Don't Believe A Word!

We've heard so much about Tea Party, with her Speeches and all, that we've been woefully desirous of meeting the woman herself. So last week we decided to go to her speech at Columbia, and see what all the excitement was about. It was quite a sight to see her speak, as she stood on the stage, surrounded by a sea of people, looking straight into the camera, and speaking with a clear, confident voice. Her message was powerful and inspiring, and her words resonated with the audience. We were reminded of the power of the human voice, and the importance of speaking up for what we believe in. It was truly an unforgettable experience.
