, and it featured a variety of musical acts, including a band and a dance troupe. The dance also included a variety of activities, such as a silent disco and a photo booth.

The dance concluded with a fireworks display, and it was a huge success. The Student Council is already planning for next year's dance.
Walking vs. Riding

People can't walk very far -- it does not cause us to think of walking or, if we do, we do so as a matter of routine.

Some people seem to think that legs were made for people to look or to look at. We make fun of all a child's legs and many a boy's leg doesn't look RIGHT; it is a short and snub.

What do we mean by right? It is that on America, or do we just expect everybody to look like we want them to look? If so, we will have a problem.

How can we do that? If we don't, we have a problem. If we do, we have a problem.

We are not sure what is the correct way, but we are sure that the correct way is one in which the body is placed in the best possible position to enable it to perform its functions effectively.

On Sports

Soccer teams and badminton have burst forth with spring's first flush. Each had its first practice last week and all participants are looking forward to an outstanding season. Participation in team sports is expected to be constant this year. Be sure to come out to support your team.

The Tennis Club started bunting in halls around last Tuesday, April 2, as it held the first practice of the year. The eight members all came from freshmen. Men's Officers, the new president of the club, ran a tournament last week. The tournament grew from four, with two matches this week. Participation in tennis and badminton was expected.

A Play-Day will be held at Wesleyan College, April 17. Rochester University from GOW and other college athletes will participate in all types of sports including an intercollegiate tennis meet. For participation and information, call the sports office at 610. The Play-Day is open to all members of the Wesleyan community.

As an individual sport, badminton is a pleasant afterclass activity. On Thursday at 6:15 p.m. the badminton teams will play a doubles match. The badminton teams are expected to be well attended.

Campus Stereotypes

By PAT HYDE

Even the most wary visitor to "Jessel" would soon be estranged by the uniqueness of the different "models" that we have on campus. These people are immediately categorized by the newcomer into their special group. This, then, is what we imagine when we hear someone say, "That is a . . . " stereotype thoroughly. Their identifying feature is the inevitable pair of horn-rimmed glasses. They can be seen mostly going to and from the library, in and out of class, and from their class. Occasionally they are found in large numbers in the BS discussing such interesting topics as "Shakespeare Did So Write Shakespeare!" or "The Lemonchol in Chess!?" or "Why Every Student Should Take English 205 or "Why Can't We Have a Writer's Seminar?? English majors are inevitably members and coffee drinkers. Why, I don't know. Perhaps the strain is too great.

After the three o'clock bell has sounded, the hoop-field and tennis courts are overcrowded with avid-Ballists. Three and one PE majors. It seems that PE majors are the enemy of every girl in school. They have been known to swear, more sports, and more enthusiasm than any three English or Science majors. PE majors can be found anywhere: in the gym, the BS, the classics, and have been known to go to the library. Of course, their greatest height is in north, but it is well known they have the best view in Zoology. Their track suits are just a matter of problem. The BS peppers it, and they have more room than the edition REC decorating it. They are not likely to spot their roommates, unless, of course, their roommate is also a PE major, but mostly they carry themselves in large masses, and the only racket, golf, club, but also ball, etc., in the SU PE major drawer. They are rarely large in number, and also in Behavior. Reading is easy, these girls make excellent listeners, no negative followers.

One in a while, one might meet a group of six or seven people, who seems to be around the holds of us lesser beings. These are the cultured group known as the Music Majors. Music Majors are seldom seen, when they do happen to present their views to view, they either in the music building, the dining hall, or at a concert.

To end this discourse, we must meet the Chemistry or BS ma-
