GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE for WOMEN

December 3, 1960

"I Love Teaching," Says Mrs. Tate, New Member Of The English Dept.

Have you met a woman with charming reddish hair and a warm sympathetic smile on GSCW's campus this year? She is Mrs. Mary Barbara Tate, the new faculty member of the English Department. Mrs. Tate is a genuine daughter of Georgia, for she graduated from high school in Sandersville and received her Bachelor of Arts degree in English from GSCW in 1957.

Mrs. Tate likes the South — "this is home", she says — but she also likes travelling. Her husband is in the air force; and the family has spent a year in France and two years in Germany. Mrs. Tate has seen quite a lot of Europe; and Paris is her favorite number-one city. However, she prefers Germany to France as a country to live in.

To the question if she likes housework, Mrs. Tate answers with a definite absolute "No!" A household of two teen-age sons, a husband, a cat, and a dog means plenty of cleaning and washing; but Mrs. Tate still manages to find time for her favorite past-times of reading, music, and knitting. She prefers the romantic type of music, sonatas and also some symphonies, and is fond of English literature — especially Dickens, Thackeray and contemporary British writers.

Her future plans include a Master of Arts degree next summer, possibly from the University of Georgia. Before Christmas Mrs. Tate's husband is going to leave for Iceland where he will stay for a whole year.

"I was a little bit afraid I would feel awkward coming back to GSCW as a teacher", says Mrs. Tate, "but I was glad to find out that I did not. I loved GSCW, I still love it, and most of all, I love teaching."

Fancy Socks To Win Prize Tonight

Hurry, hurry, hurry! Borrow, buy, or steal, but get the fanciest pair of socks you can find and come to the sock hop to be held tonight in the big gym. The time will be from 8:00 to 11:00.

In keeping with the season, the committee has chosen Winter Time as the theme for the dance. The gym will be decorated with greenery, red berries, mistletoe, holly, and red candles as a reminder of winter as well as the yuletide season.

Mary Anne Burrus, in charge of the refreshment committee, will be sure that plenty of refreshments are available for everyone, so don't be afraid to bring your date along. Everyone is invited — stag or drag.

Rita Perdue heads the decorations and music committee. Others helping on the committees are Sandra Rattree, Jane Gordon, and Evelyn Blount.

A special prize will be given to the person wearing the most unusual pair of socks; so tonight don't worry about which dress to wear — your socks will be in the limelight.

This is your last chance to live it up before Dead Week, so make your plans to come to the sock hop. It promises to be a very enjoyable evening with a good time to be had by all.

Bonnie Deckle Is SNEA President

GSCW's first Student National Educational Association has been successfully organized on campus with a total of sixty-two charter members. In addition to receiving NEA and GEA journals, SNEA members will become better acquainted with their future profession as teachers.

The 1960-61 officers elected to shape the growth of this new educational organization are the following: President, Bonnie Deckle, a sophomore and a Home Economics major from Register; Vice-President, Elaine Curry, a junior English major from Tonnille; Secretary, Max Patton, a sophomore Business major from Carrton; Treasurer, Peggy Sue Lindsey, a sophomore Elementary Education major from Fort Gaines; Reporter, Barbara Hussey, a sophomore Elementary Education major from Sparta; Publicity Chairman, Pat Kitchens, a sophomore from Social Circle; Social Chairman, Amelia Faggan, a sophomore History major from Atlanta.

The SNEA officers and members, under the sponsorship of Dr. Hale and co-sponsorship of Dr. Lounsbury, are anticipating an interesting, worthwhile, and successful year ahead for SNEA.

Dr. Barkley Speaks To Student NEA

Last week, GSCW was happy to welcome Dr. David S. Barkley, Chairman of the Department of Education and Psychology at Berry College in Rome, Georgia. Dr. Barkley, who is supervisor of the Student-Teacher Program there, observed Dr. Lounsbury's 204 Education classes and became acquainted with our Education Department.

In addition to being a retired Lt. Colonel of the United States Army, a graduate of Duke University, and a distinguished educator, Dr. Barkley is a world traveler. With this thought in mind, the newly organized Student NEA, under the guidance of Dr. Hale, invited Dr. Barkley to return to campus on Tuesday night, November 29, and review his recent extensive trip abroad.

Using his own film and many well chosen words, Dr. Barkley enabled the audience of students and teachers to follow his adventures through Paris, Warsaw, Moscow and southern parts of the Soviet Union, England, and back to the United States. Each of his comments was focused on giving to those present a brief but true and concise picture of life in the various sections of all the countries he visited.

