Elections: National Versus Campus
Linda Kitchens

Our country is in the midst of a quest, a quest for control over the future of our nation. This quest is being conducted at the local, state, and national levels. The nation is divided into states and some states are divided into regions. The nation has divided into two main political parties: the Republicans and the Democrats. The Republicans are generally considered to be the conservative party, while the Democrats are generally considered to be the liberal party.

The Coming Presidential Election
Dr. James C. Bonner

The current presidential election is in full swing, with both parties vying for the votes of the American people. The candidates are running on a platform of promises, with each hoping to win the election and take control of the White House. The campaign has been intense, with both candidates focusing on issues such as the economy, healthcare, and national security.

Elections: National Versus Campus

Linda Kichens

Our country is in the midst of a great, unprecedented crisis which has placed American unity in question. The tranquility of the summer months, when the National Democratic and Republican Conventions were held to compile credentials for the most important votes, seems to have been replaced by a frenzied campaign of electoral spectra and posturing, with every effort being made to convince the voter that the candidate who is best qualified to be President of the United States.

We are now at an acute moment in which our nation is faced with a crisis of leadership. The responsibility of choosing a President has never been greater. The stakes are high, and the outcome of this election could determine the future of our country.

We must choose a President who will lead us forward, not one who will only react to the problems we face. We need a leader who will be a true friend to our country and work to ensure that our nation remains strong and prosperous.

The Coming Presidential Election

Dr. James C. Bonner

The current presidential election is one of the most important in the history of our nation. It is a time when our leaders must come together to address the challenges that face us all. The issues of war and peace, the economy, and the future of our society are at stake.

This election will be critical in determining the course of our country for the next four years. We must choose wisely, for the consequences of our decisions will be felt for generations to come. Let us come together as Americans and vote for the candidate who best represents our values and our future.
RAT DAY

Look out, Milliedeaver! Here comes the rank!

Hurry, hurry, hurry! Flag raising is only three hours away!

If this keeps up, we may not be alive after Rat Day.

And so the noun is . . . “Rat”.

“Guinea Pigs” To Consume

A Quart Of Milk A Day

Twenty-seven of our brave 10th-grade students have agreed to become guinea-pigs for a scientific experiment being held on our campus. The purpose of the experiment is to find the nutritional value of milk. Each of the students was chosen because he was not a habitual drinker of milk. They were each given a blood test to determine the amount of albumin and protein present, then told to drink a quart of milk every day for a month. At the end of the month another blood test will be given and compared with the first. Finally, after a month of drinking no milk, a final test will be given. The results of this experiment should prove quite interesting.
