GSCW Will Become Coed Institution In The Fall Term, Says President Peck

According to a motion passed by the chapel worship committee, and ratified successfully by the Dean of Students, the Dean of Women, and the Dean of Children, GSCW will henceforth be a coeducational institution along with Baldwin High School, Milledgeville State Hospital, and other similar institution beginning next spring.

The decision to begin coeducation next winter climaxed 20 years of fierce agitation by the administration, especially housemothers, deans of girls, kitchen help, maids, and groundkeepers, against the intense, adamant, negative stand taken by 10 generations of Jessie girls. Only by astute underground, underwater politicking (in the college pool) did president Robert E. Peck succeed in pulling out the stopper, which of course let loose waves and floods of protests from various sundry segments of the campusites. "I simply refuse to let girls stand around and watch football practice" boomed newly appointed coach Dr. John Jacobs. "My leisurely, empty, uninteresting weekends will be totally ruined", moaned the Beeson chain smoking champion. "When will I ever have time to relax with a book on the steps of the mansion", wailed one of the sophomore intellectual literati intelligentsia. Five GMC cadets held a mass meeting on Davenport field and unanimously voted to protect their rights to GSCW equipment, pool, soirees and refreshments. The Milledgeville Coca Cola Executive Board threatened mass suicide if the 650 EBC (Eternal Bridge Club) members took to holding hands on anything except their playing cards. However the Student body president attenuated their grief by suggesting that the cards could still be used for plugging up holes in walls and windows, especially in Ennis Hall. The student chapter of the KKK burned down Parks 27 in protest against this move of integration.

However all criticism was not negative. Herr Hans Steinschneider, chairman to the philosophy, astrology and alchemy department, and the chief chef's chief cheese chopper, eulogized the move in no uncertain terms: "Hoc ignatum cendrum ipso propter illie, id et fructabie est." The following learned response emanated from the Education Building: "Child centered fried shoes develop total environment, instincts, complexes, that are conditioned by the innate pragmatic of optimistic Deweyan revelation accorded to organic Rousseau." And one inmate exulted: "Now there will be plenty of men for us to ask for dates."

However, according to Registrar T. E. Jones, each boy will

Letter to Editor

Dere Editor;

I am writing to you as I don't want anyone to get the same raw deal which I have gotten. I am writing to you because of a certain course which is being offered here and which really gives a bad deal to anyone who is a bit fool like me to take it.

I am speaking of course, of the typing course. I signed up for this course last 4 term and worked very hard at it. I can now type at the amazing rate of 69 words a minute but she still gives me a D in this course.

Sincerely,
Jacqueline S. Trippel

have to have a personal interview before he is acceptable. These interviews will be private and will take place at Sinclair Dam between midnight and 3 A. M.

Housemothers and dormitory leaders have already begun preparing accommodations for the new students. In accordance with the segregative handbook of the greater University system, they have decided that all freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors, will henceforth live in separate dorms. However, it was felt that both sexes will room together in order to promote unity, cohesion and better class relations.

Since the college name must be changed, Dr. Shredded Ralston proposed "MRNFF", which backwards spells "FFNRM".

CGA Review Rules; Free New Life May Change Campus

Many suggestions for the improvement of campus life and regulations were brought before the College Government Association at its top secret retreat last weekend on front campus. Members of CGA remarked on the timeliness and the profundity of these suggestions, and seemed to think that when brought to a vote the new legislation would receive the unanimous approval of both students and faculty. The suggestions included proposals for the following:

- Co-ed dormitories.
- Elevators installed in dorms to replace the tedious stairs that now aggravate student's rheumatism.
- A Honeymoon suite in every dorm.
- Vending machines for gin, ice, and pink champagne placed in the halls.
- A Rec-sponsored night club, with weekly program changes including artists like Artie Shaw, Louis Armstrong, Stan Kenton.
- Subway connections to transport weary students from one building to another.
- Menus which would include items such as pheasant-under-glass, Beef Stroganof, and shish-kebab.
- Campus curfew extended to three a. m.
- Each student provided with her own key, to free house mothers of the tiresome duty of locking doors every night.
- Classes to begin at eleven a. m. and terminate at one p. m.
- School year begins on Sept. 31 and ends on Sept. 32.

