The Milledgeville College Choir to Present the Oratorio “Eligal” Tonite

The Milledgeville College Choir and the Milledgeville Community Choir will present the oratorio “Eligal,” tonight in Russell Auditorium of BFM P.

The oratorio, which will be directed by Dr. Max Nochi, will be presented in two parts. The following Sunday, the choir will be in the background portraying the parts of the people, the priests of Bon, and the angels. Miss Moppie Jenkins will accompany the choir on the organ, and the program will be directed by Dr. George S. Blevins and Miss Mary Margaret Waterman.

“Eligal” was written by Felix Mendelssohn, who wrote the music for the oratorio in 1822, but was never able to complete it. It was not published until 1843, and was not performed until 1846, and has not been performed in years.

The first part begins with Elijah’s prophecy of doom which is followed by the oratorio description of the journey of the people from the “First Book of the Kings.” The next part presents the return of the people to Elijah’s prayer, Jerusalem’s perception of God’s deliverance, and the return of his prosperity, his prosperity, his prosperity, his prosperity, his prosperity.

Wedding Bells Ring

For GSCW Students

"A financial aid working committee was appointed for the next school year. It is expected that the plan will be in effect by next fall. The committee is composed of the following faculty members: Dr. Jane Shriver, Dr. Mary Ann Johnson, Dr. John Smith, Dr. Jane Davis, Dr. William Brown, and Dr. John White. The committee will meet weekly to discuss financial aid issues and make recommendations. The meeting schedule and location will be announced soon. All students are encouraged to attend these meetings to learn more about available resources and how to access them.

Sue Stamps and Marty Camp have been elected Admission Counselors for GSCW

The college administration has announced that Sue Stamps and Marty Camp have been elected as admission counselors for the next academic year. This decision was made after a thorough review of the candidates' qualifications and a comprehensive interview process. Both Sue and Marty bring a wealth of experience and expertise to the role, having previously worked in various capacities within the college. Their primary responsibility will be to welcome and counsel prospective students, assisting them in the application process and providing guidance throughout the decision-making journey. The administration is confident that Sue and Marty will make valuable contributions to the college community and look forward to their leadership in the upcoming academic year.

What is the difference between a standing wave and a traveling wave? A standing wave is a wave that remains stationary at a particular location, often appearing as a series of nodes and antinodes. A traveling wave, on the other hand, moves through a medium without changing its shape and maintains a constant frequency. The key distinction lies in the wave's motion: standing waves remain fixed, while traveling waves propagate through space.
The ABC's of Job Hunting

So, the Great Adventure lies ahead. You have your degree and are ready to enter the great world of work. You've left the campus behind you, whether it be permanently or just for a summer job.

You're "in the market now" for a job, and you already have your knowledge gained in school to help you out. What's more, you know how the job market works, you know what employers look for, and you've had several interviews to help you out. Now, here are some tips on how to handle your job-hunting career.

How do you go about finding the right job? What do you want? What can you offer? Remember, to begin with, find a job that is an experience common to your field of study.

There are four main steps that you need to take to get a job:

1. Preparing for your interview.
2. Preparing for your job search.
4. Preparing for your future career.

1. Preparing for your interview:

a. Study the firm's history.

b. Know their product line.

c. Know their competitors.

2. Preparing for your job search:

a. Find a job that meets your qualifications.

b. Find a job that is in your field of study.

3. Preparing for your job performance:

a. Learn the company's policies and procedures.

b. Learn the company's products and services.

4. Preparing for your future career:

a. Plan for a career in your chosen field.

b. Plan for a career in your chosen industry.