Since the greatest concern of the group was with Russia and its true self, an interesting discussion followed. Questions were asked by the students and answered by Dr. Barkley.

"Messiah" To Be Presented Sunday

Handel's "Messiah", under the direction of Max Noah, will be presented in Russell Auditorium on Sunday evening, December 4 at 8 o'clock. Soloist will be Quillian White, soprano; Sunny Hammond, contralto; Haskell Boyter, baritone; and E. Stanley Perry, tenor. The group will be accompanied by the Atlanta Symphony Ensemble, with Miss Maggie Jenkins at the organ.

Others participating will be the members of the GSCW A Cappella Choir, students from GMC and GSCW, and local citizens.

IRC Members Discuss SS Forum

The program at the International Relations Club meeting Monday afternoon consisted of a discussion of the Fourteenth Annual Harriet Elliott Social Science Forum, which was held Nov. 16 and 17 at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Seven students — Dorothea Whitaker, Martha Harrell, Sharon Elkins, Betty Jo Brannen, Peggy Peel, Janell Pearson, and Mary Ann Johnson, accompanied by Dr. Helen I. Greene, club sponsor, and Miss Isabel Rogers, attended the forum. They gave the club a brief summary of the topics various speakers had discussed at the meetings.

Christmas In Russia

Pat Kitchens

The American Christmas is a much publicized holiday. People in huge cities jam every available means of transportation and, often for the one time in the year, find their ways back to a small town and home. A gigantic tree is lit on the White House lawn, while TV cameras and technicians work to bring the ceremony to the American home.

Quite a different view is taken in the world's other major power, Russia. No bells ring nor are wishes of joy and peace issued to the people from the Red leaders. Instead they view it as a sentimental holiday that could be done away with.

However, even the state dominated people of the Soviet countries refuse to give up this sacred holiday. Of course, the masters of propaganda will not be defeated. The people are allowed to observe Christmas in limited ways.

A law was issued that all children's toys—dolls, bears, etc. — would be dressed in uniforms that are similar to those worn by the State officials.

Manufacturers were quick to grasp the principle and use the decree to their own advantage. Soon a new game, Paths to Peace, was introduced to the market. Equipment for playing the game included a map and dice with doves painted on them. If, after the dice have been rolled, a player lands on one of the countries of the Soviet or its satellites, he is given points. However, if fate should be so unkind as to land him in America, all his points are taken away. The fatal place to land is, of course, Washington, D.C. For this gross error the player is kicked out of the game! Belgrade is conspicuously left off the map. Probably the inventors of the game couldn't decide into which category this city would fall.

Father Frost is the Russian counterpart of America's jolly Santa Claus. The Soviets have taken one of the few people in America that isn't on a diet and transformed him into flat-stomached athlete.

Russians will gather around their radios on Christmas day; because, on this special occasion they will be able to hear a program from the free world — one of the few uncensored things that ever reach them.

Radio broadcasts from the Free World are tearing an increasingly larger hole in the Iron Curtain.

Chicago Memoirs

Linda Kitchens

Chicago—the windy city—the city of sin—and the city of 3000 churches—the city of numerous night-clubs, theaters, and fine restaurants—the home of the largest office building in the world, the Merchandise Mart, owned by none other than Joseph Kennedy—the city with a China Town where one dare not speak of the Red Chinese except with hate and scorn—the city with thousands of subways covering the entire area—the railroad center of the country—the location of the largest hotel in the world, the Conrad Hilton—a city of slums and of many beautiful homes. We discovered all of these things and many more when we attended the meeting of the Associated Collegiate Press recently.

We saw some other sights, too—scenes we will not see in Georgia for a long time, I'm sure: a Negro girl reaching over to straighten a young white man's collar, both of them laughing and joking with each other; Negro boys sitting at the banquet table with white students; colored people sitting in the front seats on buses and subways; a colored girl from North Carolina leading in a panel discussion.

The strangest thing about this situation was that it seemed so natural, so normal while in Chicago, but as we approached the South, we looked back on those same scenes with amazement and distaste. Is there some magic line between the North and South that changes us when we cross it? Probably we simply accepted the situation because we had expected it, but will we ever be able to accept it at home?

The COLONNADE staff would like to take this opportunity to wish to each of you the best of luck on your exams and a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Letter to Editor

To the Senior Class:
 Now that the magic words have been spoken, and we have taken the step from wonderland down to reality, we express our deepest appreciation to you for your Irish spirit and your capable guidance which helped us keep the cherished slipper on the feet of the Royals. You played such a vital part by sharing so unselfishly your time, ideas, and interest, and we want you to know that you have our most genuine thanks for being the finest sister class ever.

