Important Week! Jan. 13-16

At the beginning of next quarter, one of the important events on our campus will be taking place—Religious Force Week. To get a better definition of what this week is about, Dr. Franks and members of the Religious Force have been working on the details of the opportunity to discuss and bring out in the open any questions or doubts that students may have about their beliefs and beliefs of others.

This year Dr. Wolfin Beach from Duke University will be our special guest speaker for this week-long event. There will be a variety of workshops, presentations, and discussions on various topics related to religious beliefs and practices. Dr. Franks and his team have worked hard to ensure that the week is both informative and enjoyable for everyone involved.

There will be several key speakers throughout the week, including Dr. Franks himself, who will speak on various topics related to religious studies. Other notable speakers include

- Tony Collins
- David MacArthur
- William Smith

During Religious Force Week, students are encouraged to participate in the various activities and discussions. Whether you are a religious believer or someone who is curious about other beliefs, there is something for everyone. The week is designed to be open and inclusive for all, providing a safe space for exploration and learning.

So join us next week for Religious Force Week and be a part of an exciting and educational experience!
