Serious Discussions

A policy was brought out in one of our discussion periods and the student members were asked to comment on it. The discussion was quite heated, but in the end, the policy was voted down.

We need to take advantage of these opportunities to provide a platform for students to engage in meaningful discussions.

Letters to the editor have always been, and still are, very welcome. Your suggestions and comments, whether written or verbal, are more than welcome and could prove beneficial.

The paper was supposed to be something to put in perspective and then come back to the same period again. The editor, however, doesn't think it was handled well and wants to improve it.

Another good point for a serious discussion policy is that it could become a better person. In the future, I'm not sure what will happen with this, but I've always been curious about the topic. One thing I've always been curious about is what it will be like.

We went to the Colonnade to be something that really happened, something that's stuck forward to1 something that's stuck forward to stick to the story in a more important way.

There is no need to apologize for honest opinions. The newspaper is not free from criticism even if it is not an opinion.

Making the Most

Beverly, Dr. Charles L. Allen made a speech before our school assembly with me. We were both impressed by his ability to understand the issues at hand. However, I don't think it's necessary for everyone to view such issues through a different lens.

We need to be more open-minded and consider different perspectives in order to fully understand the issues at hand. It's important not to just stick to one perspective, but to consider multiple viewpoints.