Atkinson Hall Scene of Firey Blaze; Bake Beans To Be The Latest Craze

In a raging pre-dawn fire last night, Atkinson Hall fell prey to flames that swept it to the point of almost total destruction. Losses were estimated in the tens of dollars, with the auditors of the greater university system assessing them more accurately, after social security, income tax and retirement deductions, at $53.36. This is not to mention the piles of garbage that was stored in the dining hall downstairs.

The fire was discovered at approximately 2:10 a. m. by a freshman from Terrell B-C as she was entering her window after a night out on this fabulous town. At first she thought the bright glow was just the next day's beans put on to boil (so there'd be sure to be enough, or at the most some starving faculty members sneaking around with flashlights picking up scraps of hominy).

However, since this constitutes a grave honor code offense, she felt honor-bound to report it to the student chairman of faculty conduct and propriety, who yelled, "Fired! fired!" They ought to be fired! At this, all the alert, vigilante house mothers gave the alarm and immediately, after approximately 10 hours, the Milledgeville olde trusty bucket brigade ambled onto the scene and into the SU for a coke and quick hand of poker. Action was delayed a few minutes however while the chief gave his report to newsbeat. But before he could even say "Quiet" . . . he was interrupted by the College Choir doing a rock and roll adaption of "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes", directed by Ax Nomoah. The Madrigals uttered a rendition of Stravinsky's "Fire Bird Suite", and the marching band entertained at intermission with a rousing "Come to the Fire". The president congratulated the various organizations on their excellent planning and spirit, while commending the work of the tumblers and cheerleaders directed by the late head chief of the division of humanities and unnatural phenomena.

In order to console the anguished cries of students who were desolate upon smelling the stench of so much ham going up in smoke, the president of the student body reminded students that a new menu would henceforth take the place of the usual Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, Monday fare: baked beans and charcoaled pork. However, this failed to allay their grief and she was greeted with a shower of milk bottles stolen from the dining hall. The only person who was calm was the chief chef who had gone berserk and was mumbling distractedly: "Girls, girls, may I have your attention please."

Signs of Spring

August members of the English department strolling in reverie through Zeb Fibelkorn's cow fields, reciting Romantic poetry . . . One Parks Hall faculty member, realizing that students also feel the call of spring, is giving shorter tests this spring. (EX: Write a brief history of the world in 5 minutes) . . . Tennis classes become overcrowded as girl's desire to have legitimate excuses for hanging around the tennis court . . .

Another faculty member changes the thread count of his shirts to only 175. (Much cooler and besides, the A & P always receives a new supply in the spring.)

Mme Bovary Visits Student Committee In Parks Hospital

Miss Pat Pasteur, head of the college infirmary, announced today that plans are being made for sweeping new innovations at Parks Memorial Hospital. A student worker has been employed to sweep the building from one end to the other, every day. In addition to this, other services will be added to insure the comfort and the enjoyment of patients. Indoor plumbing has been installed as well as telephone and color television sets in every room.

One of the main innovations and certainly that of which the hospital staff is proudest, is the new ultra-super-antiquated reclining bed. This bed is modeled after the famous chaise lounge of Madame Bovary, and is provided for those patients who, the hospital feels, can appreciate the finer things in life. It is covered in East Indian snake hide, with delicate traceries of water-buffalo tails hung at either end. The head of the bed is covered by pillows made of softest plaid wire covered with smooth silky down taken from the crop of a male rooster. At the side of the bed there will be a button, which by pressing the patient can summon up a genuine Cuban rebel, guaranteed to have been executed by Castro.

The hospital hopes that students will make fullest use of these new capacities.

Student Committee Meets To Improve Chapel Programs

The Student Committee for Improving Thursday Chapels met recently to discuss the future chapel programs and to discuss the improvements which will occur in the auditorium.