Since we entered GSCW as freshmen you have encouraged and stimulated us with your ideas and attitudes. Our association with you has brought out the best in us and instilled us with the desire to do well so as to repay you in some small way for your helpfulness.

Each of you has won our love and admiration, and you can be certain that as you leave GSCW this year to take your place elsewhere, the best wishes of us all will follow you.

Royal love,
 The Sophomore Class

Dear Editor:

This student was wondering if the budget of the Dining Hall would allow for a little more cleanliness. Naturally, we can't be served pancakes for breakfast every morning, but must our eggs be the habitat of human hairs, our glasses, cups, plates, and silverware dirty at every meal?

Some black "specs" have taken their abode in our daily orange juice. Now these may be perfectly harmless, but orange juice is supposed to be an appetizer and these "specs" nullify any of the original purpose.

Finally, a bug happily sitting atop our lovely platter of salad is just the absolute end.

Sincerely,
 A Student

Carol Wilbanks - Columnmaid

Carol Wilbanks, this week's Columnmaid, is a Senior, a Home Ec major, and a Macon girl. Her campus activities include serving as President of Phi Upsilon Omicron, being Senior Representative to CGA, and singing with the College Choir. Music is one of her chief interests, and though she prefers semi-or classical music, she says she likes almost "anything but be-bop." And naturally this Home Ec major likes to cook "anything, especially baking."

Her plans for the future? "Very undecided," says Carol, but she may go into home service work or teach in her major field.

Carol's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Willbanks.

CGA Report

by Iris Barron

Last Monday night the members of Student Council assembled in the CGA office for their last meeting this quarter. Dean Chandler was on hand for the signal occasion, and, of course, Dr. Walston, advisor, was present.

President Tina announced that CGA's principal project for winter quarter will be a revision of the CGA constitution, in order to clarify some provisions and, in some instances, to change a provision.

Among the items of business was a discussion, initiated by Secretary of Scholarship, Pat Rabon, concerning the selection of members of Who's Who. What qualification is foremost in making the selections? What role does scholastic standing play in the selection of members? What changes or improvements, if any, would be suggested for the procedure of selection next year? These and other questions arose.

Elaine Curry, Secretary of Chapel, presented a plan for a new procedure in securing Monday chapel dates. By the new plan, chapel dates will ordinarily be requested by those presenting the program. It is believed that such a procedure will improve the quality of chapel programs.

Day Students Plan For Christmas Party

The Day Students' first Christmas party will be given Friday, December 9. It is hoped that this will become an annual affair in which all girls of the Day Student Organization may participate.

There will be refreshments served, after which gifts will be exchanged. The Christmas tree and decorations are being donated by the girls.

A Cappella Choir Induction Service

The GSCW A Cappella Choir had its official induction service on November 8. The service was held in the Methodist Church. The Choir processed down the aisles while singing "Joyful, Joyful We Adore Thee." Sandra Dunfi gave the invocation, and "Holy, Holy, Holy" was sung by the group. Penny Jones accompanied both songs on the organ.

A reading was given by Georgia Darden after which Vera Scarborough introduced our speaker, Miss Beatrice McNeil, a Physical Education instructor. She spoke about some of the responsibilities of choir members and about what it means to be in the choir.

Eulalie Mäsee, President of the Choir, read the induction vows. First the new members accepted their pledge to put choir before all outside activities and to remain loyal to the organization. The old members renewed their pledge to try to guide the new members in the right way. The service was closed with a prayer by Eulalie.

Miss Aurora Is To Be Elected After Holidays

So that their pictures can be placed in this year's edition of the Spectrum, Miss Aurora and her court will be elected the week after we return from Christmas holidays.

The whole student body will vote on Miss Aurora, who will be a member of the Senior class, and each class will select two representatives to make up the Aurora Court. Voting is to be based on beauty, poise and personality. The name of the winner will be kept secret until the spring dance, over which she will reign.

Casting For Centennial Pageant Begins Tuesday

Casting for the Pageant of the Secession Convention to be given during the Civil War Centennial observance Jan. 19-21 will begin Tuesday in Russell Auditorium. The Pageant was written by Lance Phillips and is to depict events leading to the Secession Convention which took place in 1861, the convention itself, and the years of war. Mr. Leonard Hart of the speech department is directing the play.

Tree Lighting, Carol Singing Mark Holidays

On our calendars we see "Christmas Tree Lighting" set for December 10. This will be the second year of the lighting of our own Christmas tree.

On this evening we will dress for dinner and then attend the lighting on front campus. From here we will go in groups to different places singing carols. The Mansion, which is being redecorated, will not be open for refreshments as it was last year.
