Music Department Sponsorship of 'Elijah'

The music department, in cooperation with Millivilge College Choir, The Millville Home-lye Choir Club of the University of Georgia, will present the oratorio, "Elijah," by Felix Mendelssohn on May 21, 1964, at six p.m. in Russell Auditorium on the campus of Dr. Max Taylor.

This performance, based on a religious theme, employs soloists and is performed without action, costumes or scenery. It is reported that this is the one of the superb, memorable presentations of this year.

The text of "Elijah" is composed largely from the Old Testament "First Book of Kings," chapters 17-19. The main scenes treated in the oratorio are the drought prophecy, the widow's rain, the rival sacrifice, the widow's rain in answer to Eli-jah's prayer, and the prophet's persecution of Elijah, his self-imposed, dreary, but returning, and appearance in the chariot of fire.

The presentation begins with Elijah's prophecies of drought and.sprites are followed by the overture depicting the drought and prophecy. The suffering of the people is the condition of the day. The opening number which leads to a duel with the chariot which Elijah returns to the brook of Charis, after which the double quintet begins.

Spring Brings Rule Changes

Russell Auditorium was the scene Tuesday and Wednesday of a student meeting for rule changes. After much careful concideration and debate, C.G.M. was ready to bring before the student body a number of rules to be conside rated. For changes. Each rule was read as stated in the handout, then the new rule was read, discussed, and voted upon.

The first rule under concideration concerned the areas of dating on campus. It was accepted, and the new rule now includes the front partners of the dormitory as place to date with the dorm.

The second rule brought up changed with the dorms. Now the rule stands that the student who attends dances here on campus or at M.G.C. must stay in the dorm that night. The desired change permitted students to go home after the dance with their partial consent if they were left ing home before dorm closing hours. However, because it was brought out that now, if necessary, a student may get permission from the Dean to go home after the dance, there is no need for the rule change. Therefore, it was rejected.

The idea to do away with the tradition of requiring visiting hours is Millville and to allow the student to use her own discretion was the next rule change. A motion was made to include in this rule the surrounding community, and the amended rule change was passed.

The next proposal for change was to limit the threat from the regulation time to one that the freshmen

English courses will be set up on a five quarter hour basis for two quarter courses in English in the last four years of social studies, the present three course courses, called Sociology 100, Economics 100, and Political Science 100, will become two five quarter hour courses for the student selecting two of these.

Dr. W. D. Stearns reports that anyone having an irregularity in which she might need to pick up a three-quarter course may seek the head of the department concerned and take the course.