On Thursday, April 2, on a faculty-sponsored program, Elvis Presley will speak on the subject, "The Probabilities and Statistics of Outer Space," and will discuss the rate of one meteorite in proportion to the internal combustion of the posterior emulsions of lava at the degree of 9,000 centigrade. Before leaving chapel, Elvis will toss space helmets and miniature guitars to some lucky girls. Thursday, April 6, Mr. Rock Hudson will speak to us on the subject, "Clay and Rock Formations."

The auditorium will be provided with reclining seats so that students may sleep through boring assembly programs. Food, soft drinks, cigarettes, and mail will be sold by bathing suit clad cigarette girls to students so that they can enjoy the programs better. Each chair will be provided with a button so that a student may turn a lousy speaker off or on. The seats will also be provided with a pocket containing over-ripe eggs and tomatoes for throwing at lousy performers and long-winded speakers.

The Student Committee for Improving Thursday Chapels sincerely hopes that each of you will appreciate these future improvements.

Advice To The Love-Torn

Dear Gabby,

I am a town student and am taking piano lessons from Mr. Eheridge. I practice very hard, but he has told me I can never play worth a darn because I keep daydreaming about melodies instead of concentrating on my practice. He has threatened to drop me. What can I do?

S. Rachmaninoff

Dear S. Rachmaninoff,

The next time your teacher bends over to illustrate your fingering, raise the piano lid and bang it down on his head. Do not let him out until he promises to stop saying such nasty things.

I'm hopelessly in love with Dr. Lee, but he doesn't even know I exist. To him I am just a matriculation card no. What can I do to make him notice me?

Marsha P.

Dear Marsha,

Take a book and relax on the front steps of the mansion.

Vincent Famous

Misile In Orbit

Hooray! GSCW is at last on the map! Just before press time, our offices received a cable from the President of the US congratulating us on what is probably the most notable scientific event in the history of our country. The science department, under the guidance of Dr. Joseph Vincent, has launched a guided missile which is even now headed for Arcturus. The projectile, made of balsa and spit, was launched last Saturday from the GMC football field. It was powered by throwing together old copies of speeches of Edward R. Murrow and Senator Joseph McCarthy, and waiting for the explosion. Dr. Vincent estimates that it will go into orbit around Arcturus in less than a million years, and will be completely invisible to us, except with the aid of the naked eye.

OBITUARY

GSCW was saddened by the sudden death of our beloved dietitian, Miss I Cause Ptomane. The body was taken to the Parks Memorial Hospital and the college physician, Dr. Scourge N. Howe, concluded that the death was due to involuntary suicide. The students and family insisted a thorough study be made by the world's leading garbage collectors within the next 24 hours. It was discovered that the death resulted from grease a la ham.

Miss Ptomane will lie in state in the college dining room beside the chime box. Music will be furnished by Mr. Arnot's 6th period beginner's band. It is requested of the family and faculty that flowers will be omitted, especially stink weed, garlic blossoms and cauliflower. Burial will be in the sewer in front of the former site of Atkinson Hall.

Open House Plans Set For Ennis Hall

Ennis has just voted, by an overwhelming majority, to hold an annual open-house night. Since they are going to have one every year anyway, they decided they might as well plan for it and make it a good one. The actual date has been set, but it will be kept secret since the faculty may hear about it and try to interfere. (But, who knows?, they may want to take part in it.)

On this night all doors will be left conveniently unlocked (some will probably be propped wide open), and the screens will be removed from the windows so that those who prefer entering that way may do so more easily. Refreshments will be available downstairs, but the house mother will have to serve them, since all of the girl's will be busy. After partaking of refreshments, guests may wander around and see what they can find of interest to keep as a souvenir.

All the girls have promised not to leave any lights on, not to put locks on their doors, and to wear their prettiest nighties. Anyone disobeying these rules will be punished by being exiled from Ennis for the night. By the way, girls from the other dorms will not be allowed to participate in the night's activities; they haven't had enough experience and might not know how to act.

