Editors Attend Convocation

On October 17-19, the Associated Collegiate Press held its Annual Convention in New York City. Four delegates attended from WC. These were Lyndy Horton and Judy Whelchel (Ed.), Faculty Team Ties Seniors, Beats Juniors

The Annual kite, sponsored by the Senior Class, was held on Wednesday, October 9. Students, dressed in their class colors, kicked off to begin the Football Field. Arrival produced "Goody Sacks" to set the mood for yelling and cheering to the favorite tunes.

The first big game of football consisted of the Faculty vs Seniors. It was heavy -- the Seniors who lead 5-1 until the Tall One (Dr. Lee) hit a homer with the bases loaded, changing the score to 5-4.

On a punt, Dr. Lee took home to the score 5-3 for the finale.

The second game of Faculty vs Juniors rounded out with a score of 5-2.

Most notable event was Chapman Callahan's thleary to steering to third base. On the ceiling was Dr. Jean Jacobs on second base -- Mr. Callahan redeemed himself by performing the last run.

The day ended in joyous fatigue.

College Theater Presents Play

"John Loves Mary," a comedy by Norman Krasna, will be presented by the College Theater on Thursday and Friday, November 3 and 4. It will begin at 8:15 p.m., in Russell Auditorium. The play, directed by Leonard Sart, assistant professor of speech, is about a post-war love affair, editor and bus, manager of the "Colonnade," and Evelyn Blount and Pat Layon (Ed.) and editor of the spectrum.

The delegates left on Wednesday afternoon and arrived in New York that night. The first day was spent sight-seeing and meeting as many representatives of the 1200 delegates from all over the country. All day Friday and Saturday morning were spent attending meetings of the delegation choice. These meetings included a wide variety of subjects ranging from a six-part basic newspaper course to individual meetings on newspapers and Annual World. Also on Saturday morning, the delegates went to see their school papers and annuals to be criticized by noted newspapermen and women.

The Convention ended on Saturday afternoon with a luncheon and awards presentation.

Colonnade Names New Editors

When the 1962-63 Colon-

nade staff completed its duties last March, the decision was made to disband the paper until further plans could be made for its future.

A committee headed by Joyce Joiner was appointed to begin plans for reorganization. Joyce worked up a questionnaire and at the end of the quarter a meeting was called for all persons interested in working on the newspaper.

With the aid of the questionnaires, Lyn Horton and Judy Whelchel were selected as editor and business manager of the 1963-64 staff. The other staff editor was selected by the editor and advisor at the beginning of this year.

Big Sisters Help Freshmen Settle Into Campus Life

I suppose you've been hearing quite a bit about the new Big Sister program this semester. What is it all about? Ask any Freshmen, chances are that they'll explain it by saying something like this:

"Well, Big Sisters are girls who volunteer to help freshmen get settled into campus life. Since my Big Sister had written me this summer, and had explained a few things about the program, I was really looking forward to meeting her, but still not quite knowing what to expect. Then, when I got to school that first day I found my Big Sister, Mrs. Blakely, and she introduced me. After talking with her for a little while, I felt not quite so lost, but someone to help me get started in college life. Someone to lean on until I could make it on my own, and most important -- she became a friend. She let me know that I could come on her for help whenever I needed her -- and at the same time, she seemed to realize that there were times when I didn't need her. In many ways she really was -- and is -- like a sister to me."

That answers part of the question, doesn't it? But there is more to being a Big Sister than that? Ask a Big Sister, and she'll probably say something like this: "The big thrill came when I first volunteered to become a Big Sister. I knew that "Y" had reorganized the whole Big Sister program and I was anxious to help make it a success, but the real excitement came when I received the names of my little sisters. As I wrote them this summer and as I came back to school early to get ready to meet them, I kept wondering what they would be like, if they would like me, how we would get along, and most important -- I still kept wondering if I was doing all I should be doing for them. But you know, it turned out that my little sisters did far more for me than I did for them. They made me feel needed and useful. They gave me a sense of dignity and worth. But most of all, they imparted to me a warm and depth of feeling that comes only from friends."

So this is the Big Sister program as seen from two different angles. Sounds great, doesn't it? Well, it is. Try it sometimes.

Vive La Difference

Once upon a time there was a student body, or perhaps it is better to say, a group of students divided and distinct to the campus which these students called home. School-wide was a familiar term and a new year, and the students came back. They looked around and saw that some important and definable change had taken place. They were no longer a mere group of students, but they were a unified student body with one purpose and one goal in mind as possible from these two short years.

Does this story sound familiar? To those of us who were students at this institution last year, it may. I am not alone in feeling this new attitude in students. I have heard it voiced and I have seen it. I feel it in the atmosphere where the floor is covered with discarded remnants. I feel it in the library where more and more students are coming, quitting a quiet place to study and learn.

I talk to my friends and notice and comment on this change. We all wonder why. What has made the difference? Some say, "Is it the freshman? Have you ever even met this class of ours? No, it's not only the freshman. It's all of us."

