Miamic Conference Successful

There is an old saying, true but true, which asserts college shortcomings for me now: “Golden Slipper is in full sail.” The conference, 1960 a new week ends, weeks weeks out...

Mary Ann, Douglas, and myself in Miami...stayed late...hours...at the Annual American College Press Conference, meeting of all who worked. The meeting, which was attended by approximately a thousand newspapers, covered topics from colleges and universities all over the country, was a great success. It is interesting to note that older students and business executives with whom we talked at the conference shared many opinions and problems. This is a good sign that younger people and older people who share the same opinions are finding solutions to their problems. The meeting was held at the Miami Beach Hotel, and we were able to stay at the hotel for the entire week, except for the last day.

Stars in Our Hearts by Benjamin Ring

Slipper is the most beloved of our cast members. Every spring, thousands of students and others gather to see our productions. This year, hundreds of students and visitors attended the conference, and we were able to see many of them. We were able to stay at the hotel for the entire week, except for the last day.

Letter to the Editor

The spirit of cooperation and competition has been demonstrated during the preparations for Slipper. The cast members themselves have shown great efforts in preparing for this production. The cast members have been able to stay at the hotel for the entire week, except for the last day.

Underwood and Sanders Featured As New Additions To Faculty

Dr. Martin C. Sanders, Associate Professor of Education here at the Woman's College, is a native of Columbus, Georgia. He received his A. B. in Education from the University of Georgia, his Master's degree in the Department of Education, and his Doctor of Education from Florida State University. He has also attended Indiana University and South Dakota State College at Dakota.

Dr. Sanders won't say exactly how long he has taught, but he admits that many of his students were older than he during his first year of teaching. While he was at Florida State University he was supervising teachers of English in the Demonstration School. He has taught English, Latin, and social studies in high school and has been a student at high schools in Florida, Chattanooga, and Colgate. In 1925, he was named STAR teacher of the Miller County School System.

Besides teaching, Dr. Sanders has done some writing for the Baptist and Christian Brotherhoods and the Christian Index, and served as correspondent for newspapers in Georgia and Alabama. He is a member of the local First Baptist Church and an officer of the Young People's Department. He is currently serving as a public affairs chairman of the Baldwin County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Alfonsa's wife was a former Francis Palace of Fort Worth senior. Ms. Sanders has degrees in home economics from Florida State University and the University of Tennessee. She has served as director of a home management course at the University of Tennessee and has taught home economics in Florida and Georgia. The family lives in Columbus, Georgia.