At a certain signal, every girl will jump out of bed and chase at least one person (more if necessary to keep them from feeling left out) down the hall and out the door, then after a suitable pause (while doors are relocked and windows rescreened) they will call the police and ask them to come over so they can report every little detail to News Beat.

Lab Course In Sex On Coming Agenda

Today it was announced that, beginning with fall 1959 quarter, a new course entitled "Studies of Sexual Behaviour" will be offered to GSCW students. The new course will be a laboratory course and will be slanted to meet the requirements of science majors. Dean MacMahon pointed out the fact that this course will be unique among those offered by the schools of the Georgia University System, and that it will be the object of much discussion. "We realize," he said, "that this will be a new and daring departure for any college, and especially for a girl's college. However, we are prepared to brave the storm of controversy that may be engendered because we feel that we will be forging ahead, pioneering the road towards successful modern living for our students. (Though we all realize that sex is not merely a modern development.)"

A large laboratory in the science building has been especially equipped for this course. Nothing has been left out. Most important of all the lab equipment are the two thousand live snails, of the species Gigantica Activate, which have been flown at enormous expense from South America in order that students may study using the largest, finest subjects available. A faculty consensus of opinion is that "These are the biggest and best snails in the world, the kind you can find only in the rain jungles of the Amazon. Science students really ought to profit from observing their sexual behaviour."

Short Snorts On Sports

by El Toro

On Saturday, April 4, the Wreckreation Association will sponsor a jack stone clinic in the dance studio. Dr. Frances Ross Hicks, winner of the jack stone tournament for women in the Southern district for four consecutive years, will be present to teach the fundamental skills of this fast-spreading sport. The clinic will begin at 10:30 Saturday morning and last until 8 o'clock Saturday night. There will be a three dollar charge per person in order to obtain money to repair the floor where the jack stones make scratches.

With the March winds blowing and the April sun shining down to crown the spring flowers, what does a young girl's mind turn to? Why, kite flying, of course. By popular demand this will again be the intramural sport for Spring Quarter. Practice begins Monday, April 6, on the hockey field. Seven practices are required for eligibility to play on the color teams. So, go fly a kite!

On the casualty list—

Haisey Dammatt is in the infirmary with a head injury she received while doing "around the world" with her yo-yo. She was representing G.S.C.W. in the yo-yo contest against Tift.

The marble games, scheduled for Thursday afternoon, April 2, will not be held because Miss Beatrice McNeill, coach of the teams, has lost her marbles.

The Saturday soiree for April 11 will feature tiddly winks, jump rope, and musical chairs. Don't miss the fun!

Wealthy Alumna Leaves $10,000,000 For Construction Of Bird Bath

The firm of Goldstein, Smith, Finkelstein, Jones, Epstein, Brown Freeburg, Gray and Relatives, the executors of the will of Miss Myrtle Blodgett (class of '00), announced today that she had left her alma mater, Georgia State College for Women, $10,000,000 to be used for long needed necessities—particularly, a giant bird bath for all the unbefriended little pigeons on this campus. The bird bath will be 100 feet tall, white, with ornate decorations to correspond with those of the other buildings. It will be placed in front of Parks Hall. Completion of the project will take about two years, and until then, the pigeons inhabiting both Lanier and Parks Hall will remain in their ancestral places.

Miss Blodgett was one of GSCW's most outstanding alumnae, graduating in '00 with her

Miss Degree. She has done outstanding work in her field, but she always modestly acclaimed her success was due only to the training she had received at this institution.

When told of the grant, Dr. Buzzywuzzy, President of GSCW, was overjoyed. "Goody, goody," was his comment, "just what we have always needed. I am amazed at the insight Miss Blodgett showed when she determined the needs of this campus after having been away from the campus for about 70 years. This item has been on our calendar for many, many years and has been one of our most pressing needs and now at last it has been solved. Goody, goody." One faculty member suggested that a dating center was more necessary, but she was promptly fired.
