Googe And Tanner Elected To Head Colonee Staff For Coming Year

By Martha Marrell

The Colonne staff elected Ann Googe and Pat Tanner to head the Colonne for 1955-56. The newly appointed "leaders" said: "We will be serving the student body with the same dedication and enthusiasm as we have in the past and we wish to assure the students that we will work closely with them in all activities."

Keep The Sights In Lockheed Aircraft Company In Macon Ga.

The Macon Air Force Plant, which is the largest single job in the world, is the scene of a four-day "tour" by members of the Macon Colonne staff. The tour, which is being conducted by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, is a part of the company's "Tour of the Country" program. The tour is designed to provide an opportunity for members of the Colonne staff to see firsthand the work being done by the company. The tour will include visits to the company's factories, offices, and laboratories, as well as tours of the company's facilities. The tour will conclude with a special presentation by the company's President, who will discuss the company's future plans and objectives.
As Time Goes On

Franck Williams, CEO of the local retailer, had been in the industry for over 30 years. He was a well-respected and knowledgeable figure in the retail world.

He was not used to being the focus of so much attention. The press conference was packed with reporters and photographers, all eager to get a quote from him.

"It's been a tough year for us," he said, "but we're confident that we can turn things around." His words were met with a mix of skepticism and determination.

Williams had worked his way up from the bottom, starting as a sales associate and eventually becoming the CEO. He was known for his strategic thinking and his ability to adapt to changing market conditions.

The press conference was also attended by several of Williams' key executives, who were all confident in the company's ability to weather the storm.

The meeting adjourned after a successful Q&A session, with Williams and his team heading back to the office to continue working towards a successful future for the company.

OFFICE MANAGEMENT

W. V. Cowie, Mr. Cowie was the experienced and professional staff that the office management department was proud of. They were knowledgeable, efficient, and dedicated to providing the best possible service to their clients.

The office was located in the heart of the city, and its location was perfect for the business it conducted. The office was well-lit and spacious, with plenty of natural light streaming in through the large windows. The staff was friendly and helpful, always willing to go the extra mile for their clients.

The office management department was responsible for maintaining the office, ensuring that everything was running smoothly. They were in charge of scheduling appointments, answering calls, and managing the day-to-day operations of the office.

The office was also equipped with state-of-the-art technology, including a high-speed internet connection, a webcam, and a printer. The staff was trained to use these tools efficiently and effectively.

Overall, the office management department was a model of professionalism, and they were dedicated to providing the best possible service to their clients. They were a credit to the business world, and their success was a testament to their hard work and dedication.

Our Versatile Dr. James C. Bonner

Began Career in Agriculture & Mining

By Edith Bisby

Dr. James Calvin Bonner, a decorated military officer, was honored at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet. Bonner, who had served in the United States Marine Corps, was recognized for his contributions to the community.

Bonner, who grew up in a small town in Alabama, was a natural leader. He joined the Marine Corps after graduating from high school and served in several tours of duty.

Bonner later went on to attend agricultural school in Texas and then went on to work in the mining industry. He eventually returned to Alabama to set up his own farm.

Bonner was a man of many talents. He was a successful farmer, a respected military officer, and a dedicated community leader. His contributions to the community were recognized by his peers and his constituents.

The Chamber of Commerce banquet was a fitting tribute to Bonner's many accomplishments. The event was attended by many community leaders and members, all of whom were impressed by Bonner's dedication and hard work.

University of Fla.
Grading System
To Be Revised
Gainesville, Fla. — (U. F. —
The grading system of the University of Florida's general education C-courses has been termed "psychologically and administratively bizarre" in a final report by outside consultants. The fifty-page report was compiled by a seven-man committee composed of outstanding educators in the field of general education.

Findings by the report suggest no radical changes in the present system, but many practices for improvements are made. Typical of the issues hit by the report are the counseling, difficulties in the courses, and neglected areas of study in addition to the criticism of the grading system.

Recommendations made to the University's present Committee of Instruction are in the main areas: a) a return to a system of "pass or fail" on the individual's grade; and b) the inclusion of the course and notification to the instructor of the grade in addition to his criticism of the student's work.

The system of "average methods" is described as a "bizarre system for the average student". The report states: "The University should determine his ability to pass or fail in each course. He should be held to the same standards as other students."

The report states that the student should have the right to appeal to the University's representative for the purpose of having the instructor's report reviewed.

The report also states that the University's representative should be able to recommend the student to the instructor for a grade other than the instructor's grade. This is to be done in order to avoid "bizarre" grades.
