Dean Chandler's Office Has Many Lost Articles

From a quick glance into the hard room in Dean Chandler’s Office, it would appear that Miss Hall is starting a collection of articles for second hand store. But in reality, this is the lost and found department. During this year’s articles that have been lost vary in various places around the campus (especially in the large junior house). If someone lost something, he should consult this Department. In this armory of goods, one will find the “old” parked full of books, socks, leap and even a wallet and nothing else. A book that is lying around is covered with pieces of different colors. There are also in this area three blue raincoats. Way over in the corner, but not quite out of the view are some unusual articles of various descriptions and conditions.

If any of your belongings have been stolen, please return them to the lost and found department. This is not unlike a system of private property.

Thursday night I went to the film screening of "1984" at the Student Union. It was a. very political and thought-provoking film. I found the ending to be very disturbing. The film was directed by George Orwell, a British author known for his anti-communist beliefs.
