The Day Students' View

LINDA KITCHENS

Why don't the Day Students take more part in college life? Fretting constantly confused with first question, I would like to take this opportunity to answer it.

First I would like to remind you that in the dormitory atmosphere, the GSC campus is first home. They work, study, and sleep there. It is only natural that they should be interested in what is happening in the dormitories. We are all part of the same group, but the dormitory atmosphere is different. If we take part in college life, we must be able to understand the work, study, and sleep there. It is only natural that they should be interested in what is happening in the dormitories.

Moreover, the Day Students do not live in Millen Hall, they live in Millen Hall, and if they are interested in college life, they must be interested in what is happening in the dormitories. We are all part of the same group, but the dormitory atmosphere is different. If we take part in college life, we must be able to understand the work, study, and sleep there. It is only natural that they should be interested in what is happening in the dormitories.

Finally, I must admit that some of the Day Students simply aren't interested in college life, but I think that for the majority, student life doesn't matter. Most of us are interested in college activities and would like to take part in them, but simply find it impossible to do so.

LETTER TO EDITOR

In the last issue of the "Colonade" it was mentioned that a few students took part in the activities and that many of the activities were not well known because of the work, study, and sleep there. It is only natural that they should be interested in what is happening in the dormitories.

Level of Thinking

To conclude, one of the topics discussed at the College Government meeting was the "level of thinking" on this campus. Our most recent student meeting centered around one common concern: the level of thinking on this campus. The students present were concerned with the level of thinking on this campus. The students present were concerned with the level of thinking on this campus. The students present were concerned with the level of thinking on this campus.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my appreciation for the opportunity to publish my concerns on the "level of thinking" issue. Your willingness to consider and address my concerns is greatly appreciated. I look forward to continuing our dialogue on this important topic.

Sincerely,

Mary F. Turner