When did the change take place? Perhaps it started during the summer while we had time to reflect on the year that passed and think ahead to the next. Maybe the answer lies in the realization that time passes too quickly and we have little time to make these important changes.

The answer lies not along one path but along many. Each of us may have found it in a different way. But let us hope that this year will not slip away with the year and that the end will find us just as united as has the beginning.

All Sides Up

If I could give one needed item for this beginning year, it would have to be a sense of direction for students. In the past year, our label would state — All Sides Up! Unbelievable Comments. This term I would give not only for the student body and not only for the student body but also for the faculty and the administration. This gift should be used, rather than each person should consume the commodity, which we have within us all the time. I hope you have built-in.

Keep The Campus Clean

The first impressions we get from others and give in return is often a first surface impression. We notice or note if there is a litter in the campus. We notice when a student is referred, or in the same manner, people get their first impression of our school by its appearance. Lately, schoolmates have noticed that the impression has most probably not been a good one.

Perhaps the students who are responsible for the conditions in the area between the Student Unions and the four departments are the guilty parties. But we can not deny others the pride we feel in our school. If we do not first convey a pride to our campus, let's try to remember that litter is a trash can instead of on the ground.

Want a pet white while you’re at school? Why not try goldfish? You can buy them at Cordell’s, the store with the red and white checked front in Milledgeville. While you’re there, be sure to see the monkeys, Minah, birds, and honey bee.

The Union Department Store has a beautiful new selection of Shop of Shores blouses, as well as some daring sportswear sets. At Harrold’s you’ll find some lucious sweatshirts in the latest styles, all at a reasonable price. The Globe Shoe Hospital offers a service which no luxury—loving Jessie can exist a class and ship for only 350. Speaking of shoes, Milliken’s Shoe Service will take your evening shows any color you desire to match your formal for the fall dance. If you haven’t been too often to Cozy’s Cafe, you’ve missed a real treat — delicious Mexican food at a low cost. Why not top your meal off with one of Evana Pharmacy’s tasty ice cream cones? Evana’s also offers real southerns cooking and excellent for special dinners and parties.

Western Auto has some wooden drying racks that actually hold enough clothes to be worthwhile; and if any of you have been wandering where to buy Emerson water heaters you’ll be able to find a complete line of school supplies and art equipment.

If it’s about time for you to be shopping for gifts for someone special in the ULM, to be more specific? Don’t despair — buy them at Nada’s and you can’t go wrong. Or for your room— or even yourself — try a Revlon lipstick kit at Overstreet’s Pharmacy, or a charm yams, they have WC and GMC pen- nant pins from Gram’s Jewelry. WC Social Workers Club Holds Meeting

The WC Social workers club held its first meet- ing Tuesday night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Harmon. Dr. Harmon, who is a new one on campus, is composed of all students.

The YWCA has an intensive program this year on "The Images of Man" and "The Images of the Divine." It is designed to help answer the ever—present question: is humanity alone with a man, or does he have to attain it? The Y believes that with this program, students will have a better understanding of the character of man.

The two forthcoming speakers at the breakfast on Thursday mornings are Dr. P. D. Drennen, speaking October 24 on the "Images of Man in Dance," and Dr. Lowther, speaking Novem- ber 6 on the "Images of the Divine in Man and the Growing Mind." On October 30, Dr. Charles Osborn, assistant pastor of the First Bap- tist Church in Decatur, will be the Religious Focus Week speaker. Miss Mus- well will speak November 6 on the "Images of the Divine in Great Literators." It is hoped that students will take an active interest in this program to try to answer personal questions about the "Im- ages of Man and the Divine."

C. G. A. — In Need of A Sounding Board

Which are You?

An attender or an absent-ee? A pliller or a sleeper? A proponent or a spon-ee? A friend or a fault— find-ee? A campaigner or a camp-ee? A worker or a warrior? The Rupter.

A sounding board as de- fined in Webster’s New Collegian Dictionary is a structure erected over a roof that enables the speaker’s voice to be carried more directly to the listener. In connection with this, one of the C.G.A.’s deepest concerns is a lack of communication between it and the student body. What kind of a sounding board does the C.G.A. need to speak more directly to us as the student body?

In answer to this ques- tion, the foundations of this sounding board must be erected by equal participa- tion between the mem- bers and the student body or the structure will be jeopardized. The speaker’s voice will be inextricably ab- sent C.G.A., meetings in- form ourselves by coming, but we neglect to pass on our information to others. Yet, many of us — of the student body — are daily discussing ideas that would greatly enhance the work of the C.G.A., but the C. G. A. remains unaware of these ideas because the discussion is kept within the confines of the S.U. Participation at the past C.G.A. meetings has been very good, but the C.G.A. wishes each member of the student body to be a real part of the government. Each member of the student body is a vital part of the C.G.A. sounding board. This year’s goal of the C.G.A. is to erect this sounding board on a firm foundation and make it a working reality. How will you answer the question, “Which are You?”
